U.S. Workers Told to Take Yearly Leave Or Forfeit It

Dec. 31 and July 1 Set as Deadlines To Use Up Time Off Earned During 1950

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

Many Federal workers must use annual leave earned during this 1950 calendar year by December 31, while others must take it by July 1 or else lose it, Comptroller General Lindsey Warren yesterday informed the Civil Service Commission.

Two other developments yesterday of major interest to Government employes were:

1. Regulations were released by Civil Service on how an estimated 50,000 temporary employes could get full Civil Service status under the President's order of August 28.

2. A statement was issued by the commission explaining the new law that will revamp the efficiency rating system.

The decision on annual leave was issued by Warren after Chairman Harry B. Mitchell of the Civil Service Commission asked him four questions regarding the leave rider voted by Congress to the 1951 General Appropriation Act.

Many Federal officials have argued that the leave rider was both illegal and meaningless. Warren's decision will make it effective by forcing most employes to forfeit any annual leave earned this year and not taken by next July 1. Some workers must take leave earned this year by December 31 or else forfeit it. The rider's legality may be tested in court after that time.

The Comptroller General said the rider was a "permanent restriction upon payments for annual leave earned by civilian officers or employes of the Government during the calendar year 1950 . . ." In that statement, he said, in effect, that the leave rider didn't apply to military officers as various officials also contended.

In answer to another Mitchell query, Warren ruled that the rider has no effect whatsoever on annual leave accumulated prior to this calendar year. In other words, if an employe carried over 50 days of annual leave to this year he could use it or hold it as he desires.

Warren also ruled out another belief of many officials—that the rider would benefit many persons who have the maximum leave carryover by giving them six ad-

D. C. Couple's Son, AF Flier, Dies In Plane Crash

First Lieut. Roger J. Hall, 27, of Biloxi, Miss., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Hall of 763 10th st. ne., was killed with two other Air Force men in the crash of a B-25 bomber yesterday in Biloxi, Miss.

The Air Force said the plane went out of control—apparently from engine trouble—and crashed a few minutes later after taking off from Kessler Air Force Base.

Members of the family said Lieut. Hall was married and had a 6-month-old daughter.

Virginia Hill, Expecting Baby, To Testify in Crime Inquiry

BAR HARBOR, Me., Oct. 2 (AP).—Bar Harbor's police chief said late today that pretty Virginia Hill Hauser is expecting a child but "is ready to go to Chicago as soon as possible" in response to a subpena from the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

Chief Howard McFarland issued a statement after visiting Mrs. Hauser—one-time acquaintance of slain gambler Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel—and her ski instructor husband, Hermann "Hans" Hauser.

Earlier, Federal officials said the subpena had been served on Mrs. Hauser September 8 at her fashionable Bar Harbor home where she is living in seclusion.

Efforts to reach her for comment were unsuccessful. Servants said she is ill.

Meanwhile, Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.), chairman of the Crime Committee, said in Washington that although Mrs. Hauser had been placed under subpena it probably would be "some time" before she is questioned.

The Senator declined to say ex-

Powell's Race Perils Tobey's Senate Seat

GOP Split by Entry Of 'Independent'; Bridges Is Silent

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 2 (AP).—Democratic hopes of capturing a U. S. Senate seat in New Hampshire this fall rose tonight as a sharp split developed in Republican ranks.

U. S. Senator Charles W. Tobey, veteran Republican seeking a third term, faced a new challenge from the young lawyer he edged out for the GOP nomination as well as from the Democrats.

Wesley Powell, 34, a World War II air gunner, has set the stage for a three-way fight in the November election by running as an independent. The 70-year-old Tobey beat Powell by only 1310 votes in the primary after a bitter campaign. A recount of these ballots is already under way.

Emmett J. Kelley, 49, Berlin paper manufacturing company executive, has been nominated by the Democrats, who have set their sights on winning a Senate seat in New Hampshire for the first time since 1932.

Supporters of Powell placed his name on the ballot by obtaining 1246 signatures on petitions nominating him as an independent. Tobey's office challenged validity of the signatures.

The nomination of Powell as an independent candidate became official today when he did not withdraw his name on the deadline for withdrawals.

New Hampshire's senior Senator Styles Bridges (R) appeared to be keeping out of the latest flareup in the feud despite a last-minute appeal from a Tobey supporter asking him to use his influence to keep Powell out of the race.

Eliot A. Carter, Nashua industrialist and long-time leader in Republican party politics, called on Bridges to come out publicly for Tobey, declaring "a crisis confronts New Hampshire Republicans."

Chairman Owen Brewster (R., Maine) told newsmen as far as he is concerned the Senate Republican campaign committee will support the party's "regular" nominee.

Lane Named With Support Of Mahoney

Hatchet Is Buried As Md. Convention Nominates Slate

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

BALTIMORE, Oct. 2—George P. Mahoney today dramatically called off his fight with Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination and Lane was nominated by acclamation.

Mahoney, popular winner and unit-vote loser in the September 18 primary, ended the battle with a 149-word statement to the State Democratic nominating convention meeting in the Emerson Hotel.

Lane will run for reelection November 7 against the Republican nominee, Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin, former Mayor of Baltimore.

United States Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), nominee for a fifth term, was credited with a major part in Mahoney's last-minute decision to call off his bitter contest with Lane.

Two of Mahoney's close advisers, Hugo Hoffman and Leonard Weinberg, conferred with Tydings earlier in the day.

While the conferences were going on, delegates were recessed with the explanation that "paper work" had to be done.

Mahoney was said to have made up his mind to go into the con-

Girl, 2, Crushed By Sand Box In Back Yard

Two-year-old Mary Oman was fighting for her life in Arlington Hospital last night after being crushed under a heavy sand box in the back yard of her home at 5215 S. 11th st., Arlington, Va.

In preparation for moving to a new house, the child's parents, Maj. and Mrs. Paul W. Oman, had removed the sand from the box and propped the heavy object against the side of the house.

Mrs. Oman told police the child apparently tipped over the sand box and was pinned under it.

7-Point Proposal To U. N. Calls for Red China to Act As Vote Overseer

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 2 (AP).—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky and the Russian bloc submitted a 7-point Korean peace plan to the United Nations today.

It called for immediate cessation of hostilities, immediate withdrawal of American and all other foreign troops from Korea and for all-Korean elections observed by a U. N. committee including Russia and Communist China.

Withdrawal of American and other foreign troops, the nub of the Soviet bloc resolution, was defeated in the Security Council when Russia proposed it last summer.

The resolution was laid before the political committee of the General Assembly by the Soviet Union, the Soviet Ukraine, White Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia. It was the Russian answer to a resolution proposed by Britain, Australia, Brazil, Cuba, the Netherlands, Norway, Pakistan and the Philippines.

Vishinsky rejected the eight-nation plan for Korea's future in a long speech. He attacked the South Korean government as a "fascist" puppet of the United States, and demanded the U. N. halt American bombings in Korea.

The Russian bloc resolution asks the U. N. Assembly to recommend:

1. To the belligerents in Korea that they immediately cease hostilities.

2. To the Government of the United States and the governments of other states that they immediately withdraw their troops from Korea and "thereby establish conditions which would secure for the Korean people the possibility of enjoying the inalienable sovereign right to settle freely the internal affairs of their state."

3. That for the purpose of establishing the government of a unified and independent Korean state, all-Korean elections to a national assembly be held as soon as possible.

4. A commission composed of representatives of North and South Korea shall be elected at a joint meeting of the North Korean Assembly and the National Assembly of South Korea to organize and conduct free-all Korean elections. This commission shall elect a committee to function pending the establishment of a permanent all-Korean government.

5. That a United Nations committee, "with the indispensable participation in it of the representatives of states bordering on Korea," be established to observe the holding of the elections. The countries bordering on Korea are Russia and Red China.

6. That the U. N. Economic and Social Council shall draw up, with the participation of the representatives of Korea, plans for providing the necessary economic and technical aid to the Korean people through the U. N.

7. That after the establishment of the all-Korean government, the Security Council consider the

Sherman Reveals Details of Naval Expansion Plan, 'Ultimate' Goals

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

A second American destroyer was damaged by a mine Saturday and seven of her crew injured — almost certainly another victim of the Russian-made, outlawed floating mines sown in large numbers by the North Koreans.

The warship—the USS Mansfield—reached the Japanese port of Sasebo under her own power after the blast, the Navy announced. Last Wednesday the USS Brush also was struck by a mine off the northeast coast of Korea, with 24 casualties—11 dead, 3 missing and 10 injured.

Announcement of the second ship casualty amplified a statement made earlier by Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, before the House Armed Services Committee.

Many Mines Adrift

Sherman testified yesterday morning that "a great many" mines have been cast adrift in Korean waters and that those swept up have been found to be of Russian manufacture "only recently laid and not long out of a warehouse." He mentioned the second vessel hit but details were not released until late yesterday.

A release from Far East Naval Headquarters at Tokyo early Tuesday said that "The British destroyer HMS Cockade sank three floating mines the morning of October 1 in the vicinity of Paengnyong Island, just south of the thirty-eighth parallel on the west coast."—Editor's note.]

Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) brought out that such free-floating mines were declared illegal by the Hague Convention. Unlike fixed mines, they can float thousands of miles from a war zone and destroy neutral ships even years after a war.

The mines were described by Sherman as standard-type Russian Mark 26, built to be moored. But they were either dumpd into rivers and floated out to sea or cast adrift by small vessels, he said.

"As far as we know they were put there by the North Koreans," the Admiral said.

Other Disclosures

The Chief of Naval Operations also made these disclosures about the naval expansion program:

1. Two large aircraft carriers and 60 other vessels have been taken out of mothballs since the Korean war started. Orders have been issued to activate still another large flattop and 295 other ships by June 30, 1951. This will provide a fleet of 941 vessels built around 10 large carriers and 2 battleships.

2. The next Congress will be asked to authorize construction of a new "flush-deck" aircraft carrier, able to handle bigger airplanes. Design studies of the craft—probably not as large as the scrapped USS United States—are now under way.

3. Two more Essex-type car-

Marines Drive Into Uijongbu; May Be Last So. Korea Battle

TOKYO (Tuesday), Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Tank-led United States Marines drove into Uijongbu, 10 miles north of Seoul, today to seize the final objective of the United Nations' Inchon-Seoul operation.

The Marines reach Uijongbu, 18 miles south of the thirty-eighth parallel, in a final charge of slightly more than a mile shortly before noon.

United Press Correspondent Rutherford Poats reported from Tenth Corps headquarters that the Seventh Marine Regiment's entry into Uijongbu gave the Allied forces the last objective of their amphibious assault which swept up Inchon, Seoul, Suwon and the Kimpo airfield in a little more than two weeks.

For 36 hours, Poats reported, the Marines were stalled on the approaches to Uijongbu, but the Red resistance collapsed under the pounding of American artillery. The Leathernecks attacked at dawn this morning from hills a mile south of the rail and highway junction town.

The victory may have been the last battle of the war south of the thirty-eighth parallel.

The city of Uijongbu was the principal training center used by the North Koreans during the enforced recruitment of hundreds of thousands of South Korean citizens. It is believed to have vast dumps of weapons and automatic guns and ammunition.

The Uijongbu corridor was the main invasion route used by the North Koreans in their sudden attack south last June. And its history as an invasion pathway reaches back to the days of Kubla Khan.

Defense, ECA Orders Given Top Priority

Simplest Form Used By NPA to Assure Speed on Contracts

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The National Production Authority yesterday issued its long-awaited priority regulation, giving national defense orders the first call on the country's productive resources.

The order permits purchasing agents for the military services and the Atomic Energy Commission to require that their contracts be filled ahead of orders for civilian goods.

It also gives defense contractors filling those orders the right to require other firms to supply them with needed materials, parts and equipment.

The order goes into effect today. It is the simplest form of the priority regulation. There is no graduation; only a single rating is given. Thus, for the time being, anyway, there will be none of the 1-A, 1-AA, 1-AAA differentiations that plagued buyers and producers alike during World War II.

In simplest terms, the regulation permits the military forces and AEC to assign a "Defense Order" or "DO" rating to a contract. The producer must then accept that order and give it priority over all others that he is working on.

Similarly, the producer may extend the "DO" rating to his sup-

Labor Government Asks Prosecution In London Strike

LONDON, Oct. 2 (NYHT).—The Labor government took an unprecedented step today when Attorney General Sir Hartley Shawcross ordered prosecution of 10 strikers who have participated in the North London gas strike that began 16 days ago.

Summonses were granted today against 10 employes of the North Thames Gas Board, a unit of Britain's nationalized gas industry.

Today's move was the government's answer to the unofficial strike, which involves 1470 maintenance men.

30 U. S. Soldiers Found Among 1100 Korean Civilians

TAEJON, Korea, Oct. 2 (AP).—Bodies of 1100 Korean civilians murdered by the Red invaders had been found thus far in this ruined town as the gruesome task of opening fresh graves continued today.

Thirty American soldiers were among the dead. Searchers feared 5000 or 6000 persons were massacred in this town alone Wednesday and Thursday by North Korean security police before the Reds fled from advancing United Nations forces.

Some 700 bodies were found in and near a Catholic church.

Two Americans and a South Korean were buried alive, said Lieut. Robert W. Shultice of Norfolk, Va. They survived, but one of the Americans died after Americans liberated the town.

Shultice, investigating atrocities for the adjutant general, said the three were found struggling through the dirt for air. They had been buried only lightly.

The 30 Americans slain had been tied by their wrists to dead men.

(Associated Press correspondent O. H. P. King reported that mass graves found in Seoul indicated as many as 2000 civilian political prisoners may have been executed in a single district of that capital before the Communists retreated).

Remaining townsfolk said the Reds chose for death the wealthy, the known anti-Communists, national police and the relatives of South Korean soldiers. Others slain had been only a little more prosperous than their fellow citizens, or had in some minor way offended the Red police.

Horrified residents began telling of mass executions a few minutes after troops of the United States Twenty-fourth Division recaptured Taejon.

A desecrated church gave up the greatest number—nearly 700. Most were found in a huge mass grave. An unknown number of others—perhaps 100—lay in the basement of the church, a former French-Canadian monastery.

Troops Advance 35 Miles Beyond Border; Warships Moving Up Coast

TOKYO (Tuesday), Oct. 3 (AP).—South Korean troops have sped 35 miles beyond the thirty-eighth parallel into North Korea and are within about 60 miles of the east coast industrial city of Wonsan, a United States Tenth Corps spokesman said today.

The spokesman said other South Korean troops of the Capital Division are 15 miles north of the artificial boundary but no American units are north of it.

The deepest penetration was made by the Republic's Third Division. It has moved 5 miles past the town of Kansong where it was reported yesterday. Kansong is 30 miles north of the thirty-eighth parallel.

American planes and warships supported the advance. A Navy summary today said carrier-based planes raided airfields all the way across Korea north of the thirty-eighth.

Under Command of 8th Army

Associated Press Correspondent Tom Lambert, reporting from Tenth Corps headquarters, said there still was no indication if the South Koreans were advancing on orders from the United States Eighty Army or on the orders of their own commanders. The Republic's Third and Capital Divisions are under overall command of the United States Eighth Army.

The Republican troops were headed northwest toward Wonsan, heavily-bombed North Korean oil center 100 road miles above the thirty-eighth parallel. Communist forces were reported being mustered there for an organized stand.

More than two regiments of the South Korean Capital division also were north of the old de-facto boundary of North-South Korea. Capital division troops swung west from the captured east coast town of Yangyang, which is 7 miles inside Red Korea.

Six Division Near Border

Elements of the Republican Sixth Division were on the move 60 miles in from the east coast and were expected to cross the parallel momentarily. The Sixth Division had jumped off from Chunchun, which is 8 miles south of the parallel.

All United States ground forces remained south of the parallel Monday, but American warships off the east coast cruised slowly northward to lend fire support to the advancing Republican Third Division if called upon.

Today's Tenth Corps communique on Monday operations in the Seoul area placed United States troops no farther than 10 miles north of the capital—itself 28 miles from the parallel. But on the Kumpo Peninsula, across the Han River west of Seoul, Marines have cleaned out an area which

Russia Refuses Allied Demand for Nazi POW Facts

By The Associated Press

Russia rejected yesterday American-British-French demands for information about German World War II prisoners still held in the Soviet Union.

A note handed to Ambassador Alan G. Kirk in Moscow not only refused information, it declared charges by the Western Allies that hundreds of thousands of Germans are still in Russia "do not correspond to the facts" and were made for propaganda purposes.

The Russian note was in reply to an American note delivered last July 14.

The Soviet reply called attention to a formal statement by the Soviet News Agency Tass last May 5 which claimed the only German prisoners left in Russia were 9717 convicted of grave war crimes, 3815 still under investigation and 14 under medical treatment.

Western powers had asked for information also about military prisoners and civilian internees who died in captivity. Despite Soviet claims that the repatriation of prisoners has been completed, German and Western Allied officials say that as many as 400,000 prisoners remain to be accounted for.

Serving Second Term in Congress

Rep. Meyer of Kansas Dies Of Heart Attack at Bethesda

Representative Herbert A. Meyer, Republican Congressman from the Third District of Kansas, died unexpectedly of a heart attack at 6:35 p. m. yesterday at the Naval Hospital, Bethesda. He was 64.

Mr. Meyer, a Capitol aide said, entered the hospital two weeks ago yesterday for treatment of virus pneumonia. He had shown improvement. The fatal heart attack came while he slept.

Mr. Meyer's wife, Mary, and son, Herbert, jr., were at the family home at Independence, Kans., when death came to the legislator and newspaper publisher. He is also survived by a brother, Harrison E. Meyer, of Washington, and two grandchildren.

Mr. Meyer was serving his second term in Congress. He won renomination for a third term and was planning to return to Kansas before the November election.

Born in Chillicothe, Ohio, August 30, 1886, Mr. Meyer moved to Washington when he was 6. He attended schools here, then went to the Staunton Military Academy. He attended George Washington University and was graduated from the National University Law School here.

In 1940 he purchased the Independence (Kans.) Daily Reporter. During World War I he was an Air Corps captain. He was assistant to the Secretary of the Interior in charge of the affairs of the Alaska railroad and territorial affairs of Alaska and Hawaii from 1915 to 1917.

Mr. Meyer was a member of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee.

Smoking by Parents Blamed For Eye Injuries to Babies

(New Formula Speeds Intravenous Feeding. Page 18.)

Cigarette smoking by nursing and baby-tending mothers rates high here as an eye-accident hazard to infants and youngsters, it was reported yesterday.

Smoking fathers, too, contribute to the hazard when they fail to set aside their lighted cigarettes while burping baby or tossing their children around in play.

The hazards were stressed by representatives of the District of Columbia Society for the Prevention of Blindness, in their public health exhibit of the current scientific assembly of the District Medical Society.

The exhibitors said that eye burns from lighted cigarettes are among the leading single causes of eye injuries of the very young at two Washington hospitals, Children's Hospital and the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital.

Their statistical breakdown of eye accident causes at the two hospitals among children between five months and 16 years showed 17 percent due to burns from chemicals, hot liquids, flames and cigarettes. Cigarette burns, they said, ranked high in this category.

The exhibit was accompanied by a warning by society officials that "blunt force" injury to the eye be brought to the doctor's attention immediately. Such injuries, they said, may cause internal hemorrhages which if not treated immediately might cause loss of the eye.

Stock Market at 19-Year High; Split-Share Rumors Help Rise

(Canadian Dollar Up Nearly 4 Cents in New York Trading—Page 18)

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP).—News of production increases, good dividend declarations and rumors of stock splits hauled the stock market to a new 19-year high mark today.

In trading much brisker than the average of last week's sessions, numerous issues jumped from $1 to around $3.50 a share.

Far outside even this range was the common of Nickel Plate Railroad, which soared $20.50 a share to $188.50 late in the day. It has been rumored in Wall Street that the carrier will split its stock, giving its holders an unspecified number of shares for each share now held.

On another unconfirmed report of a possible stock split, Chrysler rose $3.50 at $78 a share.

Motors, steels and radio-television stocks generally were the issues that attracted the most buying power. Chemicals and building materials also had support.

An important factor in the strength of the market was the weekend announcement by Secretary of Commerce Sawyer that the steel industry would boost its production by 9,400,000 tons by the end of 1952.

Many investors and speculators considered this an indication that defense production would continue to boom far at least the next two years or so. (Details, Page 12) extends within 10 miles of the thirty-eighth parallel.

Planes, Ships Back Allies in No. Korea

The communiques said elements of the United States First Marine Division advanced up a highway north of Seoul to a point a little more than a mile from Uljongbu. It is 11 air miles from Seoul. Another First Division element set up a road block at an unspecified point on the road leading northwest from Seoul to Kaesong. The communique said Red resistance increased during the past 24 hours.

South Korean Marines attached to the First Marine Division advanced 3500 yards along a highway northeast of Seoul to a point 10 miles from the city.

American warplanes also raided North Korea in force during the day. B-29 Superforts hit the Red capital at Pyongyang, among other targets, and advanced their bombline northward every six hours to keep pace with the penetration of South Korean troops.

United States fighter planes rocketed and strafed a column of 75 Red vehicles led by one tank moving south along the same eastern coastal road the Third Division used to advance north.

Planes Disperse Red Column

Only 28 miles separated the two forces when heavy aerial attacks dispersed the Red motorized column late Monday afternoon and drove it to cover near Changjon.

Prisoners captured by Republican troops north of the thirty-eighth parallel said the Communist forces were preparing for a fight at Wonsan. Prisoners told interrogators at South Korean First Corps headquarters they had been instructed to make their way to Wonsan with their arms and all equipment possible.

Capt. Eorden T. Wright of Oakland, Calif., American liaison officer with the Republican First Corps said both the Third and Capital Divisions thus far had met "very, very little resistance."

Wright said the North Koreans evacuated Yangyang so rapidly early Monday that blankets were left in their bunks and field radios were tuned and turned on.

MacArthur Waits for Clash

It appeared likely that South Korean troops would continue to advance until a clash occurred with the northerners. Then it would be up to General MacArthur to order his waiting United Nations forces—American, Australian, British and Filipino infantrymen—across the artificial line which originally separated American and Russian occupation forces after the end of World War II.

The thirty-eighth parallel continued to exist in fact as a boundary between the Russian-sponsored "Peoples Republic" of North Korea and the United Nations recognized Republic of Korea after both Russian and American occupation forces were withdrawn. Both regimes claim sovereignty over all of Korea.

In an attempt at forcible unification, the Communists invaded South Korea June 25. They overran all but a small southeastern corner of the country before the great Allied counteroffensive and amphibious assault of September 15 shattered the invading army in one of the swiftest turnabouts in the history of warfare.

The Communist radio at Pyongyang returned to the air with a routine broadcast at 9 p. m. Monday. It made no mention of surrender. It had been off the air at the time of its usual 5 p. m. broadcast, apparently because of an Allied air attack on the Pyongyang power station at that hour.

The 9 p. m. broadcast came 33 hours after General MacArthur at noon Sunday called on the Reds to capitulate to avoid the further useless shedding of blood.

Failure to surrender, MacArthur's radio message said, would result in swift and total defeat for the remaining Communist forces.

The surrender terms were broadcast in Korean hour after hour and suplemented by air drops of more than three million surrender leaflets throughout Korea.

The Red Army regime at Pyongyang issued both morning and evening communiques for Sunday. They were broadcast Monday by the Communist New China News Agency at Peiping. The communiques conceded that Red troops "retreated from Seoul to prearranged positions" and continued to fight against American forces.

Reports Seoul "Massacre"

The Red communique also alleged that American and South Korean troops "are now conducting a big scale massacre in the city of Seoul where a large number of residents were indiscriminately murdered and tortured."

The Communist charge of a "massacre" in Seoul had been anticipated by United Nations authorities—particularly after finding mass graves in Seoul with more than 127 bodies. In Seoul alone some 2000 political prisoners were feared to have been killed by the Reds or shipped north to concentration camps.

The Chinese Communist radio Monday broadcast a speech by General Chu Teh, commander of the Chinese Red Army ordering more than three million of his men "to get fully prepared to strengthen our national defenses, and fight for the liberation of Formosa and to liberate Tibet."

Significantly, Chu made no mention of possible entry into the Korean war. Chu said, however:

"American imperialism is now carrying out an armed invasion of China's neighbor, Korea, and in collaboration with remnant Chiang Kai-shek brigands has openly invaded China's territory, Formosa. American imperialism is threatening world peace."

This was the propaganda line Red China has long taken. It shed no further light on possible Chinese intervention in behalf of the hard-pressed Red Regime at Pyongyang. The Chinese admitted long ago they had sent Korean Troops in the Chinese Red Army back to Red Korea.

Situation Held "Delicate"

General MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo continued to regard the Korean situation as both militarily and politically "delicate." There was no comment on the penetration of Communist territory.

Headquarters announced Monday that United Nations troops captured 6765 Communists during the previous 24 hours. It was a new high for a single day. Red casualties during the period totaled 1154.

Maj. Gen. E. M. Almond, MacArthur's Chief of Staff and Tenth Corps commander, drove north of Seoul on an inspection trip during the day. His party was pinned down briefly by Red small arms and artillery fire in the vicinity of Uijongbu, 12 miles from Seoul.

Small-scale, sporadic resistance was encountered elsewhere south of the thirty-eighth parallel, but decreasing hourly.

Doubt That Reds Have Atom Bomb Hancock Voices

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 2 (AP).—A former United States representative on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission expressed doubt today that Russia has the atom bomb.

The speaker, John M. Hancock, is a partner of Lehman Bros. and chairman of the board of directors of Lever Bros. Co. He addressed the fifth annual convention of the Tea Association of the U. S. A.

"I just don't believe, on the basis of existing evidence, that Russia can make atom bombs today," Hancock declared; "and I therefore feel that the fear of Russia's using the bomb is an undue fear. I see no reason for us to get jittery, and see every reason for us to maintain poise."

Hancock said the best military minds with the best possible information believe that Russia is a "second-class power with a third-rate army."

MASON CITY, Ill., Oct. 2 (AP).—Pfc. William Simmons, 41, father of 10 children, has been killed in action in Korea. One of his children, Pfc. William Simmons, jr., 20, had been wounded in action in Korea.

Simmons' widow received word from the Defense Department today that her husband was killed September 5.

Mrs. Simmons said there are nine boys and one girl in the family. She said one of the sons, Carl, 19, now is serving in the Air Force in Japan, and that the oldest son is recovering from his wounds.

Frederick V. Field Registers as Agent Of China Interests

Frederick Vanderbilt Field, New York millionaire, has registered as a foreign agent representing Red China financial interests, the Justice Department revealed yesterday.

He registered as agent for the Bank of China, the China National Aviation Corp., the Directorate General of Postal Remittances and Savings Bank, all of Peking, and the Chinese Postal Remittances and Savings Bank of Hongkong.

In his registration statement, Field said he had been named "attorney-in-fact" by the present management of the organizations, with "authority to manage and conduct their affairs" in the United States.

All of the organizations are engaged in law suits in this country.

Soviet Bloc Offers Peace Plan

question of admitting Korea to the U. N.

The eight-nation plan calls for elections to be held under the auspices of the United Nations by a reorganized commission that will have wider Asian representation; that United Nations forces (now beyond the thirty-eighth parallel dividing North and South Korea) shall not remain in any part of Korea longer than is necessary for setting up a unified, independent and democratic government for all Korea; that all necessary measures be taken to accomplish the economic rehabilitation of Korea.

The first point of the Soviet bloc resolution—a cease fire—was voted by the Security Council in its June 25 resolution, but the North Kooreans did not halt their advance.

The second point already has been defeated by the Security Council, the U. N. countries refusing a Russian demand that the U. N. forces get out of Korea.

The Russians and the backers of the eight-nation plan disagree on how to hold the elections. Both agree on setting up a unified and independent state, but they take a different road to get there.

The U. N. Assembly has recognized the government of the republic of Korea as the only legal government of Korea. Expressions from delegates in the political committee debate so far indicate that the majority considers the Communist North Korean regime as the aggressor in the conflict.

The Russians have refused to take part in a U. N. commission on Korea, but their proposal now calls for them to participate, along with Communist China. Communist China is not yet a member of the U. N. and immediate speculation was that this proposal would not find many backers in the committee.

Both the Russians and the eight nations agree on the need for rehabilitating Korea and both want to do it through the U. N.

On the point of admitting the all-Korean government to the U. N., the Russians have vetoed the Republic of Korea in the Security Council, while the Communist-backed North Korean regime has received only the support of the Russian bloc in votes here.

Speaking this morning to the political committee, Vishinsky said the resolution put up by the eight countries would permit an indefinite occupation of Korea by foreign troops.

"When will they get out? Perhaps when the mountains are level with the sea," Vishinsky said.

Ben C. Limb, Foreign Minister of the Republic of Korea who spoke after Vishinsky, said traitors in North Korea must be punished, but that his government does not hold the masses of North Koreans responsible for the war.

Reaction to the Soviet proposal came quickly from various delegations, but some delegates, such as India's Sir Benegal N. Rau, withheld comment until they had studied the Soviet proposal.

Warren R. Austin, United States delegate, attacked the Soviet resolution without quarter.

"It calls on the United Nations to surrender," he said to a reporter. "By accepting that resolution we would accept the version of history which would be false. We would submit to their thought control. This is a sure way to shackle the Korean people and encourage aggression throughout the world. We would adopt the false thesis that South Korea and the Americans are the aggressors."

Foreign Minister Lester B. Pearson, Canada, agreed that the Russian and eight-nation viewpoints cannot be compromised.

Strategic Air War Ended, General Says

TOKYO (Tuesday), Oct. 3 (AP).—Lieut. George E. Stratemeyer, commander of the Far East Air Force, said today Allied planes have destroyed or damaged more than 1000 North Korean tanks in a continuing air war.

General Stratemeyer said the strategic phase of the Korean air war has ended, but that aerial attacks are still being made against the relatively few military targets that are left.

The air leader said Allied aircraft had neutralized 18 major strategic targets, destroyed or damaged 376 bridges, thousands of vehicles and attacked more than 11,000 enemy troops.

General Stratemeyer said the "air command" team of Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, United States Eighth Army commander, and Maj. Gen. Earle E. Partridge, Fifth Air Force leader, "defeated the Communist ground offensive."

"Some military training areas are about all" the main targets left. Allied bombers and fighters are continuing attacks designed primarily to cut off communications behind the withdrawing Reds, he said.

General Stratemeyer's statements were made at a news conference.

To date, the general said, the Allies have lost 139 aircraft in combat and have had 73 casualties. He reported 52 airmen killed, 56 wounded, 65 missing and two known to be prisoners of war.

The present bomb line, he said, runs east to west slightly north of Seoul, then curves across the thirty-eighth parallel in the middle of the peninsula, running from there to the east coast.

Stratemeyer said Allied planes have destroyed or damaged 152 North Korean aircraft. Intelligence reports say the Reds have only seven planes left, including three twin-engined bombers.

Stratemeyer, when asked why the North Koreans did not throw a larger air force into the battle, said, "The sources of supply didn't see fit to provide one."

"The war would have been vastly different if we had been up against a major air power," he observed.

Stratemeyer said his airmen destroyed or damaged 1059 tanks. The total, he added, might include some duplications but efforts have been made to reduce error by cutting pilots reports by two-thirds.

Air officers said intelligence reports estimated the Reds had between 300 and 400 tanks when they started the campaign. It is believed they have received at least 100 percent replacements. The Communists now are believed to have some 90 tanks left.

The stragetic phase ended relatively quickly, Stratemeyer said, because "it is common knowledge that the enemy's principal sources of materials were off limits." He did not elaborate.

He said his authority to attack North Korea permitted him to go to the Manchurian and Russian borders but neither combat nor reconnaissance aircraft had been ordered beyond these borders.

Stratemeyer said Allied aircraft had expended 29,711 tons of bombs, over 23 million rounds of ammunition, 63,000 rockets and 702,000 gallons of Napalm, the fire explosive.

His figures did not include Navy or Marine air operations which he said the Navy would report.

Muccio Reports

Seoul Faces 'Terrible' Conditions

United States Ambassador John J. Muccio in Korea has reported to the State Department that conditions in liberated Seoul are "terrible and beyond description."

The envoy said that the South Korean capital on Saturday was without water, electricity and means of communication. Food was short and the health hazard great, he added.

While the population was in critical straits, the Ambassador said the Seoul residents were "remarkably cheerful in the face of the tremendous losses suffered in the fighting and the three-month occupation by North Korean Communist forces.

Muccio's report, made public yesterday by the State Department, advised that he had reopened the United States Embassy with a staff of nine officials and clerks brought in from Taegu, which had served as the South Korean provisional capital.

The embassy, Muccio said, underwent a "thorough looting" of furniture and fixtures by the Communists. He said the embassy building was extensively damaged by bomb concussions, but is livable, and repairs will start promptly.

Army Is Helping Seoul To Get Water and Rice

SEOUL, Korea, Oct. 2 (U.P.)—President Syngman Rhee of South Korea looked over the ruins of his capital today and said he would like tto "hire a top flight city planner."

But, for the present at least, Rhee's statement is an example of wishful thinking and he knows it.

Seoul has more pressing immediate needs.

The city needs rice and the army has promised 20 trucks to bring it in.

The city needs water. The army has promsed fuel and technical assistance to start two of the power company's generators, enough to operate the pumping system, but not enough to provide lights and power for the city.

Anyone making plans for the reconstruction of Seoul must consider:

1. There are almost no undamaged modern building in the city's business section. The banks have been destroyed. The postoffice is a stark shell. Four big department stores are burned out.

2. Most of the communications and transportation systems have been destroyed or damaged and what is left is without power.

3. Many workers either have been drafted into the Communist army or have fled the city to escape drafting. Others have been taken north by the Communists as prisoners.

4. A large majority of the citizens are too busy with the immediate problems or living—and burying their dead—to worry about rebuilding the city.

The prospect of a bumper rice crop and few people to harvest it is one of Korea's most pressing problems.

An advance party of the ECA mission to Korea arrived in Seoul Friday with President Rhee and United States Ambassador John J. Muccio. But before they can begin functioning, they must find accommodations and set about assessing the needs of the entire country.

U. S. Leaders Salute A-Project for Peace

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 2 (AP).—Three of the Nation's key men joined tonight in saluting University of Michigan's project to harness atomic energy for peace.

Gordon Dean, chairman of the United States Atomic Energy Commission; Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, and Warren R. Austin, United States delegate to the United Nations, endorsed the project. Their speeches marked the kickoff of a campaign to raise $6,500,000 for the Michigan Memorial-Phoenix project.

Key Viet Minh City Captured

SAIGON, Indo-China, Oct. 2 (U.P.)—French paratroops and infantry captured Thainguyen, Communist nerve center and military capital 59 miles north of Hanoi, Sunday, after a 36-hour offensive that caught the rebels by surprise, the French announced today.

A military spokesman said the first of three columns closing in from the south through rain-soaked jungles entered Thainguyen as paratroops were dropped just north of the city.

The spokesman said "several thousand" troops took part in the operation. He said mopping-up operations inside Thainguyen, which sits astride important North Indo-China highways, and in the surrounding area continued.

In another lesser operation along the so-called "Bamboo Canal" 40 miles southeast of Hanoi, a spokesman said, the French captured 13 women infantry fighters clad in the black Viet Minh uniform.

A French communique also announced that French and Viet Minh delegations had exchanged lists of prisoners at a rendezvous north of Saigon—the date was not given—and had agreed to meet again on October 16 to arrange an exchange of prisoners.

It was officially confirmed here that French authorities have banned shipping in one-third of the territorial waters of Indo-China, from the eighteenth parallel south to Kega point, about 90 mile east of Saigon, on the China Sea. The affected area includes a long stretch of Viet Minh-held territory.

The French destroyer Amyot Dindiville was blasted by a mysterious explosion that killed the captain and three crew members off the east coast last week.

6-Hour Push by South Koreans Rolls Up Reds' Eastern Line

By Robert Bennyhoff

YANGYANG, North Korea, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—The South Korean commander loaded his troops into trucks today and told them to keep on going north as far as they could.

By 6 p. m. an air spotter said they had passed Kojin-ni, 27 miles north of Yangyang and 35 miles north of the thirty-eighth parallel, and were fighting against the Communists north of the town.

In their six-hour dash from Yangyang the South Koreans, members of the Republic of Korea 3d Division, rolled up the entire eastern end of the North Korean defense line above the thirty-eighth parallel.

At Kojin-ni the Third Division was within 72 miles of Wonsan, major industrial and communications center from which highways radiate into all of North Korea.

Captured Reds said they had instructions to make their first major stand at Wonsan. Koreans living alongside the road said the Reds passed through on their way north last night on the same roads the South Koreans traveled today. This division jumped off at noon Sunday and marched into Yangyang at 11 a. m., today, waving bouquets of flowers. They took the town without firing a shot.

The South Koreans moving north are beginning to find out how the Reds have been hiding their trucks from our fighter and spotter planes during the daytime.

At frequent intervals along the coastal highway are truck shelters built of logs and covered with pine boughs. The shelters are open at both ends. Some are large enough only for one truck or tank, but others could shelter 10 or more.

They are built wherever they can be hidden along steep embankments or where the road passes through a forest.

Dr. Glennan in Office As Member of AEC

Dr. Thomas Keith Glennan was sworn in as a member of the Atomic Energy Commission yesterday, bringing the commission to full five-member strength for the first time in almost eight months.

Dr. Glennan is on leave as president of Case Institute of Technology in Cleveland.

Colombia Frigate Accepted to Help In Korea Fighting

Colombia yesterday became the first Latin American nation to have a military unit accepted for service in the Korean campaign when Navy Secretary Francis P. Matthews welcomed its offer of the frigate Almirante Padilla.

Matthews, acting on behalf of the unified command in Korea, gave Colombian Ambassador Eduardo Zuleta-Angel the formal acceptance notification in ceremonies at the Pentagon. High officials of the State Department, United States naval officers, and Colombian Embassy representative witnessed the ceremony.

The Almirante Padilla, according to Zuleta-Angel, now is en route to Cartegena, Colombia, after visiting Montevideo and Buenos Aires.

Stassen to Announce Course on Wednesday

Harold E. Stassen, twice contender for the Republican presidential nomination, said yesterday he will make a promised "major announcement" here Wednesday afternoon.

The University of Pennsylvania president and former Minnesota Governor had said on September 15 that he would make a major announcement within 10 days.

riers will be modernized and if funds are available by 1952 a third battleship and two more big carriers will be in active service. This would provide 22 flattops afloat—12 large and ten small.

4. The big Navy training center at Bainbridge, Md.—built during the war but closed during the postwar economy cutbacks—will be reopened, Sherman said.

(5) The "ultimate manpower goal of the Navy under the expansion program is 77,000 officers and 612,000 enlisted men, according to testimony by Vice Admiral John W. Roper, chief of naval personnel, and amplified later by the Navy. No comparable figures were given for the Marine Corps.

(6) The Navy and Marine Corps now have 90,000 officers and men under General MacArthur's command in the Korean operations. The ships involved in the Far East fighting include four large carriers, two small carriers, plus other escort carriers, one battleship (the Missouri), all cruisers of the Pacific Fleet plus one from the Mediterranean, and a number of destroyers, minesweepers and escort and amphibious craft of various types.

Sherman listed the following ships as having been "demothballed" since June 25: two big carriers, three escort carriers, two destroyer escorts, 13 mine control craft, 30 amphibious craft and 12 auxiliaries—a total of 62.

The following 296 additional vessels are scheduled for recall from the reserve fleet by next June 30, he testified: One large carrier, two escort carriers, one battleship (the New Jersey), two cruisers, 32 destroyers, three destroyer escorts, five submarines, 20 mine control vessels, 164 amphibious craft and 67 auxiliaries.

Vinson then asked Sherman to summarize the naval power the Nation will have by the end of June. The Admiral said it would include: 20 carriers (ten large and ten small), two battleships, 15 cruisers, 200 destroyers, 75 submarines, 118 mine control craft, 256 amphibious craft, and 255 auxiliary craft. He said also the Navy and Marines will be operating a total of 7355 planes.

Personnel strength will be slightly over 500,000 in the Navy and 126,000 in the Marines, Sherman said.

Asked about plans for a new "flush deck" carrier—one without the usual "island" superstructure—Sherman said:

"We are making studies to see what kind of ship to construct to handle faster and heavier aircraft. When they are complete, we shall ask for money for one be either a flush-decker or a ship. The new type carrier will be either a flush-decker or a flush-deck type, with the operating island skimmed practically away."

Under questioning, Sherman also listed the Navy and Marine casualties, as of reports received yesterday morning, at 95 in the Navy and 1875 in the Marine Corps. This included: Marine dead, 280; Marine missing 30; Marine wounded, 1565; Navy dead, 24; Navy missing, 11; Navy wounded, 60.

Yesterday, the Navy brought its casualty list of the destroyer Brush, damaged by a mine off Korea last week, further up to date. Two names were removed from the missing list and added to the known dead. The announcement of the 2200-ton destroyer Mansfield said it was hit by the mine northeast of the city of Changjon.

During the Capitol Hill testimony, Rear Admiral Clifford A. Swanson, Navy Surgeon General, said that Navy medical officers total will be increased from 3107 to 4180 by next June. He said the Navy will not have to call any of its reserve doctors who already have seen service, as those without service plus doctors on loan to the Army will fill the gap.

Sherman was asked at the hearing whether the Navy has seen any submarines off Korea. His only answer was that the Navy knows that North Korea has no submarines. The Admiral refused to comment to reporters about a news story that an American destroyed probably had sunk a Russian submarine off Korea. Later a spokesman said: "No evidence is in hand that any submarine or submersible was sunk or damaged by U. N. forces."

Defense and AEC Orders Get Top Priority

pliers, so that they, in turn, must give him the materials and components he needs in preference to other customers.

There are fines and jail penalties for violators.

The NPA regulation does not apply to certain items under the control of other Federal agencies. These include electric power, farm equipment, fertilizer, food, coal, gas, petroleum and transportation, port and storage facilities.

Similarly, certain "non-military" purchases of the military forces—office and PX supplies, etc.—are exempted from the ratings.

In issuing the order, NPA administrator William H. Harrison said that "many materials and products needed for the defense program are in short supply. The purpose of the priorities system established herewith is to assure that defense production has the right of way."

Harrison also hinted that priorities might be extended to orders for vital defense production which were not placed directly by the military services. These might include orders for steel and other metals and materials needed to expand capacity in the oil and power industries, or in making more railroad, mining and refining equipment, it was assumed.

Harrison said that though the ratings were confined at the outset of the program to direct defense procurement, there were many other activities "in direct support of the defense program" that needed scarce materials.

He observed that "measures are being considered to handle this kind of situation."

Direct Controls Held Damaging to Economy

Six associations closely connected with the building industry told the Government yesterday they are convinced that under present circumstances the application of direct Government controls over the civilian economy "will do more harm than good to our military effort."

"As far as possible," they said, in a statement, "the requirements for rearmament should be met by increased production (additions to the central economy) rather than diversion (subtraction from the civilian economy).

"We disagree with those who hold that our 1950 economy—already running in high gear—is less capable of great and rapid expansion than the part-idle economy of 1940 . . . And while we recognize the importance of certain bottlenecks—like steel production—we believe American industry is now so dynamic and so flexible that it can achieve the necessary further expansion and readjustment perhaps even more rapidly than the more stagnant economy of 1940."

The builders conceded that wage and price ceilings and government allocations and priorities for nonmilitary use are "probably unavoidable" in all-out war, and may prove necessary in the latter stages of peacetime rearmament.

The statement was signed by heads of the American Institute of Architects, the National Association of Home Builders, the Associated General Contractors, the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association, the Producers Council, and by a number of manufacturers.

Don't miss seeing the Homes of '50. They will be open until the end of this week, so you can still get a look at the latest housing developments.

Astronomers Find Pluto Only Tenth Volume of Earth

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 2—(NYHT)—Two astronomers, using the giant 200-inch telescope on Mount Palomar, Calif., in the first accurate measurement of the planet Pluto, have found it has only one tenth the volume of the earth.

Dr. Gerard P. Juiper of Yerkes Observatory, and Milton Humason of Mount Palomar Observatory, describe in the astronomy journal Sky and Telescope, published here today, how they measured the diameter of the planet to be only 3550 miles. The earth is 7900 in diameter.

The fact that Pluto has only one tenth the volume of the earth while apparently having the same mass means that serious readjustments must be made in the older theories of the gravitational attraction of Pluto on its neighbor Uranus.

According to the measurements, Pluto should be about 10 times as dense as the earth. But such density does not fit in with other measurements, so that the original measurements of the motion of Uranus and Pluto are inaccurate, it was said.

Whatever They Need— As Much As They Need—

YOU MAKE IT— WE'LL MOVE IT— AGAIN!

Ocean to Ocean—Door to Door—America's 8 million trucks are geared to deliver...their needs and your needs... faster, more directly—and on time!

Day after day, night after night, the world's most flexible conveyor system rolls across the face of America.

Over mountain and desert—over tar, concrete, asphalt and cinder road—sometimes over no road at all—trucks are on the job! Going where no other transport can move. Carrying just about everything America makes, needs and uses. And doing it faster, better, cheaper!

For trucks are never sidetracked. They travel direct to their destination—deliver their goods at the door . . . linking farms and cities together . . . flowing material to and from factories in a steady stream—keeping pace with production.

Today, this vast and speedy transportation system—expanded and greater than ever—is once more geared to the nation's emergency. As they were during the peak war years, trucks, again, are doing a double job—rushing raw materials to hungry assembly lines, hurrying supplies and finished products from plant to ship-side, continuing to carry everything we eat, wear and buy, from factory to store . . . ready and able to haul whatever is needed to wherever it's going in any quantity, swiftly, efficiently—on time!

Remember—trucks are one of our primary lines of defense. Anything that slows them, slows us all.

Virginia GI Hides From Reds 77 Days

TAEJON, Korea, Oct. 2 (AP).—A bearded sergeant came out of the hills and into the land of the living yesterday after 77 days behind enemy lines.

Sergt. Ralph L. Kilpatrick, 29, of Phoebus, Va., was cut off in the battle of the Kum River July 16.

He had been living in a cave not far from the site of his last battle, eating bean sprouts, cucumbers, melons and what little rice he could scrounge.

Kilpatrick said the Communist troops knew he was around and came into the hills searching for him. Time and again, he said, they passed within a few feet.

The sergeant was in surprisingly good physical condition, although his weight had dropped from 220 to about 175.

Kilpatrick disappeared from "C" Company of the Nineteenth Regiment, Fourteenth Division. He returned from the hills to the same company.

Kilpatrick related:

"I got around the valley to our old positions. I had a sprained ankle. There were gook soldiers all over the place. My ankle gave out. I was firing like hell when the lieutenant said it was the chance to get out, but I couldn't make it.

"Me and another kid stayed in the ditch. A gook came along and looked into my eyes. I was looking at the whites of his eyes and he was looking at mine. He must have figured I was dead with my eyes open. Anyhow, he went on.

"I saw one GI throw up his hands to surrender and a gook with a submachine gun cut him down. I figured I was going to die fighting."

Kilpatrick said the other soldier with him died of sunstroke the following day. The sergeant took the soldier's carbine and treuch knife and fled to the hills after dark.

He found 200 rounds of ammunition in an abandoned mortar position. The weary soldier still was carrying a good portion of it upon his return.

Mother of 5 Dies of Polio; Is Second Loudoun Fatality

The second polio fatality in Loudoun County, Va., this year was reported yesterday by Dr. Charles G. Souder, county health officer. Only seven cases have been reported so far.

The victim was Mrs. Josephine Lewis, 31, wife of a Rounds Hill, Va., farmer and mother of five children. She died Saturday afternoon shortly after she was rushed by ambulance to Gallinger Hospital

A 13-year-old girl, who lived in Leesburg, died September 24 in Children's Hospital of bulbar polio.

Loudoun's Newest Case

Dr. Souder said he had no idea whether the area has been hit by an unusually strong polio virus or whether it has been simply chance.

Loudoun County's seventh case, also reported yesterday, is a 19-year-old girl from Leesburg. She was admitted to Gallinger Hospital last Thursday.

Arlington County Health officials yesterday reported two new polio cases to bring the year's county total to 29. They are: a 24-year-old woman of the 600 block of S. Barton st., Arlington, admitted to Fort Belvoir Hospital September 26, and a 29-year-old woman of the 2800 block of S. Buchanan st., Arlington, who entered Gallinger last Friday.

Prince Georges Total Rises

In Prince Georges County the year's county total rose to 59 cases with reports on these two new cases: a 29-year-old woman of the 3200 block of Terrace dr., Silver Hill, admitted to Gallinger, and a 9-year-old boy of the 6600 block of 23rd pl., Hyattsville, who is in Children's Hospital.

Meanwhile, summer vacation for the 5800 children of Wythe County, Va., finally ended yesterday. School opening meant the passing of the peak of the worst polio epidemic in national medical history. This year there were 180 cases and 16 deaths in the town of Wytheville and Wythe County.

M'Arthur Is 'Sought' At 38 Parallel Ave.

BARCELONA, Spain, Oct. 2 (AP). The telephone company announced today it had complied with the anguished requests of 31 residents of an apartment house to please cut off their telephone service.

Hundreds of pranksters called the residents to ask "Is General MacArthur there?"

D. C. Critical Target Area; Mutual Aid Map Is Secret

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The District yesterday was told it is a "critical target area" and a map was sent along to show what parts of Maryland and Virginia should take part in a "mutual aid program."

But the Joint Chiefs of Staff ordered the National Security Resources Board to stamp "restricted" on the map and on others sent to the 48 Governors.

So the District's civil defense boss, Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young, said last night he couldn't tell the press what Maryland or Virginia communities are within the map's mutual aid circle. The circle's radius, between 20 and 50 miles, is a secret, too.

The muddle appeared to be a case of the old conflict between keeping secrets from a possible enemy and yet telling the public all it needs to know to cooperate with a civil defense, or any other, program.

Mutual Aid Program

Young said he'd be glad to say who is in the mutual aid circle if the restriction were lifted. Those communities included are supposed to swap fire, police, medical, engineering and other civil defense equipment in case of an A-bomb blast.

The NSRB map also shows a green circle with a radius of 50 to 150 miles, the mobile support area. Mobile disaster aid equipment—likewise a secret now—would be rushed to Washington, Baltimore, Richmond or any other stricken city in the area.

NSRB said about 67 percent of the American population lives within the 250 critical target areas. Earlier it said there are such areas in all 48 States.

Meeting Set Today

Other developments in civil defense yesterday included:

1. A meeting was called for today at the District Building to consider possible formation of a home guard under National Guard auspices. Brig. Gen. William H. Abendroth, the Guard's commanding officer, said he wants to inform the Commissioners that limited Federal aid in the form of arms and possibly uniforms might be forthcoming for a force of 1000 to 1200 men. But he said he doesn't want to interfere with Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett's plans for a police reserve of 4000. Barrett will take part in the meeting.

2. The District has asked the Federal Communications Commission to assign a channel for use by the civil defense radio system, soon to be set up, according to Herbert A. Friede, the District's communications chief. He said that planning of equipment which may be used is going on pending work from FCC.

3. Civil Defense chiefs from states west of the Mississippi met with NSRB officials in closed session. Today those from the east, including General Young on behalf of the District, will meet. The Nation's mayors will meet on Thursday and Friday to talk civil defense.

GI's $500 of Poker Winnings Blown Away by Mortar Blast

TOKYO, Oct. 2 (AP).—Pfc. William Long almost lost his fortune when a mortar shell landed only 4 feet away from him.

The Nashville, Tenn., soldier was fighting with the Twenty-fourth Regiment near Haman when the shell burst and threw him several feet into the air. Long said five postal orders, totaling $500, were shaken from his jacket pocket. Even though he suffered a leg wound, Long searched for the postal orders right away. He could not find them.

However, when he arrived at Tokyo General Hospital, Long received reassuring word from Lieut. Hugh Sheldon of San Antonio, Tex., a postal officer.

Sheldon assured the soldier duplicate money orders would be issued to him in about 75 days. Long smiled and said, "I'd sure hate to lose that money. It came from the best poker game I ever was in."

150 Reds 'Captured' By 2 Unarmed Planes

TOKYO, Oct. 2 (AP).—Two unarmed observation planes "captured" 150 Red Koreans and six trucks today while dropping surrender leaflets.

Flying low in their T-6S, the pilots spotted the Reds north of Kunsan and dropped the leaflets. The Communists gathered them up and assembled with their hands around some trucks. A small Second Division Infantry patrol rounded up the Reds.

Seoul City Sue Gone When Seoul Is Seized

SEOUL, Korea, Oct. 1 (Delayed) (AP).—Municipal authorities said today no trace of Seoul City Sue, the North Korean woman radio announcer, has been found here.

Her Tokyo Rose-type broadcasts to American troops were stopped before this capital was liberated last week.

No identification of the woman has been made.

Engineers and Seabees Restore Rail Service

TOKYO, Oct 2 (AP).—Army Engineers and Navy Seabees today have put the Inchon-Suwon railroad back in operation.

They repaired 10 engines and 50 miles of track — sometimes working under sniper fire. About 200 cars also were put into service and will be used for freighting supplies from the Inchon beachhead to troops.

Airlift Records Broken As Fast as They're Set

WITH FAR EAST AIR FORCES, Cargo Command, Korea, Oct. 2 (AP). The Far East Air Forces cargo command is breaking its airlift records as fast as it sets them.

Maj. Gen. William H. Tunner, who directs the operation, said today planes on the Japan-Korea run had established another new 24-hour mark of 1306 tons airlifted, including 1064 passengers, up to midnight October 1.

During the previous 24 hours the record total was 1147 tons, including 810 passengers.

Small Fry Hit It Rich In Open Toy Warehouse

DETROIT, Oct. 2 (AP).—About 100 small fry invaded a warehouse today and helped themselves to toy guns, holsters and belts, police reported.

Police seized 14 boys, each about 10 years old, as they left the building. All dropped their toy pistols when they faced the cops. The owner of the warehouse said a large part of equipment worth $16,000 had been taken.

Quality is tangible in these—
Fine Worsted Suits

—because to begin with they are hand-tailored. Oh, hand-tailoring, as a phrase, may not mean too much to you—but it makes a world of difference in the life of your suit. It makes your suit softer, more natural-fitting—more graceful and longer wearing. And if you could pick up one of the suits—crumple it . . . you would see how flexible it is—how it holds its shape better and fits better all because of hand-tailoring. Then if you slipped into the coat—you'd notice the fine feel and soft drape of the handsome imported and domestic fabrics in a variety of clear neat patterns and plain colors. Suits that are in keeping with the Men's Store's high standards of quality.

French Study Plan To Rearm Germans

PARIS, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—French policy makers today studied a new formula for German rearmament that would create four or five West German divisions within the next year.

Although France officially is opposed to German rearmament, some high officers believe it is inevitable and, therefore, are at work on a formula that would set up a five-to-one ratio in the new European army—five Western divisions on the spot for each German authorized.

Officials here stressed that the suggestion still was in the talking stage. They said no decision could be expected until after the return of Foreign Minister Robert Schuman from New York later this week.

Sponsors of the formula say it would have these advantages:

1. A beginning of German rearmament could be made almost immediately since more than five American, British and French divisions now are on occupation duty in western Germany.

2. German military strength would be held to the "safety" level—a political "must" in France.

3. The United States and Britain would be encouraged to build up their occupation forces in Germany quickly.

4. France probably would have to furnish fewer divisions for the minimum European defense force necessary to defend the democratic half of the continent.

Vienna Plot Seen to Seize City Buildings

VIENNA, Austria, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—Communists today were reportedly plotting to occupy public buildings in this capital Wednesday if their scheduled general strike wins enough support in the Western sectors.

American sources said the Communists had a similar plan prepared for last week's riots, but dropped it when they failed to arouse the populace.

Communists in the Soviet occupation zone were expected to halt trains to and from Vienna, as they did last week. The government also ordered emergency measures in event they try to sever telephone and telegraph communications with the Western zones.

Emergency radio circuits have been set up to link Vienna with the West. Vienna, like Berlin, is surrounded by the Soviet occupation zone. And the city is occupied by all four powers.

Austrian police officials conferred with United States, British and French commanders today to plan methods of dealing with the Reds if they repeat last week's violence.

"We are prepared for all eventualities," a ranking interior ministry official said after the conference.

Birthday Plea

Hull Urges Fiery Spirit Of Liberty

CORDELL HULL
. . . A birthday portrait

By The Associated Press

Cordell Hull urged the world's free nations yesterday to "get on fire with the spirit of liberty" and maintain a constant vigil against Soviet aggression.

The former Secretary of State, 79 years old yesterday, warned that unless there is "wise leadership" the Korean war may prove to be only a "skirmish" in a long-drawn-out conflict.

"Grave difficulties and dangers still confront us on all sides," he said in a birthday statement.

"But I am certain that with time and patience, and with devotion and sacrifice on the part of the free nations, the United Nations will steadily grow in strength and capacity to fulfill its central function, the preservation of international peace and security."

In talking with newsmen, Hull declined comment directly on the proposed creation of an international army to defend western Europe.

He said, however, that he thought the United Nations has shown "great diligence in taking steps for defense and for safeguarding world order under law before it is too late."

The veteran statesman went on to say it is tremendously important for the free nations to "pull themselves together and get on the double alert and stay there."

The non-Communist countries, he said, should "get on fire with the spirit of liberty as we used to do."

Hull, who resigned as Secretary of State in November, 1944, has largely recovered his health after a long illness. For some months, he has been able to receive friends and to leave his apartment in a Washington hotel almost daily for an automobile drive or a walk.

German Red Leaders Face 'Riot' Trials

FRANKFURT, Germany, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—West German Communists nursed bruises today after yesterday's long-ballyhooed "show of strength" failed. British officials said the weakness of the demonstrations "practically marked the finish of the West German Communist Party.

The Reds had boasted they would muster 200,000 militant demonstrators. Fewer than 20,000 turned out. Except for a tussle in Hamburg, the Communists proved an uninspired lot.

The jail doors swung open today to free most of the more than 1200 Reds seized Saturday and Sunday, but German officials promised that the leaders will be tried for "resistance against the state."

Hamburg city officials said the "majority" of the 130 Reds arrested there during a three-hour free-for-all with police will be held for trial, several on the "resistance" charge, which can send them to prison for five years.

[The Associated Press reported that Friedrich Dettmann, leader of the Hamburg Communist Party, was arrested at his party headquarters, charged with having organized and participated in yesterday's riots here in which 16 policemen were injured. He will appear in court Tuesday.]

East Sector Votes Asked On All-Berlin Elections

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—The leaders of the three major political parties of West Berlin today appealed to the population of the Soviet sector of the city to take part in a secret plebiscite demanding free elections all over Berlin.

The appeal, issued by the Social Democratic, Christian Democratic and Free Democratic Parties two weeks before a scheduled election in the Soviet zone of Germany, coincided with an announcement that the Communist Volkspolizei (People's Police) have arrested 13 anti-Communist Berliners in the last few days.

An estimated 600,000 voters in Eastern Berlin were urged in today's appeal to show their desire for free elections by crossing over to western Berlin and mailing the stub of their September ration cards to the western Berlin city hall.

The plebiscite will begin Tuesday and go on for a week.

Canadian Dollar Up Almost Four Cents

By The Associated Press

The Canadian dollar gained nearly four cents in terms of the United States dollar in New York yesterday in the first day's trading since it was cut loose to find its own level.

Both buying and selling of Canadian currency were reported extremely heavy as traders sought to outguess each other on where the Canadian dollar will stabilize.

The range was 94½ to .94¾ cents in terms of United States dollars, compared with the former pegged rate of 91 cents and Friday's closing of 90⅞. Earlier in the day, the Canadian dollar had sold as low as 92½ cents.

In Toronto and Montreal the range was 93 to 95 cents, and in London, the Bank of England announced new Canadian dollar rates that were equivalent to 96.6 cents in United States money.

The unpegging of the Canadian dollar was announced Saturday while the markets were in week-end recess. The action was taken to head off inflation because of the heavy influx of United States dollars into Canada.

The flood of United States funds into Canada has been partly speculative—in the belief the Government might restore parity between the currencies. And part was due to recovery of the Canadian economy since last year's 10 percent devaluation.

The activity in Canadian currency came amid rumors that Britain might revise the value of the pound upward, and that similar moves might be planned by Australia.

The Montreal stock market reacted with losses at Monday's opening—particularly in newsprint stocks—but recovered to regain most of the lost ground and in some stocks to show net gains.

Meantime the United States Post Office today stopped issuing money orders payable in Canada pending further notice. A Post Office official said the action was taken because of the developments involving the Canadian Dollar.

Suspension of money orders to Canada was decided upon, the Post Office official said, "to protect this Government's interest" until the effect of the Canadian Dollar change can be studied.

Youth Court Established In Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Oct. 2 (Spl.).—A new Youth Court was instituted here today to give criminal offenders from 16 through 20 a better chance at rehabilitation.

Under a plan adopted by the Supreme Bench, all criminal cases involving youths in that age group will be tried in Part III of Baltimore's Criminal Court.

Whenever possible, offenders will be paroled in the custody of their parents or other responsible parents instead of awaiting trial in jail. A court spokesman said that special emphasis will be placed on probation investigations of youthful offenders. They will also receive thorough medical and psychiatric examinations.

"We hope," said the spokesman, "to make a greater use of the law which permits 'probation without verdict of guilty' in order that some young offenders may not be stigmatized by a criminal record."

In Baltimore, Juvenile Court handles offenders only 15 and younger.

Six Area Booths For Symphony Tickets Set Up

The National Symphony Orchestra yesterday announced that six ticket booths have been set up in metropolitan Washington for the convenience of subscribers who find it impossible to make their season's reservations at the Kitt Music Co.

The booths are maintained through the courtesy of the various business concerns and manned by volunteer symphony workers.

The booths are located at Peoples Drug Store, Chevy Chase; Frank R. Jelleff's in Shirlington; the main store and Silver Spring store of The Hecht Co.; Chequire House, Alexandria, and Frank Mulgannon's Music Store, Silver Spring.

Boy Plunges 10 Floors When Sheet Rope Parts

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 2 (U.P.).—A 15-year-old boy was injured fatally today when he plunged from the tenth floor of the Jersey City Medical Center while trying to escape on a rope of sheets.

The boy, William Michaels, was arrested Friday in connection with a robbery. He was being held in the medical center pending his return to the Catholic Protectory, a reform school at Arlington, N. J., from which he had fled.

Labor Party Parley Begins; First Day Session Proves Dull

MARGATE, England, Oct. 2 (NYHT).—The forty-ninth annual conference of the British Labor Party got off to a slow start today, reflecting a general uneasiness in the party about its delicate political position and the tense world situation.

With most of the conference's excitement expected Wednesday, delegates went through the motions of criticizing the government administration of nationalized industries, but only a few delegates were even mildly interested in the question of how the industries are being run.

Bevin to Speak

Party leaders, however, expect more spirited debates when the party's election policy is discussed Wednesday and the government's foreign policy is debated Thursday. Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin is scheduled to wind up the foreign policy debate and may make some important observations about British policy in Korea.

In today's debate on the administration of nationalized industries, the conference heard demands for a drastic overhaul of the Central Board that runs the industries and a 50 percent cut in the interest paid on government stocks to former stockholders in order to relieve the industries of these financial burdens.

Criticism of the interest rates was defeated on the plea of Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, who argued that any change would be a breach of the government's original agreement with the former private owners and would undermine the country's financial credit.

Tax Hike Hinted

Mr. Morrison hinted, however, that the government might do something else — perhaps raise taxes on interests and dividends—in order to lessen the burden on the nationalized industries.

But one of the main arguments of the critics—that too many opponents of socialism have been appointed to the nationalized boards—was not answered by the party's leaders.

The debate on the administration of nationalized industries was choked off when some one moved "the previous question"—a parliamentary device for wiping out the whole issue. This was carried by a majority of nearly one million and indicated that the big bloc votes of the more powerful trade unions would have defeated the critics anyway.

Fort Meade Soldier Is Charged With Raping Woman, 40

A 23-year-old Fort Meade soldier was charged yesterday with committing rape on a 40-year-old woman about 12:30 a. m. Saturday on the military reservation.

The man, Corpl. James L. Farrar of Clifton Forge, Va., assigned to the 2101st Army Service Unit, was turned over to the United States marshal in Baltimore since the Army is not permitted to try rape or murder cases within the United States, a Fort Meade spokesman said.

The victim's condition is listed as good at the Fort Meade hospital. The spokesman said she was beaten, choked and raped.

Farrar told Army investigators, they said, that he had been acquitted of two previous rape charges in 18 months—one as a civilian and the other as a soldier. He has been in the Army less than a year.

New Voters Will Register Today in Nearby Maryland

Registration books in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties will be opened today to qualify new voters for the general elections November 7.

In Montgomery, the books will remain open through Saturday. Prospective voters may register daily from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. at the office of the Board of Election Supervisors in Rockville. On Saturday the office will close at 5 p. m. and reopen from 6 to 10 p. m.

A special board of registry will sit in the Silver Spring Armory from 2 to 5 p. m. and from 6 to 10 p. m. today only.

Residents of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area may register Thursday at the Bethesda County Building from 2 to 5 p. m. and from 6 to 10 p. m.

In Prince Georges, all 47 polling places will be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. today to register new voters. A final registration day will be held on October 10 at the same times and places.

Voting qualifications are one year's residence in the State and six months in the county.

TV Color Unit Hit As Possibly Useless

By The Associated Press

The Zenith Corp. said yesterday FCC's recent decision on color television might require new set-buyers to pay 200 million dollars a year for equipment "which may never be used."

That was Zenith's answer to the Federal Communications Commission's September 1 call on manufacturers for a quick change in television receiver design.

The request was made in connection with the agency's tentative selection of Columbia Broadcastings Color system for general use. The proposed change in receivers would enable future sets to tune in CBS color signals in black and white as well as current standard televising. The commission suggested the change be made within 30 days.

Time Too Short

Most manufacturers have replied that set designs can not be revised on short notice. Some have offered to cooperate with changed production early next year. Others have asked FCC to further study the whole color picture and there has been talk of taking the matter into the courts unless this is done.

Zenith, which has headquarters in Chicago, told FCC in a statement that the proposed dual tuning switch for new sets could be put in perhaps by next May 1, but that this will add from $30 to $40 to each retail price tag.

"This is a severe penalty for the public to pay," said the company. "The switch may never be needed. At the present rate of sales, the cost to the public might be as much as 200 million dollars a year for a feature which may never be used."

Other manufacturers statements received yesterday expressed these viewpoints:

Magnovox of Fort Wayne, Ind.—The proposal "involves a complete redesign of present receivers" which cannot be done this year.

Tele-tone, New York City—The commission should make a definite, not a tentative choice, so that set-makers could avoid the addition of possibly "valueless" equipment to their product.

"High Price" for Color

Emerson, New York City—Any changeover will require "months rather than days." The company said FCC's request comes at a time when 80 percent of its engineering talent has been assigned to production for the armed forces.

Trans-Vision, New Rochelle, N. Y.—"Your proposal asks a high price for color TV. If, with the vast pool of technical people engaged in this work, a compatible color system cannot be introduced without affecting present subscribers (TV users), we feel that no color system at all should be commercialized.

Sentinel, Evanston, Ill—Willing to change over, but this will take 8 to 10 months and will add $35 to $50 to the cost of each set.

Stewart Warner, Chicago—Working on it but it cannot be done in the suggested time.

Lewis, professor of urology at Georgetown, (with his back to camera, at left) performs an operation yesterday morning at Gallinger which was telecast in color to members of the District of Columbia Medical Society in session at the Statler Hotel. In foreground, television cameraman uses special color camera to record the operation. The telecast was not received by the public

Va. Mental Care Criticized

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 2 (AP).—Given proper care, more than half of Virginia's mental patients could be returned to normal living within 3 to 6 months, according to Dr. Joseph E. Barrett.

"As matters stand now, less than 40 percent of our entering patients recover within the average period of a year," the State Commissioner of Mental Hygiene and Hospitals said in a magazine article published today.

"All too often too many of them stay on for years," he added, "often growing worse rather than better, remaining in the care of the Commonwealth to the end of their lives, simply because we have not given them the care we could give if we had the space, and the equipment, and the trained people that are necessary for that care."

But the State's mental hospitals do not have those things, because they "lack the money to pay for them," Barrett said.

The Commissioner's article appeared in the initial issue of "Mental Health in Virginia," a new monthly published today by the State Health Department and the Mental Hygiene Society of Virginia.

Barrett noted the 1950 General Assembly's appropriation of $14,303,905 for the current biennium allows the hospitals to spend $1.54 per day per patient.

After physical upkeep of the patients, he said, this leaves 75 cents a day per patient for salaries of personnel—"from furnace-tenders and garbage collectors to the highly trained medical men who superintend the hospitals, all salaries must come out of that daily allowance."

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Woman Found Alive; Lost 5 Days in Woods

GLADWIN, Mich., Oct. 2 (AP).—Mrs. Mary Anne Roberts, 86, was found today alive—but weak and hungry—in a woods where she had been lost for more than five days.

Two high school boys, part of a searching party of 300, found the woman almost unconscious. Dr. K. D. Koulter said Mrs. Roberts will apparently recover. She wandered away from her home last Tuesday evening.

Crusade For Freedom

The Crusade for Freedom, inaugurated with appropriate ceremonies in Washington yesterday, will afford an opportunity long sought by great numbers of Americans to raise their voices affirmatively in support of principles to which they are devoted. A signature on the Freedom Scroll is not an empty gesture; it is an attestation to the unity of free men. A contribution to the operation of Radio Free Europe will be a direct means of making that unity effective; it will help in carrying the ideas of freedom into the vast Soviet zone where these ideas are being systematically debased and distorted.

Gen. Lucius Clay, who heads the national Crusade for Freedom, observed at first hand during his long tour of duty in Germany the eagerness with which men and women inside the Soviet zone listened to voices from the free world. He observed, too, the limitations of the Voice of America speaking under the handicap of Government sponsorship. Radio Free America supplements the State Department's official "Voice" and fills a vital need discerned by General Clay. Sponsored and supported by millions of individual Americans, it will be able to speak to the millions to whom liberty is now no more than a hope. By nourishing that hope, it will help it one day to come alive. And thus it will play a significant role in the promotion of an enduring peace based on freedom.

NLRB Counsel

President Truman appears to have taken a sensible middle course in replacing Robert N. Denham, who was recently forced out as general counsel to the National Labor Relations Board. His new appointee, George J. Bott, was brought to Washington by Mr. Denham as associate general counsel in charge of field operations. At the same time he appears to have the capacity of working with the board, and board members are said to be pleased over his selection. Certainly his 13 years of experience with the board, his training as a trial lawyer and his work in the courts are assets of great importance in his new assignment.

Mr. Bott has made a good beginning by saying that he will prosecute any case that "fits into the statute"—the Taft-Hartley Act. His job, he says, is to enforce the law to the best of his ability. Apparently this means an even-handed administration with scrupulous fairness to both employers and unions accused of violating the law. Mr. Bott has a delicate task of maintaining his independence so far as the prosecution of cases under the T-H Act is concerned and of working with the board in presenting its appeal to the courts for enforcement of its rulings. The schizophrenic nature of his job will be a severe test of his mettle. Fortunately, there are many indications that he has the sagacity and balance as well as the experience that the assignment calls for.

Anti-Inflation Generals

The President's delay in getting the new Economic Stabilization Agency into operation is said to be due to the reluctance of several men experienced in this field to take the responsibility for working out an anti-inflation policy. Mr. Truman announced his order setting up the stabilization agency in his address to the Nation on September 10. He spoke with a sense of urgency. In addition to producing the goods essential for defense and paying as we go, he said, "We must hold the cost of living steady, and keep down the cost of defense items." There is no reason to believe that the President's sense of urgency is waning, but the fact remains that three weeks have passed without action.

Two tasks of vast importance await the naming of a stabilization administrator. First, he is supposed to go to work on what the President described as "present danger spots." This means that he would sit down with industrialists, businessmen and labor chiefs to see what can be done on a voluntary basis to halt rising prices of vital items in the defense program and in the housewife's market basket. Second, he is supposed to begin work on a longer-range program to hold prices in line. With the cost of living still rising, the urgency of both these steps scarcely needs to be underlined.

Under the Economic Stabilization Agency will be a director of price stabilization and a wage stabilization board. The director will be dependent on these units, of course, for the spade work essential to the formulation of an over-all policy. But these positions, too, are still vacant, although the President is said to have asked Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation Service, to head the new wage board. The difficulty of finding precisely the right man for these tough assignments ought not to be minimized. Yet the fact remains that the inflationary spiral waits upon nothing.

This is not a time in which men should feel free to serve their Government or not as they choose. The economic emergency will not disappear with the end of the fighting in Korea. Commitments already made project the straining of our economy at least several years into the future. Some of the best brains in the Nation will be needed to avert disastrous inflation while we move toward full utilization of our resources. The country has a right to call upon men of the highest caliber for these assignments with the expectation that they will respond.

More Steel

Secretary Sawyer's announcement that the steel industry will through its own resources add 9,400,000 tons to its productive capacity by the end of 1952 is another indication of the adaptability of American industry. Production now stands at slightly over 100 million tons a year. Two weeks ago the talk was of raising this by five million tons. It was evident, however, that such expansion would not nearly meet increased military demand. Undoubtedly the fact that the Government under the Defense Production Act has authority to build needed plants if private industry doesn't build them has had the effect of nudging the steelmakers into the new position. It is noteworthy that the expansion will be financed by the industry itself, and not through governmental loans authorized by the Defense Production Act.

How much additional steel the defense program will require is still problematical. Recently President Fairless of U. S. Steel estimated that the demand might run to 12 million tons annually, or 12 percent of present capacity. Other estimates are more modest, in the vicinity of eight million tons. In any case, however, until the new facilities are in operation—and probably thereafter—the drain on steel supplies available for civilian use is going to be substantial, for it takes only a slight shortage to cause tightness. Even before the outbreak of the Korean war steel shortages were already in evidence—this despite an increase in capacity of several million tons since World War II. To date military use is taking only from 1 to 3 percent of steel production. As this amount rises, civilians will have to get along with fewer new automobiles, houses and other goods that require large quantities of steel.

Precisely because there will be this conflict between military and civilian demand, the National Production Authority order giving priorities on production and plant capacity to the military is necessary. This should not be license, however, for the military to commandeer steel indiscriminately. Military needs must come first, of course; but how smoothly those needs can be met will be largely a matter of timing. If military orders can be spaced to coincide with the actual expansion of defense production, there will be less chance of aggravating the civilian steel shortage artificially.

It is also a question whether the new capacity target is enough, in view of the normal needs of the expanding civilian economy as well as the additional military demand. The defense program is a long-range affair which will require steel for a long time to come, if not permanently. Till recently the steel industry had been reluctant to add to capacity for fear of a business recession, though this attitude seems all but gone. Of course, scarce materials, including steel itself, are required to build new steel plants; and labor shortages, already troublesome, will be made worse by diverting workers from production of steel for current use to production for future use. The requirements of other strategic industries that are planning to expand their plant capacity also have to be considered in insuring a balanced increase in over-all productive facilities that will best serve the interests of the country. In short, none of these expansion programs can be viewed as an isolated problem, and the work of coordinating them will be difficult indeed.

In any event, the power of the Government to stimulate expanded production in essential basic industries is clear. It is encouraging that through this carrot-and-stick process steel has elected to undertake the expansion on its own. This stride, which certainly is not excessive in light of the prospect for continued demand, seems to give assurance against any extension of Government ownership or nationalization in the steel industry.

McMillan's Three Hours

Representative McMillan's boast that the House of Representatives took only three hours to pass 29 District bills at its last session is obviously designed to offset the criticism that Congress wastes too much time acting as a city council. Much of the steam behind the District home-rule bill, still bottled up in the House District Committee of which Mr. McMillan is chairman, has come from legislators who see the folly of using a 69-billion-dollar Congress to pass local ordinances. A study by a previous House District Committee showed that approximately 3000 congressional man-hours were required to handle legislation for the Capital City in the first regular session of the Eightieth Congress. Mr. McMillan's effort to discredit that finding by referring to three hours of floor time is like trying to compare elephants to humming birds. Even so, if all the members of the House had been on the floor during the three hours given to District bills, they would account for 1305 man-hours.

Nor can we overlook the fact that the three hours Mr. McMillan speaks of did not include the time taken for passage of District appropriations—the most important action of Congress in behalf of the District. Of course, it did not include the time spent by legislators in District Committee meetings or the much greater time given to interviews with District residents seeking enactment of local measures. In other words, the District Committee chairman has given us an utterly distorted estimate of the time that members of the House give to District affairs.

But suppose we take him at his word. Is it conceivable that any member of the House could be happy over the discussion and passage of 29 pieces of District legislation in three hours? Some of these measures dealt with relatively complicated local problems. In passing these bills in an average of a little more than six minutes the House as a whole could not possibly have known the details of what it was enacting. This is not legislating. It amounts only to running through the legislative mill measures approved by the District Committee, which itself meets only about once a month. The imagined advantage of having Congress for a city council is exploded by the fact that most local bills get only casual attention from legislators with little or no background of information about District affairs. To our way of thinking, Mr. McMillan has demonstrated in a most pointed fashion the need for transferring the control over local policy from Congress to an elected city council.

War Crimes In Korea

Senator Taft is one of many who have called for punishment of the Communist leaders responsible for the invasion of South Korea. It is safe to assume that the desire to have stern justice meted out to these aggressors is almost universal in the free world. But whether that is feasible is another question. The strong probability is that the men who have been in power at Pyongyang will flee to Russia or China before the war is over in Korea. There they would be beyond the reach of any military tribunal that might be set up. And, of course, the men really responsible for this latest aggression are in the Kremlin itself.

There are other reasons why it is neither feasible nor wise to emulate the war criminal trials in Germany and Japan. We must remember that the International Military Tribunal at Nuernberg was created by agreement among the victorious powers. They were free to set up the rules by which they would abide and to carry out the judgments of their temporary tribunal. In Korea the situation is very different. The United Nations is responsible for the military operations and for the making of peace. The U. N. has no tribunal for the punishment of war criminals and there is no provision in the Charter for creation of such a court. The Nuernberg precedent would undoubtedly carry much weight with any group of victorious powers acting in concert, but it does not seem to us to be a precedent for the U. N. in the absence of any machinery for handling such cases.

The Korean war broke out while the International Law Commission created by the General Assembly of the U. N. was in the process of formulating the Nuernberg principles and drafting a code of offenses against the peace and security of mankind. More recently the commission has made a report restating these principles and pointing to the desirability of setting up an international judicial body to which war crimes cases and charges arising under the genocide convention could be referred. The actual drafting of a code of offenses against the peace and security of mankind remains to be completed, however, and when finished it will need approval by the Assembly and the individual nations before it can become effective. Obviously this means that it will be of no value in dealing with the war criminals in Korea.

As a practical matter, therefore, it appears that the victorious forces in Korea will have to be satisfied with depriving the Pyongyang gang of the right to participation in the unified government to be set up and with punishment of individuals guilty of atrocities under Korean law or the laws of war.

Rich Land, Poor Land

Senator Byrd was talking in fiscal terms when he accused the Federal Government of squandering "the greatest prosperity ever to come to any nation." Whether "the height of governmental irresponsibility" has been reached in the assumption of "new burdens at home and abroad" depends upon your politics, and upon the weight given to need in terms of security or social necessity. But, apart from the niceties of budget balancing, there is another way in which this country's wealth has been slipping away—in natural resources.

Real wealth is not money, but goods and services, resources and productive capacity. While the United States is enjoying the world's highest standard of living, while it is straining its muscles in its defense effort, it is depleting many of its resources. Iron ore is an example. First-class ore from Minnesota's fabulous Mesabi range is virtually gone, and though there are large supplies of taconite available there, the extraction of ore from taconite is much more costly and might disturb the delicate balance of steel production facilities. Ingenuity will no doubt devise new methods and synthetics for some of the diminishing resources, and new supplies may be tapped in other lands. But there is no substitute for such things as soil, which is still being mined and washed away, or for vanished forests which once protected watersheds. As the United States exhausts its natural endowment, it becomes poorer in the absolute sense, whatever the financial books show.

Indian Parable

Prime Minister Nehru is one of the chief proponents of the plan to evict the Chinese Nationalists from the Security Council and to seat the Chinese Communists. He has many and persuative arguments in favor of his plan.

Mr. Nehru would be the first to admit, I think, that living conditions for the people of India are still tragic, and that poverty, ignorance, famine and disease could provide as fertile a field for communism in India as it has in China.

In order to bring closer to home Mr. Nehru's arguments for the admission of the Red Chinese into the United Nations, let us assume that, through infiltration and agitation in Afghanistan and in India, Russia will be able to build up strong Communist movements in both those troubled countries. With a Russian Army poised on the Russo-Afghan border, it will be easy to bring about a Communist coup d'etat in Afghanistan. Following the familiar pattern, Indian Communist guerillas will seize northern India. Indian Communist armies, trained and supplied by Russia, will be fighting the Nehru forces.

Meanwhile, in this country and in Great Britain, so-called "liberals" will sing the Russian-written theme song—that there is corruption in the Indian Congress Party which Nehru heads (as there is) and that the Communist movement in India is a "reform movement" with bold plans to combat famine and disease. Loud voices will be raised against interference in an "Indian civil war." Our Government may be expected to listen to these half-truths and, together with Britain, to withdraw all support—military, economic and moral—from the pariah, Nehru. The Indian Communists, with all-out support from the Kremlin, will soon drive Nehru and the remnants of his army into exile.

Will Mr. Nehru then advocate the expulsion of his representatives from the United Nations and the admission, in their place, of the representatives of Red India?

If we are to follow the Nehru leadership in our Asian foreign policy, as the State Department seems inclined to do, let us hope that Mr. Nehru decides, before it is too late, which is the real threat to Asia today—the dead bogey of "Western colonialism" or the vicious, aggressive Communist tyranny that may yet turn his India into a slave state serving Red Russia.

"Lower Octane"

Your September 29 editorial about lower octane gas is fine. But you don't realize how the taxpayers have been gold-bricked. Grain alcohol—produced in facilities owned by the Government, using grain surpluses also paid for by us, the taxpayers, should have been used a long time ago to raise gasoline octane content. Now motorists have to take it on the chin because of the peculiar rulings of the powers-that-be.

Congressional committees took evidence proving that alcohol can be mixed with gas and raise the octane. Instead of doing something constructive the rulers of our tax-paid-for properties ordered the Government-owned alcohol facilities to be liquidated and scrapped or sold for a song, and refused to allow surplus grains, also paid for by us, the taxpayers, to be used in making alcohol.

Now I notice the Government is going to have the oil people put in more facilities. Who is going to pay for that? How about using some brains and surplus grains to employ the properties we already own to make octane alcohol?

Subversive Bill

Since the Communists have served notice that they won't register under the anti-Red bill because they do not believe in subversion it is imperative, if we want to make the new law effective, to find all those who believe in subversion.

The Honorable Pat McCarran and no less Honorable Karl E. Mundt have denounced the Kilgore concentration camp bill as subversive and the Kilgore faction called the McCarran bill subversive. These two subversive bills were combined into one and called by its collective name "anti-subversive." But any teen-ager will swear that one subversive plus one subversive equal two subversives, even if we should shout ourselves hoarse calling them one antisubversive until doomsday.

Hence the only alternative remains for all those who had anything to do with the two subversive bills to register as such with the Justice Department.

Drafting Veterans

As a veteran I find it necessary to tell General Hershey to go jump in the Potomac. Just what does he mean by that crack about veterans who are now 25 not seeing any service? For the general's information many men like myself were inducted at the age of 18 and are, like myself, now 25. When I was 18 the year was 1943.

The general implies that the war was practically over in 1943. The Battle of the Bulge, Iwo Jima, Okinawa, and many other of the worst and most bloody battles of the last war were fought after 1943.

If veterans must be drafted why not draft veterans who were drafted after 1945 or who spent less than 90 days in the service? Mr. Hershey should also consider drafting those who were exempted from the last war to do war work in the factories or on the farms.

Mixed Colleges

I'm so weary of reading about local race prejudice and discrimination! Why can't the Negro realize that prejudice is here to stay. But if he must go to a mixed college why not let the trashy college alone and go to Yale, Harvard, Columbia or Dartmouth where he is admitted if not welcomed? MERTON CURTISS.

Life In Communist China

The following letter was sent from Peking on August 5 by Alice Huggins, for 30 years a teacher in North China.

"The biggest success of the people's government has been in the field of finance where Chiang's failed so abominably. Inflation was so bad, and has continued so long, that it looked as though these folks could not possibly halt it, but they have not only done so, but in the face of continued crop failures have got prices down and kept them there. Every other department of the government is acting with equal efficiency.

"In this section, redistribution of the land has been finished and now all effort is directed toward more production. All over the country the government has taken charge of public health: everything from giving shots to training personnel. In transportation, bridges and tracks and other equipment are being restored and added to at a most amazing rate. Everything happen at once, not just plans as in former days, but accomplishment. This is most true of all in the field of education which is one of the government's most important concerns.

"It's along the line of the prospect for both personal and social improvement that the Communists have their greatest appeal. They promise everything that Christianity can except heaven, and almost any Chinese is willing to waive that. And they promise these improvements lots faster. That's one of the most successful criticisms of Christianity here, that it's too slow.

"One of the cleverest things this government does is to keep everybody so busy he's too tired to think. They are strong on songs and plays. The songs, which at school are our music, are of the rousing variety that are yelled rather than sung. Dramatic practice is on our daily schedule. For the least possible excuse, a celebration is announced, and extra plays and songs are prepared, along with original variations of the new rustic dances, enough to make a meeting that sometimes lasts till 3 or 4 in the morning.

"In addition to these, there are group discussions about everything, and slow, slow 'meetings' about current events, where each individual is urged to say out loud everything he can think of, and the whole crowd sits and waits until he has done it. The most amazing amount of unimportant opinion can be aired in this way, and no meeting lasts less than three hours.

"I don't set myself up to solve complicated international problems, but I'm sorry to say I don't think Mr. Truman and his pals are equal to the parts they are trying to play in world affairs.

"Russia uses psychology. She does only those things which are friendly. She advertises herself as China's best friend, which she is, at the moment. She preaches world peace, in season and out of season. She is the proponent of peace—you'd have thought she invented it—and of democracy, which gives the little man a chance, and the poor a living. China longs for these things, and Russia promises them. She says America stands for war. Meanwhile, America comes along behind and confirms everything Russia says. America talks war, and openly prepares for war. Out here, America is the proponent of war and imperialism, and as such is getting more unpopular every day, and she's doing it to herself.

"The most absurd thing of all—if it weren't so tragic—is our theory that we can fight ideas with guns, or surround them by building a wall around them. I once spent two years behind the 'impregnable' fortress of Corregidor, which proved useless in actual war. The Japanese just went around it. America is now fighting ideas, and they can go around any military defenses we invent even more easily than the Japanese went around Corregidor.

"Another fallacy is that you can buy friendship. Out here the people are told that America gives help either for the purpose of buying people's hearts, or for making trade so she can make money. And then on the American radio somebody is heard urging Americans to give their extra food to China. And the reason given backs up the propaganda: it's to win the Chinese to the American side in the cold war.

"It's still necessary to recognize the people's government of China, to get it into the United Nations, and to seek every possible means of getting closer together instead of always farther apart. But this has to begin at that end. You'll have to be friendly first."

Inflation Blow To Savings

By Mark Sullivan

$60 For $100

THAT inflation is no longer merely a danger, that it is a present fact, is officially and candidly recognized by the Federal Reserve Board. With great usefulness to the public, the board goes further in candor. Having been set up as an independent Government agency, not subject to whatever Administration might be in power, the board is free from political motives. Having this immunity, the board is free to mention aspects of inflation which the Administration, might prefer not to call attention to.

In the board's current monthly bulletin is a balanced and objective survey of recent developments in agriculture. In it, frank mention is made of Government support of crop prices for farmers as a factor in inflation, and of wage raises for labor as another factor.

These two, labor and farmers, are groups who get present advantage from inflation. They are also groups to which the Truman Administration has deferred and from which Mr. Truman has asked gratitude. There is another group—in fact not a group at all but the whole of the people—who suffer disadvantage. These are the consumers, who in buying food must pay artificially high prices brought about and kept up by Government price support, and in buying manufactured goods must pay high prices brought about by wage raises.

COINCIDING with consumers, and likewise practically the whole of the people, is a group which suffers a special and calamitous detriment. These are savers who put present savings into securities and institutions from which they are to be returned at a future date. Characteristic groups of these are persons who put their savings into life insurance policies or are beneficiaries of them, or into the familiar Government savings bonds or into pension funds with a fixed date and amount.

The detriment these suffer through inflation is depreciation of the purchasing power of their saved dollars. The dollar they save in the present becomes, when it is returned to them some years in the future, less than a dollar in purchasing power. The experience many savers have had is stated clearly and racily by economist columnist Sylvia Porter of the New York Post and Post-Hall Syndicate.

"Let's say you invested $75 in a United States saving bond 10 years ago; let's say you turn in that bond today for $100. On paper, that looks just dandy. But in terms of your buying power in the corner store, your $100 bond is worth less than $60. What's more . . . you're increasingly aware that you took a terrific kick in the pocketbook between 1940 and 1950 . . ."

WHAT HAS taken place in the case of savings bond owners has been the experience also of persons who put their savings into life insurance or into other securities of this type. Putting a dollar into savings 10 years ago, they in effect put in a dollar's worth of goods at the prices of that time—food, or wearing apparel, or building material or what not. When 10 years later they got the dollar back, they got only about 60 percent of the amount they put in.

This not only has been an individual hardship to many millions of savers, it contains also a danger of national calamity to the country's economy. The danger is that savers who have had this experience may come to doubt the worthwhileness of saving at all. If there is continuation of the rise in prices that goes with inflation, savers may come to think they would do better to put their money into goods. There is an ominous hint of this possibility in the recent experience of the Federal Treasury in selling savings bonds and of the public in buying them. During a period of several months recently, the amount of new bonds bought by the people has been less than the amount that came to maturity or were turned in for redemption.

The existing inflation justifies the warning description of it by Chairman McCabe of the Federal Reserve Board as a "cancerous sore," the most pressing domestic problem the country has. For meeting the problem adequately the responsibility of the Administration is very heavy. Governmental policies it has followed, such as price support of farm crops, are in large part responsible for the inflation. And because the Government solicits the people to save and to lend its savings to the Government in the form of savings bonds, there is a special responsibility. This is not adequately met by returning to the saver the number of dollars he loaned, as the Government will always do. Adequate living up to the responsibility includes seeing that the purchasing power of the savers' dollars be protected.

Day For Animals

In 1928 a worker in Czechoslovakia originated an idea which was titled "World Day for Animals." October 4 was chosen as the day celebrated to commemorate the birthday of St. Francis of Assisi, whose kindness to animals has become a legend and a challenge.

Man is likely to become more brotherly to his fellowman as he becomes more thoughtful and kindly to those fellow creatures which may be looked upon as his younger brothers. There are two ways of helping the animal kingdom. One is to help abolish all those cruelties which now are rampant in connection with it. What those cruelties are each can see for himself both by thinking and by observing. The second method—and both are necessary—is to practice active kindness.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Second Korean War?

WHAT HAS happened since the recapture of Seoul does not make it look as if peace in Korea were very near at hand. Open warfare of the Western classic type is probably over. It has ended in a swift and brilliant strategic victory. But almost certainly this orthodox war is to be followed, as Mr. Walter Sullivan contends, by guerilla war. If that is the ca then it may be a very long ti before a United Korean gove ment can be established. It m be an unpleasantly long t before the American troops be relieved, and before e American military commitm in Korea can be reduced to more reasonable size.

Lippman

THIS IS a somber view, at there is little to offset it.

This first impressive inva tion came when the U. N. fo es from the beachhead made ir junction with the troops om Inchon-Seoul. This meant all the rules of orthodox wa re that a large number of mmunist divisions in southwest Korea were cut off. In a w of the Western type they w in a trap and we should be hring about the capture of large mbers of them.

There have been no orts of a large bag of prisone and there are many report that these divisions, which recently had been threaten to break into our beachhead have put on civilian clothes and have disappeared into the vages. The troops from the no are said to have been carryin their civilian clothes with the using these clothes, it would eem, to infiltrate during th open fighting and now to di pear when the open fighti has ceased.

The apparent disappearance of such a large army wo also suggest that they have found sympathizers in the So Korean villagers.

WE MUST, I think, ll say "apparent" because it ay be just possible that the no of a large bag of prisoners been unreported during the t few days owing to the more exciting news at Seoul and th thirty-eighth parallel. But if e bulk of the North Korean forces, though defeated and circled, have not been captured t have disappeared, it is a sign guerilla warfare to come.

In northern Korea ith its 500 miles of common frontier against Communist Ch a, the task of rounding up and subduing guerilla bands uld be very formidable indeed might well prove to be more formidable than anything the French have faced in Indo-China.

Yet we must realize that the behavior of the Communist soldiers inside Korea fits exactly and ominously with what the Peiping radio, the Moscow press, and Mr. Chou En-lai in his speech, have been saying. They have been predicting the continuation of the war by guerilla tactics, and they have virtually announced their intention to support the guerillas.

THE U. N. has almost no plans, certainly none well prepared in advance, and it has taken almost no measures for dealing with the situation. The problem is not, as so many in this country appear to think, whether we can or should step across the thirty-eighth parallel. The real problem is not how to get into North Korea. It is how, once in, to get out again. What we need to think about is whether, once American troops are deep into North Korea, there will be any honorable way of not continuing to use them to occupy the main cities and to fight a guerilla war.

Nobody in his senses wants the flower of the American Army to remain in Korea. But once the Americans become engaged in the occupation and the policing of any part of Korea where there is no legitimate and recognized Korean government, just how do we disengage them again?

THEORETICALLY we disengage them by having them replaced by other U. N. troops—preferably troops from Asian countries and from the smaller European and South American nations. But the assembling of such an heterogeneous force would take time, and little is likely to come of it unless the leadership of the whole undertaking is given promptly by India and if the hard core of the U. N. forces is a sizable contingent of troops from India and Pakistan.

This will not be easy to bring about. All the normal hesitations and delays, all the natural reluctance of any government to become entangled in the nasty business of policing guerillas, will be reinforced and rationalized by the fact that on the deeper questions of Asian politics there has been no meeting of minds.

We have come to no understandings, nor did we seek them very earnestly, which would have permitted us, after we had borne the brunt of the fighting in Korea, to share with others the responsibilities and the burdens which now await us both north and south of the thirty-eighth parallel.

Democrats Nominate Lane As Mahoney Buries Hatchet

vention just 20 minutes before he made his speech.

Spokesmen for both the Lane and the Mahoney forces said that there were no "deals," but other sources said that the groundwork for future agreement between the factions that fought each other so vigorously in the primary was laid during the parleys.

Mahony was applauded half a dozen times in his brief appearance. He thanked his supporters. He said, "I have no desire to disrupt the orderly proceedings of this convention."

"In order that it may continue with his business," he said, "I have withdrawn my petitions for recount in those counties where they have been filed.

"As a good Democrat, my interest in the party is for its success and the success of all its candidates in the coming election."

Mahoney did not mention Governor Lane by name. Aides said the two men did not confer with each other or meet during the presession conferences.

After Mahoney left the convention hall, delegates went through the formalities of nominating the Democratic State ticket headed by Lane and Tydings. The other nominees are:

Hall Hammond, seeking reelection as attorney general, and J. Millard Tawes, unopposed candidate for election as comptroller.

Tydings' opponent in November will be John Marshall Butler, Baltimore attorney, and Hammond will be opposed by William A. Gunter, Cumberland lawyer.

Lane Expresses "Thanks"

Both Lane and Tydings warmly applauded the action of Mahoney in their acceptance speeches.

Lane said: "I express thanks to Mr. Mahoney and his subordinates for the position he and they have taken here today."

Tydings called Mahoney's action "One of the finest exhibitions of sportsmanship, good will and bigness the State has ever seen."

Two factors were reported to have been the major influence in Mahoney's decision. The first was that none of the county recounts showed any indication of switching unit votes from Lane to Mahoney.

The second was that Mahoney had to take the step he did today in order to benefit his political future.

Mahoney won 68, and Lane won 84 unit votes in the primary. The unit vote in the counties and of Baltimore city equal the number of seats in the General Assembly and must be cast for the candidate polling the greatest number of votes in that district.

In this primary, Mahoney beat Lane by some 17,000 popular votes. The count was Mahoney, 191,198; Lane, 173,769.

Pledge System's Review

A thorough review of this system was pledged by the convention in adopting a resolution to have a committee of 12 study the unit vote procedure and report back to the convention no later than November 27. The resolution suggested that the committee seek a new balance between Democratic population and unit vote apportionment.

In its platform, the party also promised sales tax relief, identical in some major features with what the Republicans promised at their State convention here last Saturday.

Both parties promised exemptions for all purchases under 50 cents, all foods, and oils and powders for babies.

Lane Predicts Victory

Governor Lane, predicting victory in November, told the convention: "I am proud of my administration and of the Democratic administration which preceded mine."

Senator Tydings told the convention that the United Nations' victory in Korea had demonstrated that the peoples of the free world are determined not to tolerate aggression that would plunge the world into a third global war.

He added that he had supported aid to Greece, the North Atlantic pact and military assistance programs and "we must keep up the fight against communism and keep it up in the American tradition . . . I don't wear the collar of any administration. I am in the United States Senate to represent the people of Maryland and their point of view."

U. S. Workers Told to Use Up Annual Leaves or Lose Them

Limitations Sought

He decided that the "spirit" of the rider was to restrict leave and not to extend even temporary benefits. His ruling, in effect, means that those employes who have the maximum year-end carry-over of annual leave must take leave earned during this calendar year by December 31 or else lose it. This is an example of how it will work:

Say a classified employe carried over the maximum of 60 days last December 31 to this year. That person would have to take the 26 days he earned this year by next December 31 or else lose any part of the 26 days he didn't take. He won't have until next July 1 to take leave earned this year, as will many of his co-workers.

In answer to a fourth question, the comptroller said an employe who enters the military service is give the right to elect to either be paid in a lump sum for his accumulated annual leave or to have such leave remain to his credit. In other words, he won't lose leave earned this year if he elects to have it remain to his credit.

COVERING-IN REGULATIONS: A temporary Federal worker must meet these conditions to be eligible for permanent status under the President's recent order:

He must have been on duty in a civilian position in a competitive job on or before August 28, 1948; he must have been in an "active-duty status" in the competitive service on August 28, 1950, provided he isn't a non-veteran in a job restricted to veterans.

"Active-duty" as of August 28, 1950, is interpretated to cover an employe who was on active military duty, was on leave-without-pay for a period not to exceed 30 days, or who was carried on the compensation rolls of the Bureau of Employes Compensation.

In addition, an employe who meets other conditions of the order and who had been furloughed by his agency because of the delay by Congress in enacting appropriation bills and who is re-employed within 60 days after the passage of such bills may be regarded as being in "active-duty" status as of August 28.

Exceptions Noted

An employe also must have been in continuous, full-time and active-duty status since August 28, 1948 with the following exceptions:

One or more breaks in service that do not total more than 60 calendar days; the furlough for financial reasons mentioned above; leave without pay not exceeding 30 days; any period during which the employe's name is carried on the rolls of the Bureau of Employes Compensation, and intervening military service.

An employe must be recommended by his agency for status prior to March 1, 1951. The recommendation must be made by the agency in which he was employed and in the position he held on August 28, 1950.

If he has passed a competitive test for the position he holds, he will merely be required to file a Standard Form 57. Otherwise he will be given one noncompetitive examination.

Since the agencies must initiate action under the order, the Civil Service Commission suggests that eligible employes direct their questions to their own personnel offices.

RATINGS: The new rule that overhauls the efficiency rating system gives each agency the authority to develop its own rating plan under these principles:

1. The work requirements of jobs are to be made known to all officers and employes in them; (2) performance shall be fairly appraised in relation to such requirements; (3) the appraisals shall be made with a view to improving the effectiveness of employe work, and of strengthening supervisor-employe relationships; (4) each employe is to be kept informed as to the quality of his performance, and he's to be promptly notified of his rating, and (5) a 90-day warning must be given any employe before he's given an "unsatisfactory" rating.

Supreme Court Opens Term; 300 Petitions Await Decision

An 11-minute session yesterday opened the Supreme Court's 1950 term and all nine justices were on the bench for the first time on an opening day since 1946.

At that, Justice Douglas barely made the last two minutes of the abbreviated routine session. His plane was late. All 11 minutes were taken up in admitting attorneys to practice before the court.

The justices this week will consider more than 300 petitions which have been filed since the court quit last June. Next Monday they are expected to hand down the first rulings on what cases they will or will not consider this term.

Oral arguments begin next Monday with three cases involving the Government's loyalty program, all accepted for consideration last term. One is the Dorothy Bailey case while the two others are groups protesting their inclusion on the Attorney General's subversive list. All three cases may be argued next Tuesday, October 10.

Missing from the courtroom yesterday was Arnold Raum, former chief assistant to Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman. Raum has become a Tax Court judge since the court last met. His place at the Justice Department is being taken by Robert Stern with Stern's No. 2 post going to Oscar H. Davis. Both Stern and Davis have been with Justice for some years and Stern is the coauthor of an exhaustive work on the Supreme Court and how to practice before it.

Relief Needs Decline During Korean Clash

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (AP).—The Korean war sent relief needs into a skid.

In the first 60 days of hostilities, the American Public Welfare Association said, relief loads in 23 cities surveyed dipped 8.87 percent—from 18,778 on July 1 to 17,111 on September 1.

Rising employment caused the drop.

$5000 Awarded Parents of Slain Federal Worker

President Truman has signed legislation to pay $5000 to the parents of wartime Government-girl Dorothy Berrum, who was raped and slain at Hains Point October 6, 1944.

The slayer, Marine Corps Private Earl McFarland, was executed for the crime on July 19, 1946.

The victim, only 18 when she came here to work for the Government, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray S. Berrum, of Chippewa Falls, Wis.

A congressional committee, reporting on the bill, said the Government is responsible for girls who come to Washington in response to pleas by Government agencies.

British Film Circles Hit 'Command' Choice

LONDON, Oct. 2 (U.P.) — Announcement today of "The Mudlark" as the Royal Command Performance movie caused dissatisfaction in British film circles despite the fact that the picture is about Queen Victoria and was made in Britain.

This year Britain supplies the Command film, and there was some resentment that "The Mudlark" should even have been among the candidates. It has an American star, Irene Dunne, playing Queen Victoria; an American writer, an American director and was made by an American company — Twentieth Century-Fox. But it was financed mostly by blocked sterling, which, under British film quota rules, makes it British.

The Senator and the man

They came to our store and to one counter. One was a Senator, a customer friend we knew. The other was a stranger.

Immediately they were waited on—promptly and courteously and no critic could have sensed a hair's-line difference in our sales-persons' attitude to both.

Always the basic "all men are created equal" is the foundation of our business. Certainly our old friends hold a dominant place in our hearts. Just as surely, the stranger in our gates is welcomed.

For out of unknown men and women we have made friends. Out of casual customers we have built a business.

So we invite you to come to a store where you are our best customer at the moment though the amount of your purchase may be trivial.

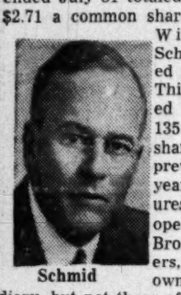
Garfinckel's Net Climbs to $2.71 a Share

By S. Oliver Goodman

Net income of Julius Garfinckel & Co., Inc., for the fiscal year ended July 31 totaled $984,445 or $2.71 a common share, President William E. Schmid reported yesterday.



Schmid

This compared with $928,135 or $2.50 a share in the previous fiscal year. The figures include operations of Brooks Brothers, wholly-owned subsidiary, but not those of A. De Pinna Co. A majority stock interest in the latter was acquired on January 31, 1950.

Consolidated net sales for the latest 12 months were $21,891,808, Schmid added, a gain of $197,433 over the previous fiscal year.

Operating costs rose to $18,353,598 from $18,232,662.

After deduction of all income taxes, depreciation, interest, other charges and payment of dividends, earned surplus rose to $2,207,802 as of July 31 as compared with $1,884,942 on the same date last year.

President Schmid noted in his annual statement to stockholders that net sales of the Spring Valley store at Massachusetts ave. and Forty-ninth st. nw., set a new high for the eighth consecutive year. Dollar volume of Brooks also recorded a peak.

Balance sheet revealed that Garfinckel's has a $282,818 investment in A. De Pinna Co.

PEPCO NET OFF: Net income of Potomac Electric Power Co. totaled $3,021,678 for the first eight months this year, off 5.61 percent from the same 1949 period. The company reported August net income of $311,613, off 16 percent from the like period last year. Heavier depreciation charges and provision for higher income taxes were factors in the net income drop.

WHO'S NEWS: Hyman Goodbinder has been appointed vice president and a director of Lacy's Inc., Washington television and appliance store chain. Goodbinder, with Lacy's for two years, will continue as merchandise manager . . . Harry L. Erlicher, who rose from messenger to vice president, today will complete 50 years of service with General Electric Co. . . . Murray T. Morgan, Washington consultant on livestock and meat packing problems for half a century, yesterday was honored at a luncheon in Chicago sponsored by the American Meat Institute . . . R. G. Bellezza has been appointed vice president in charge of sales for General Cable Corp.

SEASONAL LOSS: Washington Gas Light Co. and subsidiaries reported consolidated net loss of $175,555 for August, against a deficit of $141,871 in same 1949 month. For the first eight months this year, net income aggregated $2,106,036, a gain of $1,076,748 over the corresponding period last year. About $244,000 of this year's net to date was derived from gas rates for the District of Columbia, which are being contested, the company noted.

MORE ON COMBINE: Sale of Continental Life Insurance Co. of Washington to Southland Life Insurance Co. of Dallas, Texas, has been completed, it was formally announced yesterday. W. C. McCord, Southland president, said L. McCarthy Downs will be vice president in charge of Southland's Continental Life Division which will continue to operate all agency and office functions from the present home building in Washington. At an early date, McCord said, each Continental Life policyholder will receive a certificate setting forth that Southland Life has assumed all of the policy provisions and liabilities guaranteed by Continental Life policy contracts. With the two companies combined, Southland now has more than 650 million dollars insurance in force and assets of more than 130 million dollars. It is now among the 50 largest life insurance firms in the nation.

LOADINGS: The Association of American Railroads forecast a 26 percent jump in freight car loadings in the last quarter of this year, compared with the same period a year ago. The Association said about three-fourths of the increase is expected in loadings of coal, coke, ore, iron and steel, repressed by strike situations in the last quarter of 1949.

Dividend Total Increases 11% During August

Corporation dividends in August rose 11 percent over last year's level, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

The report was based on publicly reported cash dividend payments, which the department estimates to comprise about two thirds of total dividend.

These publicly reported dividends last month totaled $21,900,000 against $191,600,000 in August, 1949.

The department added that for the three months ended August the announced dividends, at a $1,600,000,000 total, were 8 percent above comparable 1949.

Only oil refining, textiles and leather showed lower dividend payments than a year ago, the department said. Most manufacturing groups showed higher dividends, with the auto and iron and steel industries recording increases of about one fifth.

Arlington Trust Co. Sued for $100,000

The Arlington Trust Co. has been sued for $100,000 damages by Antoine L. Alaj, 1510 Key blvd., Arlington, former owner of the Old Dominion Vinyards in Rosslyn.

In his suit, filed in Arlington Circuit Court, Alaj says his winery was sold for $6500 by the trust company in 1946 to satisfy loans made by the bank. The suit declared the business was worth at least $75,000 at the time of the sale.

Former Virginia Hill to Testify in Crime Quiz

actly what his committee wants to ask her about. But he said "we think there are a good many points on which she might give us some information."

Chief McFarland said "Mrs. Hauser, who expects a child, admitted she has received a subpena to appear before the Crime Investigating Committee in Chicago and is ready to go to Chicago as soon as possible."

The chief's statement added:

"Mrs. Hauser, used to exaggerated and mostly inventive publicity, will ignore whatever will be written about her but will answer in all truthfulness the questions put before her at hearings in Chicago.

"She is not prepared to make any further statement at this time."

It was in Mrs. Hauser's swank Beverly Hills, Calif., home that Siegel was shot to death in 1947 while she was in Paris. After the gambler's death, she was treated at a French hospital for what doctors said was an overdose of sleeping pills. Returning to the United States in 1947, she asked police protection from Siegel's killers.

The sumptuous Bar Harbor home occupied by the Hausers since last summer is known as the Luquer estate. It lies in a wooded area about 2 miles from the village shopping center.

The public has been barred from the home and delivery men say they have been asked to leave goods outside.

25 Witnesses Called For Hearing in Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (AP).—The Kefauver Senate Committee Investigating Crime said today it has summoned 25 witnesses to its Chicago hearings starting Thursday.

Committee investigators refused to identify them, but it was learned a downstate gambler has been subpenaed.

He is Tom Cawley, 55, operator of a plush gaming house in downtown La Salle, about 100 miles southwest of Chicago.

The committee comes to Chicago 10 days after the gang style killings of two men who offered to supply information on Chicago underworld activities.

The Senate group is expected to dig into the doings and influence of Chicago racket bosses linked with the old Capone mob.

The Chicago Herald-American said a number of elected officials and lawmakers "who have rubbed shoulders with gang leaders — dead and alive" are scheduled to testify at the Chicago closed hearings.

Former High Police Decline To Sign Bribery Quiz Waivers

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (NYHT).—Edward C. Moran, who retired as assistant chief inspector in charge of Brooklyn and Staten Island police on September 15, the day Harry Gross's gambling syndicate was smashed by District Attorney Miles F. McDonald, was summoned today before the special Kings County grand jury with nine other police officers.

The 60-year-old former police official, who denied later that he knew Gross and insisted his retirement that day was merely "coincidental," appeared as ordered but refused to sign a waiver of immunity. Because of this, he was not brought before the jury but was given a "continuing subpoena," which means he can be called at any time.

The same procedure was followed by Acting Lieut. George McGirr, 52, a former aid and close friend of former Police Commissioner William P. O'Brien. Commissioner O'Brien was forced to quit a week ago because of the graft disclosures made by Gross. Lieutenant McGirr, attached to the main office squad at police headquarters, filed his retirement papers on Saturday, soon after he learned he was slated to appear before the grand jury.

Lieutenant McGirr also refused to waive immunity and was also excused for the time being. All city employes must sign waivers or forfeit their jobs. The waiver states that anything said by a grand jury witness against himself may be used as the basis for prosecution.

Of the 10 policemen called before the grand jury today, only one signed the waiver and testified. Two others were on vacation; two others pleaded illness and two others were not reached.

The police retirements since gross admitted a week ago that he knew many police officials jumped to 10 today with the retirement of Lieutenant McGirr and Patrolman Charles H. Cordes, one of the 336 plain-clothes-men ordered back into uniform Friday by the new Police Commissioner Thomas F. Murphy.

State Urged to Open Fight on Delinquency

Establishment of a guidance program to fight juvenile delinquency on the State level is recommended by Dr. Peter Lejins, head of the University of Maryland's Department of Sociology.

Costs of such a program, including the hiring of trained psychiatrists and sociologists, would be prohobitive for its institution on a county level, he told members of the Prince Georges Couny Youth Commission at a meeting in Hyattsville Tuesday night.

Lewis to Fight Extradition

It will be turnabout today in the William (Snags) Lewis gambling case at District Court.

The Government is going to try to get Lewis, accused of operating a 14-million-dollar a year numbers lottery racket ring, extradited to Maryland to be tried for gambling along with a dozen others. Lewis, according to his lawyer, is going to try to remain here.

Lewis was among 36 persons arrested after a series of raids conducted by the United States attorney's office following a lengthy investigation of gambling activities. He was indicted here as well as in Maryland on lottery and conspiracy charges.

According to the prosecution, Lewis had his headquarters over the District line at 4310 46th ave., Baldensburg, Md.

Meanwhile, the other 12 in the Maryland case voluntarily posted bond in Prince Georges.

Today, at 1:30, according to Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz, the Government will agree to extradition of Lewis.

William H. Collins, who represents Lewis, said his client will object to extradition as long as the local indictments are pending.

It takes more than Slingshots Today!

Warfare has changed a lot since young David's time, when a slingshot could turn the tide of a great battle.

Modern war calls for a vast array of weapons and equipment. These call for STEEL.

Something Everybody Knows

Everybody knows how well the steel industry met the tremendous requirements of World War II. It was America's overwhelming superiority in the production of the tools of war that provided the margin of final victory. It was the workers in the steel industry who helped supply the steel needed to make that production possible.

Something Else Worth Knowing

But everybody does not know what the steel industry has been doing since the last war to supply even greater amounts of steel for record peacetime production—to prepare itself to contribute, if necessary, even more than before to the fighting and winning of another war.

Here are a few facts about what just one company has done and is doing to add to America's ability to produce greater and greater amounts of steel:

In 1945... Republic constructed a new 48" rolling mill in Youngstown to provide additional raw materials for tin plate and pipe production . . . began a vast program of exploring new ore sources, not only in America, but in many other parts of the globe.

In 1946... Republic started a two-year program to double its output of cold-rolled stainless steel sheets and strip . . . began development of new coal mine and installation of modern coal cleaning plant at two existing mines.

In 1947... Republic purchased a completely equipped steel plant built during the war in South Chicago, thereby enlarging its extensive facilities . . . constructed a new large diameter pipe plant in Gadsden, Alabama, to meet greatly increased demand for oil and natural gas pipelines . . . added high pressure top blowing equipment to 5 blast furnaces, thus increasing their capacity.

In 1948... Republic added new batteries of coke ovens in Youngstown and Warren . . . expanded strip mining facilities to increase production at its ore mines in the Adirondack mountains in New York.

In 1949... Republic installed a modern 200-ton open hearth, and initiated a program to increase steel ingot production and cold rolled strip steel capacity in the Cleveland District . . . acquired an interest in rich iron ore properties in Labrador, Canada, and in Liberia, Africa, to insure greater supplies of ore for Republic's blast furnaces.

And now, in 1950... Republic has purchased an important interest in mining properties in Minnesota with a reserve of a billion and a half tons of taconite ore . . . has set an ambitious goal of adding another 660,000 tons a year to its already increased steel-producing capacity by the end of 1952. This includes the further expansion of open hearth capacity in the Cleveland District by 180,000 tons annually.

Industry Production Far Ahead of Wartime Peak

Total American steel industry production today is running far ahead of the highest wartime totals. Our nation will produce, in 1950, almost one hundred million tons of raw steel, as compared to eighty-nine million six hundred thousand tons in 1944—peak year of wartime steel output. This 1950 production has made possible all-time records for the production of automobiles, refrigerators, electrical appliances, and many other peacetime products.

And more than seven million tons of new capacity will have been added by the end of 1952.

The Steel Industry Will Come Through

America can depend upon Republic and the rest of the country's steel industry to meet the need for all military and all necessary civilian steel requirements. Yes, it takes more than slingshots today . . . and America's "slingshot" today is loaded with one hundred million tons of vital steel. This is more than the total steel-producing capacity of all the rest of the world, and more than THREE TIMES the capacity of the Iron Curtain countries.

Stengel Picks Raschi, Needles Phils for Silence

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—At the instant when the Phillies' Whiz Kids nailed down the National League pennant in Brooklyn they took on a tougher assignment—beating the Yankees in the World Series that opens on Wednesday in Shibe Park.

The Phils will get their try at it, and none can say they aren't deserving, but those who insist on realism are of the mind that the Dodgers would have been the tougher World Series opposition for the Yankees.

Povich

That is the notion that was very practically reflected in the early betting odds for the Series before it was established who was to be the N. L. winner. The brokers were making the Yankees the favorite in any case—but offering 5 to 2 against the Dodgers, and 7 to 2 if the Phillies got in.

Until the Whiz Kids got over that final hump and slapped the Dodgers down they were behaving like a team without even a ghostly chance to knock off the battle-hardened Yanks. They were a floundering outfit, getting licked in eight of 10 previous games, and a sight to make Yankee scouts lick their chops at the prospect of getting the big end of the World Series dish.

AT THAT, THE Phillies may be blessed. Nobody could have prescribed a tougher ordeal by fire than that last game against the Dodgers, with their fate riding on every pitch of young Robin Roberts. That game was enough, perhaps, to mature them for the battle against the Yankees, and maturity is what they needed.

They were a jittery outfit against the Dodgers. They were showing it mostly at the plate where their hitters weren't taking their good cuts, Dick Sisler excepted. Roberts alone was keeping them in the game until Sisler could come along and win it for them with his tenth-inning homer. But they must have come out of it with added growth. You can't win that kind and stay kids.

And Roberts is the best thing the Phils will have going for them in the World Series. With each passing inning against the Dodgers, the Whiz Kids loosened up behind their kid pitcher who eventually got 'em out of that hole in the ninth. Their jitters may carry over into the World Series, but scarcely when Roberts is pitching.

BEHIND THE DODGERS' dugout yesterday, sat a man with a tremendous emotional conflict from the instant Dick Sisler hit that game-winning home run. He was George Sisler, the Brooklyn scout, whose loyalties belonged to the Dodgers. But whose flesh and blood had just hit that pennant-winning homer.

Sisler might be called the light that failed. A better ball player than his boy ever will be, he had never gotten into a World Series, even in the year when he led the American League with a .420 batting average. Daddy Sisler didn't demonstrate, at least outwardly, when young Dick wrapped it up for the Phillies. He didn't go to the Phils' dressing room to help his boy celebrate. He debated it, then left the park silently.

He was saying last night, after the game, "It wouldn't look right to see a Brooklyn scout whoop it up for the Phils even if his own boy was the hero. I'll have all winter to tell Dick what a great kid I think he is." And then he confessed, "I never thought this would happen. Of my three boys, Dick was the worst ballplayer, the one I never believed would be a big leaguer. I was never so happily wrong."

IF BROOKLYN FANS were dismayed at the defeat of their Dodgers, at least they were living today in a second-guessers' paradise. The topic in Flatbush was: "Third Base Coach Milt Stock shouldn't a-sent Cal Abrams home in that ninth."

None was out when Stock made that fateful decision, with Abrams on second base, Pee Wee Reese on first, the score tied at 1-1, and Duke Snider having whacked a sharp single to center. Abrams got a ragged start on the hit. Shortstop Granville Hamner was hounding him close to the bag, in anticipation of a Brooklyn bunt. When Snider did hit away, Abrams had scarcely rounded third when Centerfielder Ritchie Ashburn scooped up the hit.

Abrams was out at the plate by a dozen feet, so far he didn't bother to slide. Had Stock held him up at third base, Jackie Robinson would have been the next batter, the bases filled, and no chance to walk Robinson deliberately. As it was the Phils got rid of Robinson on an intentional pass, and Roberts pitched himself out of the mess. As it eventually unfolded, the Dodgers may have left the pennant on third base.

Winner of Contest Sees Army-Michigan

ARMY AND MICHIGAN will clash in New York October 14, and the winner of The Washington Post's Football Contest this week will attend that game.

The contest winner each week receives two tickets to a major college game, as selected by the Post, as well as first-class round-trip transportation for two persons.

The game on which contestants will give the "Probable Score" this week is the Duke-Tennessee contest at Durham. Tennessee was upset last Saturday by Mississippi State, 7-0, while Duke won from Pitt, 28-14.

Contest Rules

THE CONTEST each week will include 20 major college games. The contestant will select the winner (or tie) in each of these games. There will also be a twenty-first game for which the contestant must give the "Probable Score," to be considered by the contest judges only in case two or more persons tie on the first 20 games.

All entries must be in the hands of the Football Contest Editor not later than 9 p. m. Friday of each week. Entries should be left at the Service Counter in the lobby of The Washington Post Bldg., 1337 E St. N. W.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week shall be declared the winner. In case of ties, all persons sharing in the tie will receive duplicate awards.

The decisions of the judges will be final.

Entries submitted must be legible, with the selections listed in the order they are announced in The Washington Post.

Entries may be handwritten or typewritten. However, carbon copies and mimeographed copies or copies made by any other duplicating machine will NOT be accepted. You may submit as many entries as you wish.

No employe of The Washington Post or member of his immediate family is eligible to participate in this contest.

No person will be eligible to win the weekly contest twice.

Baugh Says He Will Play Next Sunday

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

If anyone should know how Sammy Baugh's injured passing arm is, it's Sammy Baugh himself, and yesterday he had this to say about it:

"It's still a little stiff, but feels much better. There may be a chipped bone, but I doubt it. I feel I'll be able to play Sunday."

Baugh was speaking from New York where he had gone to make a kinescope for Joe DiMaggio's TV program.

"If my arm was as bad as some people think it is," the Redskins' quarterback and passing star continued, "I wouldn't be in New York today. I'd be in the hospital."

Baugh said X-rays haven't been made yet and won't be until this morning when Dr. Robert Moran, team physician, examines him.

Baugh injured his throwing arm in the last three minutes of Sunday's Redskins-Steelers game at Griffith Stadium in which the Redskins were humbled, 26-7, by the 10-point underdog Pittsburghers.

Dr. Moran, who gave Baugh a quick examination Sunday after the Pittsburgh game, said he felt it's "probably just a bruise, but we won't be able to tell definitely until it's X-rayed. And since Sammy wasn't in too much of a hurry to have it X-rayed, I don't think it could be too serious."

At the Redskins' office, things weren't as gloomy as they should have been. That was because the coaches and front office platoons were talking about everything except what happened at Griffith Stadium Sunday.

Chief Redskin George Marshall, for instance, was saying he hadn't seen a World Series in 17 years and would be in Philadelphia Wednesday and Thursday for the first two games of the Phils-Yankees set.

Coach Herman Ball was talking about the oil pan he busted on his car leaving Byrd Stadium after Saturday's Navy - Maryland game.

Coach Ball, when the talk finally swung around to the Redskins-Steeler game, agreed with the 25,008 customers who saw the debacle:

"We were lousy, simply lousy," he said. "That's all."

Ball said he didn't know what's happened to the Redskins in the past two games, and he'd give a year's salary for someone to answer the problem.

"And that includes Mr. Anthony," Ball added.

P. S. There are plenty of tickets left for the Giants game Sunday.

Gil Coan Top Nat With .304

GIL COAN doesn't recommend a fractured skull as a general cure for a fractured batting average, but in his particular case it helped.

Out of the Nats' lineup from June 2 until July 14 recovering from his head injury, the young outfielder boosted his average 54 points after the mishap and finished up the season with a .304 mark, high man on the Nats.

"While I was recovering," he said yesterday shortly before leaving for his home in Brevard, N. C., "I got to give myself a pep talk. I said to myself: Quit trying to hit every ball out of the park. Singles will do. And quit listening to the advice of everybody who wants to change your batting stance.

"I convinced myself and now I'm confident that I'll do even better next season."

Coan, who led the Southern Association in practically every offensive department when he played for the Nats' farm team at Chattanooga, was a distinct flop until this season. Never had hit more than .232 and many fans wondered what President Clark Griffith saw in the handsome, blond-headed 26-year-old.

Only two years ago the Chicago Cubs reportedly offered the Nats 100 thousand dollars for Coan, but Griff turned it down.

"That boy's gonna make us a darn good ball player when he gets squared away," Griff said.

At the suggestion of Coach

Marty Marion Says

Chandler Brushes Off Players on TV Split

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2 (AP).—Marty Marion declared here tonight that Commissioner A. B. Chandler had refused to have a conference with him and Freddie Hutchinson about the World Series television rights of the players.

Marion is the National League players representative and Hutchinson represents the American League players.

"The least he could have done," Marion said, "was to call us in and talk to us about it. I think the players had a right to that much."

The veteran St. Louis Cardinal shortstop said about two weeks ago he had called Freddie Hutchinson, Detroit Tiger pitcher, to ask him what he had heard from Chandler about television rights for the players.

"Freddie and I decided it would be a good idea to wire the commission and request a conference with him," Marion said.

After he and Hutchinson had wired the commissioner, Marion said, he received a call from Walter Mulbry, Chandler's assistant, saying that Chandler was not in and that he would show the commissioner the telegrams and ask him to call.

"The next day Mulbry called me in Boston and said he didn't think the commissioner planned to talk with us," Marion continued.

"I called again last Friday and Chandler still was not in. He has refused to discuss it with us since he never notified us one way or the other.

"I read where he was going to call a conference but it is not official. I haven't heard a word."

In Philadelphia, Commissioner Chandler declined to comment on Marion's remarks.

"A meeting will be held in due course to decide on disposition of the television fund," said Chandler. "As yet we don't have the money. When we do decide what to do with it, I hope due provision will be made for the players' pension fund."

Most players think the $800,000 World Series television receipts this year should go into the pension fund with the idea of lowering the age from 50 to 45 when players can benefit," Marty explained.

"We deserved a hearing and the commissioner refused to even answer me," Marion said.

Belmont Double Pays $3498 to 21

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP).—Twenty-one persons held tickets today on the $3,498.60 daily double at Belmont Park, largest of the season at a New York track.

Abbe Boy won the first race, paying a straight mutuel of $91.10. Foxy Baby paid $119.50 in the second.

Stuart Enjoys That Big Trip

Stuart M. Engleberg, 12-year-old grid whiz, has the kids in 7-B at Taft Junior High hanging on every word as he tells them about his big weekend trip and how he took in the Notre Dame-North Carolina game.

Young Engleberg was the winner in The Washington Post's first "Pick-the-Winners" contest this year. The trip for two was his grand prize.

Stuart's father, Norman, a GAO attorney of 843 Crittenden st. ne., was his guest. Said Mr. Engleberg, "The trip was wonderful and the game was really terrific. It was a memorable day for both of us."

The Englebergs had an especially enjoyable time on the Notre Dame campus. They were taken around by Bernard S. Lavins, 3626 Queseda st. nw., and his son, Bernie, a Notre Dame senior.

"They went out of their way to be nice to us," Mr. Engleberg reported, "Stuart was impressed tremendously by the whole thing."

Columbus Bumps Baltimore, 8-5

BALTIMORE, Oct. 2 (AP).—Columbus beat Baltimore at its own home run hitting game tonight to win, 8-5, and go ahead in the Little World Series, two games to one.

The Red Birds from Ohio hit four over the fence in a wild contest before 21,287 in Memorial Stadium. Harry Walker, one-time National League batting leader, smacked two of them.

Cards Sock Colts In 2d Half, 55-13

By Jerry Liska

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (AP).—With lanky Bob Shaw snatching a record breaking five of six touchdown passes by Jim Hardy, the Chicago Cardinals swarmed over the Baltimore Colts, 55-13, in a National Football League game tonight.

A Comisky Park crowd of 14,439 saw the Cardinals win their first loop game with a prodigious second-half output of 48 points after trailing 13-7 at the half.

It was Baltimore's third straight league loss and tenth setback in a row including exhibitions.

Shaw's five payoff aerial grabs broke the single game record of four big Bob had shared with Don Hutson of Green Bay and Joe Carter of Philadelphia.

Hardy's six touchdown flips were only one behind the league record of seven in a game by Sid Luckman of the Chicago Bears against the New York Giants in 1943.

The Cards counted first as Hardy flipped a 40-yard scoring pass to Shaw in the opening stanza but the Colts slammed back with two touchdowns in the second quarter.

Baltimore marched 87 yards to its first touchdown with Ernie Zalejski banging across from the six. A few minutes later, Colt Rookie Herb Rich from Vanderbilt grabbed a punt by Hardy and on a zigzag run, scampered 86 yards for a touchdown.

The Cardinal third quarter included a payoff pass play from Hardy to Fran Polsfoot, covering 58 yards, and Hardy tosses to Shaw spanning nine and 17 yards.

In the closing period, Chicago's Charley Trippi smashed to two touchdowns from the one-foot and 18 yards stripes. Shaw snagged his fourth scoring flip of the game from Hardy, an 18-yard toss. And a few minutes later plucked a 28-yard Hardy shot for his fifth touchdown.

Colts scoring: Touchdowns Zalejski, Rich. Conversions: Grossman (placement). Cardinals scoring: Touchdowns Shaw 5, Polsfoot, Trippi 2. Conversions: Harder 3 (placements), Yablonski 4 (placements).

Joe Louis Says He May Box Again

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—Joe Louis once more kicked the lid off his puglistic coffin today by admitting he might fight again.

Ike Williams Beaten Again

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 2 (AP).—New York's Joe Miceli sprang a surprise tonight by taking a unanimous 10 round decision from Lightweight Champion Ike Williams in a non-title fight.

Georgia, Tennessee Drop

Coaches Vote Irish Tops Despite Scare By Carolina; Army, Michigan State Trail

By Leo H. Petersen

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—Despite its narrow squeak against North Carolina, Notre Dame came out of football's first big weekend of the season as the Nation's No. 1 team.

The Fighting Irish, forced to the limit before they turned back the Tarheels 14 to 7 in the last three minutes of play, received 17 first place votes and a total of 291 points in the second weekly ratings of the United Press board of football experts.

The 35 prominent coaches who make up the board voted Army the No. 2 team and placed Michigan State, 13-to-7 upset victor over Michigan, in third place. Southern Methodist was ranked fourth, Oklahoma fifth, Texas sixth, California seventh, Kentucky eighth, Stanford ninth and UCLA tenth to round out the big ten.

Michigan State, jumping from sixteenth to third place, received five first place votes and a total of 235 points. Only two other teams, Oklahoma with three and Southern Methodist with two, received first place ballots.

Michigan, ranked third last week, droped to twelfth place with only 43 points.

Tennessee and Georgia also dropped out of the first ten. Georgia, ranked eighth last week, failed to receive a single point after being held to a tie by St. Mary's, and Tennessee, which had been ranked fourth, dropped to twentieth place with only 10 points after being upset by Mississippi State.

Oklahoma and Texas exchanged places from last week while California moved up from tenth to seventh, Kentucky from eleventh to eighth, Stanford remained ninth and U. C. L. A. jumped from fifteenth to tenth.

How They Rank:

TEAM	POINTS
1—Notre Dame (17)	291
2—Army (8)	265
3—Michigan State (5)	235
4—Southern Methodist (2)	206
5—Oklahoma (3)	168
6—Texas	126
7—California	86
8—Kentucky	83
9—Stanford	78
10—U. C. L. A.	66

Second 10—Cornell, 44; Michigan, 43; Duke, 40; Alabama, 35; Iowa and North Carolina, 28 each; Illinois, 21; Washington, 19; Princeton, 16; Tennessee, 10.

Third 10—Clemson, 8; Maryland, 7; Ohio State, 6; Texas, 5; Colorado A. & M., Mississippi State and Pennsylvania, 3 each; Southern California, 2; Purdue and Wyoming, 1 each.

Series Starts Tomorrow

Reynolds Works In Second Game

From Wire Dispatches

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—New York Yankee Manager Casey Stengel named his starting pitchers for the first three games of the World Series today and followed by needling Philadelphia Phillies' Pilot Eddie Sawyer for postponing his first-game selection until tomorrow.

Stengel said 21-game winner Vic Raschi would pitch Wednesday's opener in Philadelphia. He named Allie Reynolds to work the second game and Ed Lopat to pitch the first game at Yankee Stadium on Friday.

Told that the Phils are underdogs at odds ranging from 2-1 to 13-5, Casey let out with a loud guffaw.

"Those betting people know from nothing," he said. "That's a good ball club over in Philadelphia. It had to be good to beat a red hot Brooklyn team in the biggest game of the year for both clubs.

"Of course, I think we'll win but they've got some tough pitchers. That's the only way they can win—if they get great pitching. I don't think they'll outslug us."

He said his lineup would be "the same as usual," with Gene Woodling leading off and playing left field, followed by Shortstop Phil Rizzuto, Catcher Larry Berra, Centerfielder Joe DiMaggio, First Baseman Johnny Mize, either Hank Bauer or Cliff Mapes in right field, Billy Johnson or Bobby Brown at third base and Gerry Coleman at second.

"Sure, I'll tell you everything," Stengel said to a platoon of newspapermen assembled at the Yankees' leisurely two-hour workout today. "And don't tell me Sawyer don't know who he's gonna pitch. The series hasn't even started and he's getting smart already."

Casey disclosed there was never any doubt about Raschi receiving the call in the opener.

"I decided he'd work it last Saturday whether we played the Phillies or Dodgers," he said.

Raschi was the Yankees' acknowledged staff leader all season. He is a strong right-handed power pitcher who throws full over-hand, three-quarter and sidearm. He won a total of 60 games in his last three years with the Yankees.

Stengel did not attempt to guess Sawyer's first-game pitcher but the Yankees agreed that Ken Heintzelman, 37-year-old soft balling left-hander who won only three games all season, would work either the first or second game.

The guesses are that Manager Eddie Sawyer of the Phils may come back with Roberts (20-11), the young righthander who clinched the National League flag for the Phils Sunday. He would have only two days rest, however. Most of the Yankees seemed to think that Sawyer would open up with the veteran Heintzelman.

Stengel said he has not heard from the Phils, who were reported to have asked permission to play two ineligible men in the World Series.

The Phils are reported to want to use Outfielder Jack Mayo and Pitcher Jocko Thompson in place of Bill Nicholson and Curt Simmons. Nicholson is hospitalized by diabetes and Simmons is in the Army.

"If the Phillies want permission to use those men," Casey said, "I'll ask to make Johnny Hopp eligible."

Hopp, purchased from Pittsburgh after the deadline date, is not eligible. He could be used as a replacement, either in the outfield or at first base.

Video, Radio Lineup

In Washington, the World Series will be televised on WTOP-TV (Channel 9); WMAL-TV (Channel 7); WNBW (Channel 4). It will be carried on Radio Stations WEAM (1390) and WASH-FM (97.1). A pre-Series broadcast, conducted by Arch McDonald, starts each day on WTOP-TV at 12:15 p. m.

Man for Man, Yanks Look Like Winners

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies, who weren't supposted to win the National League pennant but did, may fool the experts again.

Still, they don't figure to beat the New York Yankees in the World Series. The Yanks have greater experience, a deeper bench and much stronger pitching.

Here is a man-to-man comparison, position-for-position:

FIRST BASE—Ed Waitkus of the Phillies is the better fielder but he doesn't compare with John Mize as a hitter.

SECOND BASE—Mike Goliat cannot be classed with Garry Coleman of the Yanks as a hitter or fielder.

THIRD BASE—Willie Jones of the Phils gets the call over either Bill Johnson or Bobby Brown both in the field or at bat.

SHORTSTOP—Gran Hamner, a fine shortstop, probably is the best in the National League. But the Yanks' Phil Rizzuto, who can do everything well, is the best in the majors.

LEFTFIELD—Dick Sisler of the Phils is a better hitter but can't field or throw with Gene Woodling.

CENTER FIELD—No contest. Joe DiMaggio, perhaps slipping a bit, is still heads and shoulders over Richie Ashburn in everything but fleetness of foot.

RIGHT FIELD—Ennis of the the Phils gets the call over either Hank Bauer or Cliff Mapes. He is the better hitter with more power. The Yankee pair shade him in the field and in throwing.

CATCHING—Yogi Berra is the better hitter. Both have lots of power. Andy Seminick is better defensively and owns the more accurate arm.

PITCHING—The Phils own in Robin Roberts a hurler who may be as good as anybody on the Yankee staff. But after Roberts, what? The Phils won the flag on the work of Roberts, Curt Simmons, Bob Miller and Bubba Church and Jim Konstanty. Simmons has gone into the Army. Miller has had a sore arm, Church still hasn't recovered fully from his face injury of thre weeks ago. That leaves Roberts. He may get some help from veterans Russ Meyer and Ken Heintzleman.

The Yankees, on the other hand, possess an experienced quartet in Vic Raschi, Allie Reynolds, Eddie Lopat and Tommy Byrne.

Coan Ends Up Top Nat With .304 Average

Clyde Milan, Coan made one change in his batting stance this summer.

"I crouched and spread my feet. That way I wait for the pitch to come to me. Clyde told me: 'That pitcher must come in with the ball, you don't have to run out there and meet it. Just be ready when it comes across the plate.'

"I used to stand straight up, feet close together," Coan continued. "I had more power that way, but I just wasn't hitting the ball.

"Now, I'm not swinging as hard, but I'm meeting the ball much better. I make the pitcher come to me. Curve balls, which used to fool me, bother me very little now."

Another thing that's helped him, Coan says, is that he's not listening to the suggestions of every fan and player.

"Bucky Harris told me this spring to use the stance that felt best. Used to be I changed my batting style so often I was completely mixed. When I was lucky enough to get three hits out of four tries, I changed my stance because I wanted to get four hits. But all that foolishness is over now.

"I didn't worry about base hits down in Chattanooga. I knew I could hit the ball. But here with Washington, I lost my confidence, I quit on myself. I had plenty of time to take stock of myself when I got hurt and I decided to adopt one stance and stick with it. It saved me."

Touchdowners Honor Field

Retiring president Lee Field was given a royal send-off yesterday as new president Jim Magner took over at the first weekly fall luncheon of the Touchdown Club.

Field, in his last appearance as master of ceremonies, awarded certificates of merit to members who had served the club well in 1949-50, and paid particular tribute to Ralph Shaughnessy, Leslie Mitchell, Manager Lewis W. "Knocky" Thomas and secretary-treasurer Vee T. Curis.

Lucky Harp, Arcave Trail $15 Victor

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

BOWIE, Md., Oct. 2.—H. W. Shaffer's Oom Paul was vanned here today from the Laurel track where he is stabled in time to win in a driving finish in the featured Anchorage Purse. The 4-year-old colt, a sensation at North Randall Park but hardly believed up to par with today's opposition scored by three parts of a length.

Frankie Bone, the Nation's third leading rider, displayed his saddle skill for the first time here and put up a fine ride on Oom Paul. The son of Teufel finished ahead of Shamrock Stable's Lucky Harp with S. W. Labrot, jr.'s Arcave third in the field of seven.

With Mrs. S. M. Pistorio's Golden Bull the favorite, Oom Paul returned a $15.60 win mutuel and clocked in 1:47 for the mile and a sixteenth over a fast track. Summer-like weather, plus an interesting program served to lure a crowd of 7500.

Lucky Harp and Golden Bull went to the front at the break and ran in that order to the stretch turn. Oom Paul saved ground in third position, while Arcave, off poorly, moved into fourth along the backstretch.

In the early stretch, Arcave moved on the outside and Bone took this as his signal to move with the Labrot horse for a few moments, Lucky Harp, Oom Paul and Arcave were almost head and head for the lead.

It appeared that Oom Paul might be squeezed back between the tiring Golden Bull and the coming-on Arcave. However, Bone cleverly sent the colt through. Lucky Harp proved courageous despite his frontrunning. But Oom Paul finally disposed of the pacemaker and was drawing out at the end. Arcave hung in the final drive.

The victory was the seventh in 16 tries this year for the winner. The $2100 he picked up today brought his season's earnings to $13,750.

The daily double payoff was a substantial one for the second day of the meeting. The combination of 3-and-9 paid $288.60. Jockey Willie Downs brought Frank Gall's Pic-On-Me from far back to win the first at $24.80 while young Doyle Gardner rode his first major track winner aboard Anthony Rosasco's Hamlet, a $15 shot in the second event.

Bowie, 'Dark' Today

Today is an off day in Maryland racing to allow Bowie to get in an extra weekend program. The sport will be resumed tomorrow.

Prep—High Players of the Week

LEO SPEROS
Bullis Prep

Leo Speros

Leo Speros is this week's Washington Post prep-school player of the week.

The 18-year-old Speros, selected for the honor because of his sparkling performance for Bullis Prep against the George Washington U. Frosh Friday, wants most of all to play college football.

Looking back on his progress, you'd have to say his chances of realizing his ambition are not hopeless. The 210-pound Wilson High product was a third-string center his first year at Wilson, worked his way to a starting berth in the backfield his next season, and last year he gained an All-Metropolitan berth in leading the Green Tigers to the Interhigh League championship.

From his fullback position Friday, Leo broke a 7-7 tie and G. W.'s back in the third quarter when he cut inside his left end and down the sidelines for 62 yards and a touchdown.

In the last period, he ran 44 yards to the G. W. 12. Two plays later he carried over from the 4.

BOB CHATLIN
Anacostia

Bob Chatlin

If there were a most-valuable-player award in the Interhigh League, the name of Bob Chatlin would be high on the list of candidates.

Chatlin, a halfback for Anacostia, is an all-around performer who runs, blocks, passes, plays defense and seldom rests. For doing all those things well while playing the whole game in Anacostia's 12-12 tie with Eastern Friday, The Washington Post has selected good-looking Bob as its high-school Player of the Week.

To look at Bob, you wouldn't think of him as a guy who has been taken out of a game only two or three times in his two-year career. But the 18-year-old, 165-pound Bob actually plays the whole game just about all the time.

Chatlin, who thinks he might like to be a flier, passed to Bernie Terry for the touchdown that gave Anacostia a brief 12-6 lead in its game with Eastern. He scored the first Indian touchdown himself on a 6-yard plunge through the middle of the line.

Julian Keene KOs Randall In 7th Round

Twenty-one-year-old Julian Keene knocked out Roland Randall, his hometown rival, in the seventh round of a 10-round feature bout at Turner's Arena last night.

The rising young Negro light heavyweight kayoed Randall in two minutes and 35 seconds of the seventh after carrying the entire fight which opened the indoor boxing season before a meager crowd of 800.

Keene dropped Randall for a count of eight early in the seventh round with a terrific left hook. Randall got off the floor to waver back into Keene but Julian then laid him across the ropes for the final count with a smashing right.

In the semifinal, Alex Zambres, Phoenix, Ari., featherweight, scored a technical knockout over Walter Hamm of the District when the scheduled five-rounder was ended in 2:45 of the second round because Hamm's left eye was badly cut.

In the other preliminaries, Young Satan, 147, D. C., kayoed Bobby Bowen, 154, Baltimore, in 1:07 of the second round; Eddie Marshall, 166, knocked out Scott Richardson, 162, in 2:55 of the first and Johnny Bohak, 122½, took a five-round decision from Vic Creelman, 129.

Dear Folks: At Bowie

Frank Bone, third leading rider in the nation behind Joe Culmore and Willie Shoemaker, arrived and will ride out this meeting and Laurel. Larry Lalli, his agent, is with him. Jockey Robert Bauer got in and will ride here for Henry Clark and Albert Lacoste. The boy joins his brother Lamar, here. The riding Bauers are known as left and right. Get it? Ira (Babe) Hanford, the first apprentice ever to win a Kentucky Derby, is back in action after suffering a broken collarbone in a spill at Delaware Park. Trainer Al (Spec) Dunne is no longer with the Bobnett Stables. Dunne showed a profit eight of the nine years he trained the Baltimore-owned horses. See you on the rail. BILL.

Hoyas Need Experience—But Quickly

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

WITH ITS FOOTBALL season one game old Georgetown started a rebuliding job to get ready for its home opener with Tulsa at Griffith Stadium Saturday.

One of the biggest things to build up will be squad morale after that 34-14 trouncing at Penn State last week. Inexperience of the soph-dominated Hoyas was painfully apparent in the 13 minutes of the first half that State pushed across four touchdowns more or less at will.

One thing's sure, those sophs will have to get some poise quickly. After Tulsa, they meet, in order, Maryland, Boston College, Villanova and Miami of Florida.

Coach Bob Margarita started scrimmaging yesterday and plans hard work this week. Worrying about lack of depth, he was afraid of practice injuries before Penn State and went easy on contact work.

Now he says, "We're going to scrimmage hard if we only have 11 men to put on the field for a game."

POST MORTEMS: Against Penn State, Frank Mattingly had his poorest passing day of Georgetown, completing only three of 10 for 19 yards with one intercepted . . . On his worst day last season, Mattingly accounted for nearly 100 yards . . . The stringbean junior was handicapped as much by a paper-thin line as a bad ankle that had him hobbling

Soph backs who moved well included Art Gulla, Dick Doyle, Gino Pagluica, Jack O'Mahoney and Bugs Thompson . . . Bugs, great runner at Tech High here, had only two chances to carry the ball but picked up 12 yards

Georgetown wasn't aggressive enough with one notable exception. . . . Guard Mike Carra, underslung guard who's 210 and only 5-foot-7, threw the most devastating block of the game. . . . Under full steam, Carra crashed into Jim Longacre, 225-pound State tackle, downfield. . . . Longacre had to leave the game. . . . The disgraceful vandalism that was in evidence at Maryland's new Byrd Stadium also made an appearance at Penn State. . . . A huge "G" and small "G.U." were burned into the beautiful turf of Beaver Field. . . . Maybe that helped make Penn State mad, too.

Fazio, Cox, Fling Tied Stroke Back

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

A pair of Confederate invaders from Norfolk, Va., grabbed a one-stroke lead yesterday at the halfway mark in the District Open golf tournament at Indian Spring Country Club.

John O'Donnell, 1949 Virginia Open titlist, from the Commissioned Officers Club, and Harold Oatman of the Officers Club, both had par 69s for the first 18 holes to lead the 72-man field.

George Fazio, Woodmont Country Club pro, the tournament's biggest "name" golfer, was only a stroke behind O'Donnell and Oatman. He had bad luck with the putter, or he would have led the field.

Fazio went out in a par 35 and only three-putts on six and eight kept him from being two-under. He played par golf for eight of the nine holes returning, but a bogey on 13 put him one over.

O'Donnell's 35-34—69 was even par for both nines. Oatman birdied the second and played par golf for the rest of his first nine holes to reach the turn one-under. He three-putted both 11 and 12 for bogeys but a birdie deuce on 14 put him back to par.

Tied with Fazio with 70s were Earl Fling, assistant pro at Columbia Country Club, and Wiffy Cox, Congressional pro.

Defending Champion Charley Bassler, Rolling Road Country Club pro from Catonsville, Md., finished in a three-way tie for sixth with Andy Gibson, his arch-rival from the Country Club of Maryland (Baltimore), and Johnny Musser of Allview (Baltimore). Each had 71s.

Indian Spring's Eddie Ault, 1948 club champion, led the 27 amateurs in the tourney with a 72.

The second 18 holes of the tournament will be played today. Scores of the leaders:

Mid-Atlantic Golf Starts Wednesday

Chandler Harper, 1950 National PGA golf champion from Portsmouth, Va., will be on hand tomorrow at Congressional Country Club to defend his pro sweepstakes crown in the $1000 added Middle Atlantic Golf Association's Pro-Member tournament.

If Harper wins, he'll have to do it against George Fazio of Woodmont, Maryland Open King Charley Bassler of Rolling Road, Jack Isaacs, Virginia Open titlist from Quantico, and the best pros the area has to offer

Post entries will be accepted.

Major League Attendance Off 15 Percent This Year

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP).—Major league baseball drew 17,226,824 fans during the 1950 season, a drop of 15 percent from 1949, according to an unofficial survey by the Associated Press.

The National League lured 8,025,169 customers and the American League 9,201,655 during the campaign which ended yesterday. In 1949 9,484,718 fans patronized National League games and 10,730,647 American League contests for a two-league total of 20,215,365. The National League attendance in 1950 was off 16 percent and the American 14 percent.

Philadelphia's Phillies, Brooklyn, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and New York drew over a million this year in the National League. In the American, New York Yankees, Detroit, Cleveland and Boston were the only clubs to draw more than a million.

Following is a table comparing the 1950 and 1949 figures:

Jets Open Roller Series Thursday

Two of the National Roller Derby League's top scorers of last season will be in the lineups when the Washington Jets open their series with the New York Chiefs at Uline Arena Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock.

These teams play through next Monday night when the Chicago Westerners come to Ulines for a series ending on October 18.

Capt. Gerry Murray, New York's speed queen, led the women scorers with 536 points last season while the Jets' Sid Harnesk, then of the World Champion New Jersey Jolters, was one of the top men in points. Ladies' night will be observed at the Thursday opening.

MEN OVER 25 WHOSE HAIR IS GETTING THIN-GROOM IT WITH KREML

TO AVOID THAT GREASY LOOK—MAKE HAIR LOOK MORE ABUNDANT

If you're feeling self-conscious about your hair getting thin on top or receding at the temples, don't call attention to it by plastering your hair down with greasy, sticky products which leave an unsightly, dirt-trapping, shiny film on the scalp. Now is the time to graduate to Kreml! Kreml Hair Tonic is different from any dressing you've ever used. It never looks greasy or sticky—it never plasters hair down. Instead, Kreml is especially blended to thoroughly spread through the hair and make it look naturally well-groomed—make hair look thicker, more abundant. Also unsurpassed to remove dandruff flakes and give sleepy scalps a delightful 'wake-up' tingle. Ask for the new large 16-oz. size of Kreml Hair Tonic and save nearly 50%.

Better Buy Buick!

PERHAPS you've noticed that there seem to be a lot of these brawny beauties running around on America's highways—and it isn't just that boldly gleaming forefront that spreads this impression.

It isn't just the fact that folks who own a Buick get such a bang out of it that they do a lot of driving.

Back of all this is another fact. It's a fact that contains a broad hint to anyone who'd like to know what's what in motorcar buys. 1950 Buicks are breaking all past popularity records, as registered in sales.

So we suggest that you do some personal investigating.

Find out, for example, how masterful you feel, with Fireball power purring away the miles, at a polite touch of your toe on the gas treadle.

Find out how the jolts and jars seem to disappear, when you have big soft coil springs on all four wheels, and fat low-pressure tires on wide Safety-Ride rims.

Then there's Dynaflow Drive,* which Buick owners vote the biggest automotive hit that has come along in years.

With all this, there's room, and comfort, and road-hugging heft combined with a light and willing response to your hand on the wheel—and prices that start down with the sixes.

Seems like almost everyone wants to own one of these Buicks—and most people can. How about you? Isn't it a smart idea to see your Buick dealer now and get your name on his list?

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

Only BUICK has Dynaflow—and with it goes: HIGHER-COMPRESSION Fireball valve-in-head power in three engines. (New F-263 engine in SUPER models.) • NEW-PATTERN STYLING, with MULTI-GUARD forefront, tapered through fenders • TRAFFIC-HANDY SIZE, less over-all length for easier parking and garaging, short turning radius • EXTRA-WIDE SEATS cradled between the axles • SOFT BUICK RIDE, from all-coil springing, Safety-Ride rims, low-pressure tires, ride-steadying torque-tube.

Disabled Veterans Find Job Opportunities

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin reported yesterday that there are 20,000 fewer disabled veterans looking for work today than there were a year ago.

Tobin credited the "intensive efforts" of the Veterans Employment Service and the State Bureaus of Employment Security with cutting the number of disabled veterans registered for jobs to an all-time low of 50,000.

His report was made at the sixth annual "kick-off" luncheon serving as a prelude to "National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week" being observed here now.

Secretary Tobin told several hundred persons that "only by replacing prejudices with understanding, and lack of understanding with enlightenment, can we hope to secure for the handicapped an equal opportunity which is the keystone of our democratic process.

"Speaking for the Department of Labor," he pledged, "I can assure you that we will continue our efforts for new and better legislation for the handicapped."

In another talk, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey emphasized the need of skilled men.

"Manpower is not abundant," the director of Selective Service said. "If we are to survive, we must make the best uses of the resources we have in manpower, not for helping someone, but for helping everyone."

Paul A. Strachan, author and sponsor of the week, also touched on making the best use of the handicapped.

"Regardless of the outcome of the Korean War and no matter how soon a truce may be declared, we firmly believe it is the signal of more trouble yet to come.

"Preparedness, then, must not be made in terms of planes, tanks, guns, ships and other sinews of war but in readying and making the best use of our people," Strachan said.

Others on the program at the Mayflower Hotel included: E. D. Merrill, chairman of the District of Columbia Committee on NEPH Week; Radford E. Mobley, jr., president of the National Press Club; and Perry Faulkner, director of Veterans Employment Service. William R. Lichtenburg, local attorney, acted as master of ceremonies.

The annual observance of National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week is dedicated to the proper placement of handicapped workers and to stress their place in common effort to build the Nation's strength. The luncheon was sponsored jointly by the Washington Board of Trade and the American Federation of the Physically Handicapped, of which Strachan is president.

District Doctor Describes Improved Formula for Intravenous Feeding

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

A new formula which speeds the tedious intravenuous feeding of patients unable to eat was described here yesterday for District doctors at their annual scientific assembly.

Developed over the past 18 months at Gallinger Municipal Hospital, the formula incorporates fruit sugars with the heretofore standard dextrose solutions for intravenous feeding.

The combination of sugars cuts to three hours the former eight to 12-hour period required to supply a patient his calory needs for one day, reported Dr. Jacob J. Weinstein, Gallinger surgeon who developed the technique.

Dr. Weinstein exhibited his work and its results yesterday for the first time, in scientific exhibit of the District Medical Society's assembly, at the Hotel Statler.

The three-day session opened yesterday with about 1200 doctors in attendance. Before its end, an estimated 3000 doctors and their guests are expected to register.

Opening day reports included a complaint by one doctor of the difficulty of getting patients to stop smoking, a symposium on various aspects of diabetes, and the disclosure that a new insulin for diabetics will be marketed in another month.

For his exhibit on intravenous feeding, Doctor Weinstein explained that the formula was tested successfully on more than 350 Gallinger patients, and has recently been approved for general hospital use. The Gallinger research, he said, was financed by a pharmaceutical firm.

The chief complaint in feeding patients who cannot take food by mouth has always been the length of time the patients must be taped to the bottles which drip dextrose solutions into their veins, Dr. Weinstein explained. Nor could physicians hurry the process by increasing the rate of flow.

Dr. Weinstein said he decided to add fructose, a fruit sugar often used in oral feeding formulas for infants, in the hope that the special sugar would help this conversion. Though fructose alone does not readily convert, it was found that a half-and-half combination of fructose and dextrose brought the best results, he said.

Insulin Report

Yesterday's report of the new insulin was give by Dr. Priscilla White, instructor in pediatrics at Tufts College Medical School.

The new insulin, designated as NPH (neutral protamine Hagerdorn), incorporates advantages of two separate insulins, one a fast-acting insulin and the other which gives lasting effect, Dr. White said. It can be given on a one-sho-a-day basis.

Dr. White, chief guest speaker at the Women's Medical Society Dinner, at the Hotel Mayflower, said the insulin would be available at drugstores in October.

Dr. Geza deTakats, of the University of Illinois School of Medicine, voiced the patient-smoking complaint. He termed the smoking habit "the greatest stumbling block" to treatment of Buerger's Disease, circulatory disorder.

Disposition Of $22,000 Splits Blood Bank Board

Nonprofit Group 'Stuck' With Funds As Result of Free Red Cross Service

The Community Blood Plasma Bank, which ended its operations 2½ years ago, has an accumulated fund of $22,000 and can't decide how to dispose of it.

The governing board, composed of five doctors and a layman, seems unable to agree on what should be done with the money. It has not met as a body in two years.

Some of the members feel the money might go to local hospitals for indigent patients who need whole blood or plasma but cannot pay for it. Others feel it might go to the Red Cross. One doctor favors giving it to the American Diabetes Association.

Outgrowth of OCD Bank

The community blood plasma bank was a direct outgrowth of the former Office of Civilian Defense plasma bank, which was dissolved in November, 1944.

A nonprofit, independent organization, with the governing board appointed by the District Commissioners, it operated in this way: a deposit of $15 was required for each unit of blood or plasma it dispensed. Half of the total of the deposit was refunded if the blood donation was properly replaced within 15 days.

The idea was not to make a profit from deposits but to keep sufficient whole blood or plasma immediately available at a minimum cost to the patient. The bank found, however, that while there were few replacements of blood deposits kept accumulating.

When the Red Cross started supplying blood and plasma free to anyone in February, 1948, the bank was forced to stop operations. The $22,000 it had on hand has remained untouched.

Wants to Keep Fund

Dr. Roger M. Choisser, the pathologist at the George Washington University school of medicine and president of the governing board, said yesterday that since there has been no emergency need for the fund, it may be well to have it on hand.

Fred S. Walker, manager of the Trades Unionist and secretary-treasurer of the board, wants to give it to the Red Cross. He pointed out that the Red Cross is trying to supply blood needed for everyone and that much is needed at present. The money could be used for an additional bloodmobile by the Red Cross, he said.

Dr. John A. Reed, vice president of the board, declined to make any statement about the matter.

Dr. Oscar B. Hunter referred to the fund as a "standby at this time" but said he had no objection to the fund being given to the hospitals for the use of indigent patients.

Dr. Charles Stanley White said he favored the money being set up in a general fund for hospitals here for indigent patients since it had come from local residents in most cases.

Dr. John M. Orem said he had no definite opinion as to how it should be disposed of other than that he felt it should be used in connection with the donation of whole blood or plasma.

450 Plumbers In Area Quit In Wage Row

Contracts Involved Also in Strike by Installation Group

Approximately 450 working members of Local 5, United Association of Plumbing and Pipefitters (AFL), walked out at 7:30 a. m. yesterday in a strike affecting most plumbing installations in Washington and nearby communities.

The dispute is over wages and contracts. Striking also are about 400 union members from out of town, working on union permits.

The local is seeking a one-year contract calling for a 25-cent hourly increase.

The Plumbing Contractors Associations, Inc., of Washington, has offered a two-year contract. It would provide for a 15-cent increase from September 1, 1950, to September 1, 1951, and an additional 15 cents from September 1, 1951, to September 1, 1952.

Present scale for plumbers is $2.50 an hour plus 10 cents an hour paid by the employer to a welfare fund.

The union contract expired at midnight August 31. Negotiations began July 24. The last negotiating session was held September 25.

The regional office of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service has assigned a conciliator to the case, but no sessions were scheduled yesterday. Both private and Government construction is affected.

The local has 750 members, of whom 600 "are working members." Of the 600, about 150 are now on jobs for employers who have signed, the local reported.

Elevator Builders Here End Walkout

A week-long walkout by members of Local 10 of the AFL Elevator Constructors Union was settled yesterday by instructions from the International union. The International ordered members to return to work.

The Washington Elevator Contractors Association said the walkout affected only maintenance and repair workers.

The local had protested a change in working hours.

Traditional time to report in Washington, union spokesmen said, was 7:30 a.m. not 8.

Builder Sued, Arrested on Larceny Count

13 Arlington Actions Ask $12,700 From Lucian Downing

An Arlington builder faces 13 lawsuits for a total of $12,700 and a charge of grand larceny in connection with houses his customers say he promised to build but never completed.

The builder, Lucian M. Downing of 3712 N. 18th st., waived preliminary hearing last Tuesday on the grand larceny charge and was freed in $1000 bond for action of the Arlington grand jury.

Croom also filed a civil suit charging that he gave Downing a check for $3000 in July to purchase a home site on N. 34th st. in Arlington.

The money was never returned, Croom declared in the suit, the lot was never purchased and the house he said Downing promised him was never built.

Two other civil suits were filed against Downing in Arlington Circuit Court. Robert A. Hoover of 802 Tennessee ave., Alexandria, said the builder took $1275 as down payment for a house but did no work.

The third Circuit Court action was filed by Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Chowe of Alexandria, who said they paid $3500 to Downing for a house that was never completed.

In Arlington County Court, 10 more cases are pending against Builder Downing—six brought by persons who said they paid him between $500 and $825 as deposits on houses he never finished.

Two other suits were brought by a building supplier and a draftsman who said Downing owed them money, and the two remaining civil actions were by noteholders who claimed they were not repaid.

Citizen Group to Meet

The regular meeting of the District Heights Citizens Association will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday, in the firehouse on Marlboro pike.

Grand Jury Cases Rise In County

Judge Tells Panel In Prince Georges That Population Hike Is to Blame

A sharp rise in the number of cases presented to the Prince Georges County grand jury yesterday was deemed no evidence of a crime wave by Circuit Court Judge Charles C. Marbury.

Although the number of cases presented was "considerably larger than at recent terms," it is a "natural and normal" result of increases in population in the county, Judge Marbury told the veniremen.

While terming the list of 140 cases "rather formidable," the situation is not one which need cause particular alarm, he said.

However, the jurist called attention to the "unusually large number of cases involving arson."

Pointing to 14 arson cases, he said the number of such cases "usually ranges in any one term from none to two or three at the most."

Judge Marbury did not specifically mention the 12 arson charges against seven volunteer firemen accused of firing barns and unoccupied dwellings in the Forrestville-Morningside area last June.

Cases included 3 of murder, 1 of manslaughter, six of rape or assaults against women, 3 robbery, 9 burglary or housebreaking, 17 larcenies, 10 of bastardy, 9 aggravated assaults, 23 of false pretenses or forgery and 45 miscellaneous cases.

Judge Marbury told the jurors he was "happy to report no evidence of subversive activities has been brought to the court's attention."

After charging the jury, Judge Marbury announced the appointment of former Assistant's State's Attorney Waldo Burnside as special prosecutor for the current Circuit Court session.

The 23 members of the grand jury drawn from a panel of 58 names are: Orrow P. Collins, Clarence H. Swick, James H. Ellis, William R. Wareham, John Weems, Quinlon C. Stephenson, Luther H. Mumford, Benjamin Briscoe, Ernest E. Brock, E. Ernest Bailey, Thurman Scott, Lewis Letcher, Mrs. Lydia W. Brambaugh, Robert Wilson, Leo J. Leoniz, William H. Shockley, Thomas G. Foreacre, Albert L. Moreland, Albert B. Brown, George H. Keighley, Mrs. Eunice Turner and Mrs. Verna Sweeney.

Hitchhiking Juror Fined for Tardiness

There will be no tardy hitchhikers on the Prince Georges County grand jury, Judge Charles C. Marbury ruled yesterday.

A prospective grand juror, Frederick Fischer, 69, of Beltsville, arrived in court in Upper Marlboro two hours after his name had been called. He said he had to thumb a ride, he had no other transportation.

Judge Marbury cited Fischer for contempt, ordered him to pay $2.50 costs and discharged him from further jury duty.

7 Women 'Seamen' Sent to Great Lakes

The Navy yesterday sent seven women "seamen" to the Great Lakes Training Station.

Ten men were accepted for enlistment by the Navy, and one member of the Fleet Reserve was recalled to active duty.

The Air Force enlisted 10 men, and the Army two men. The Marines enlisted one man and tentatively accepted three others.

Here Are Tips on Getting Downtown From Upper New Hampshire Ave. Area

Have you wondered whether you are taking the quickest route to work? TRAFFIC TRICKS, recommended routes developed from the Regional Highway Planning Survey of Metropolitan Washington, has the answer on the fast way to get to 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. and the Capitol.

RESIDENTS of Langley Park, Northwest Apartments, New Hampshire Gardens, Hillwood Manor, Clifton Park Village, Montgomery Knolls and Hillandale, Md., should take this route:

From the intersection of Piney Branch rd. and New Hampshire ave. in Prince Georges County, take New Hampshire, right on 5th st. off Grant clc. nw. through Park pl. nw., around the Reservoir on to 4th st., right on S nw., left on 6th, right on E to 14th.

The average peak traffic time is 25.9 minutes for the 8.3 mile distance. From the origin intersection, it should take 6 minutes to the D. C. line.

Other routes: Take Piney Branch rd. across Georgia ave. nw. through 13th and Logan cle., down 13th to E, right to 14th. Time: 29.5 minutes for 8.8 miles; 8.25 minutes to the D. C. line. At present it may be wise to skirt the 13th st. area until the widening project is completed. Also, remember that 13th is one-way southbound in morning rush hours and one-way northbound 4 to 6:30 p. m.

The Police Department cleared its lockers of accumulated and unclaimed property yesterday as more than a thousand frantic customers bid on such useful items as bathtubs, wheelchairs and shotguns.

The annual auction was held in the police warehouse, in the rear of 462 Indiana ave. nw., and for nearly seven hours Ralph A. Weschler and his son, Ben, professional auctioneers, kept the sale rolling at a pace exceeding any previously held.

"They were bidding anything just to buy something," said one dismayed second-hand dealer who was not in a mood to pay $10 for an item that he normally sells for $5. "Prices are way up this year, way more than they should be," commented another veteran of the sales.

One man made a successful bid of $10 for a radio he probably could have bought for $5 at a second-hand store. Another acquired a rifle for $25. "That same rifle sells new for $23; I know," a dealer whispered to a reporter.

The bargain-seekers were as varied as the items they bid on: stylishly dressed women rubbed shoulders with unpressed citizens who temporarily had interrupted their patrol of Skid Row.

The largest bid was $1600, for 1542 bottles of whisky; the smallest, 50 cents, for a wheel chair. Also auctioned off were pianos, all manner of furniture, the complete contents of a jewelry store and a stationery store (the latter lot included thousands of greeting cards); refrigerators, cameras, bicycles, fountain pens and luggage.

The property auctioned had been lost and found, stolen and recovered, abandoned and confiscated in raids, but never claimed. Usually, the annual sale nets about $6000. Police officials estimated that the sum this year will be double, perhaps triple that.

Judge Smith Sworn In

Emory B. Smith, 64, was sworn in yesterday as a judge of Municipal Court by Judge Henry W. Edgerton of the United States Court of Appeals.

Judge Smith

Judge Smith, who is the second Negro jurist on the bench here, was presented a robe by the Washington Bar Association.

The new jurist will have as his clerk his son, Emory H. Smith, and as his secretary, Viola Gardner. He and his wife reside at 1707 2d st. nw.

New Light Today

Motorists will find a new traffic light in operation at 26th st. and Virginia ave. nw. at 2 p. m. today.

"Since this will be the first signal a motorist will encounter after leaving Rock Creek pkwy. (southbound)," said Traffic Director George E. Keneipp, "traffic will be slowed to allow vehicles to get into the proper traffic pattern. However, since the new signal has been synchronized with other signals on Virginia ave. east of this location, traffic should move without further serious delay."

Keneipp said the light was installed to permit pupils of Briggs-Montgomery Elementary School, on 27 th st., to cross Virginia ave.

The new light will operate from 6 a. m. to 1 a. m. In the intervening hours it will flash a caution warning.

'Juke Box' Control

A "juke box" method of giving information about venereal disease was exhibited here yesterday. It plays recorded answers to questions about "VD," when you press buttons containing the written questions. There's no charge.

The District Health Department, which employed a regular musical juke box in developing the method, said the machine will be made available to business, labor and other organizations interested in the venereal-disease problem.

Boy Dies of Burns

Joel Howard, 9, of 1029 2d st., sw., died at Casualty Hospital at 9:40 last night after being burned when he touched an 11,000-volt power line yesterday while playing atop a freight car on a railroad siding at 12th st. and Maryland ave. sw.

Police said Joel, his brother, Pernell, 11, and a third boy, George Ross, 13, of 473 K st. sw., were playing on the freight car when the accident occurred.

Pernell said there was suddenly a "big explosion" which knocked him to the roof of the car. He said his brother also had been felled and that his clothes were on fire.

Arlington Aide Charged With Tipsy Driving

F. Freeland Chew, a member of the Arlington County board, was arrested last Saturday night on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor and was lodged in the Fairfax Jail for a few hours, it was learned yesterday.

Chew, who lives at 1502 N. Edison st., Arlington, was released on $500 bond at about 11 p. m. Saturday, Fairfax police records show.

He was stopped by Virginia State Trooper J. S. Atkins on Routes 211 and 29, between the town of Fairfax and Fairfax circle. The trooper took Chew to the Fairfax police station, where he was booked at about 6 p. m. and jailed until he obtained the $500 bond.

A hearing on the charge was set for 10 a. m. November 10 in Fairfax Trial Justice Court.

Dogs Barred In Projects; Tenants Plan Legal Fight

Service Officials Join in Protest Over Ultimatum In Alexandria

Dog owners in three Alexandria public housing developments have been told that if they don't get rid of their pets before November 1, they and their dogs will have to move out on that date.

Eviction notices have been sent to 14 residents of Cameron Valley, Chinquapin Village and John Roberts Homes by the Alexandria Redevelopment and Housing Authority. Many others have reluctantly complied with the authority's "no dogs" order.

Resistance of the dog owners has made the issue a national defense problem, with Army and Navy authorities, as well as Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) interceding for the dog lovers.

While dog-owning tenants declared the authority's action violates the right to the pursuit of happiness, their pets were described yesterday as a "general nuisance" by Edmund F. Ticer, chairman of the board of five commissioners in charge of the Housing Authority.

The Army and Navy are in the "dogfight" because employes of Fort Belvoir and of the Naval Torpedo Station in Alexandria, as well as soldiers' families and veterans, are dog-owning residents of the defense homes.

Last Friday, Representative Smith appealed to both the local board and the Housing and Home Finance Agency, stating in his letter to the HHFA that "it seems to me a very poor time to throw military personnel and war workers on the street over a dog."

The dog owners, themselves, have formed a committee and have retained a lawyer.

The Housing Authority commissioners first acted on the dog problem last June, after receiving complaints.

"One dog bit a child, others ruined children's sand boxes, and they got to be such a general nuisance that we had to take steps to get rid of them," Ticer said.

One dog owner who promised to remain until the final deadline was A. H. Humphreys of 146 Yale dr., Cameron Valley. His three Dalmatians are more important to him than living at the development, he said.

Heat Wave Here Due to Taper Off In Another Day

Put away your woolies for a little while longer, kiddos, we're having a heat wave.

The thermometer juice sizzled up to 87 at 2:20 p. m. yesterday and the Weatherman promises something like 85 today. But be consoled: Wednesday will be cloudy and cooler.

Yesterday's 87 was only two notches short of the record temperature for October 2. On that day in 1881 it reached 89.

October is by way of being a tricky weather month in these parts. It's been as cool as 26 on three occasions in Weather Bureau records and as warm as 97 as recently as October 1, 1941.

High School 'Cyclist Injured in Collision

Charles Crickman, 16-year-old Western High School student, of 1825 F st. nw., was seriously injured yesterday at 6 p. m. when his motor-bike was in collision with an auto at 19th and G sts. nw.

The boy was admitted to Emergency Hospital with a possible spine fracture and multiple abrasions. Police said the driver of the car was Mrs. Britta H. Kraemer, 44, of 4319 Fessenden st. nw.

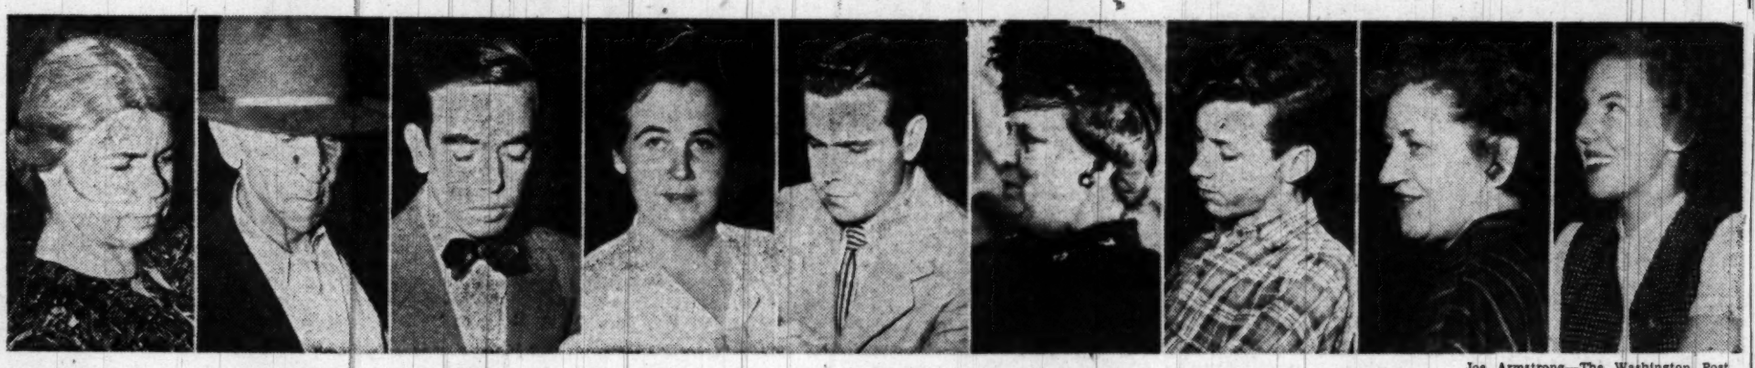
'Crusade for Freedom' Petitions Draw Area Signatures



Joe Armstrong—The Washington Post

Mrs. Edith Prendable, Government clerk of 1632 Massachusetts ave. se.: "There's nothing complicated why I'm signing . . . Belief in freedom is the answer"

Walter Neal, 69, former soldier, of 940 French st. nw.: "Thirty years in the Army, and two wars make you think peace must be fought for on all fronts"

Randall Brooks, 25, student of 2439 Pennsylvania ave. nw.: "I'm studying European history. I'm impressed with the effect of truth campaigns"

Mrs. Ruth Plummer, housewife of 2712 4th st. ne.: "The sound of the Freedom Bell started me thinking. This is the greatest cause in the world. I just want peace, that's all."

Philip W. Shoemaker, 28, insurance man of 3822 Davis pl. nw.: "I was in the Navy, have a 9-month-old son and will do anything to promote decent fellowship."

Mrs. Margaret Sweeney, housewife of 4207 Ellicott st. nw.: "I'm signing because it is to fight communism. I want very much to sign up."

James Talbert, 20, electrician of 5053 11th st. ne.: "I am enlisting in the Navy in the next few days. I want to get this mess over."

Miss Helen H. Schaff, clerk-typist of 7300 Alaska ave. nw.: "I signed because I am 100 percent American and because I want the boys home."

Miss Elizabeth Shaw, student of 6229 32d pl. nw.: "My fiance is a yearling at West Point. I want my man to be a peacetime soldier."

Mrs. Margaret Sweeney noticed people signing a petition in front of the District Building yesterday.

"Is that to fight Communism?" she asked.

"All right, I want very much to sign up." The elderly woman, who lives at 4207 Ellicott st. nw., had a firm look about her as she added her name to the petition.

That was how Mrs. Sweeney and apparently thousands of other Washingtonians took to the opening of the "Crusade for Freedom" campaign.

The idea behind the Nationwide crusade is simple and direct. It is an effort to pierce the Iron Curtain with a new voice. This voice is "Radio Free Europe," a non-governmental radio station in Western Germany which is beaming daily broadcasts to Iron Curtain countries.

Here there will be a three-week campaign to sign up at least 1,000,000 District residents to the Crusade's Freedom Scroll.

"I'm signing because it is time we all got busy. This crusade is a great way to show the Communists they are a vocal minority," said Mrs. Philip Smith of 5103 10th st., S. Arlington, Va.

On a trailer-truck stood a 10-ton bronze Freedom Bell—symbol of the nationwide campaign—which leaves today for Baltimore in an 11-city freedom tour.

Former Ambassador Joseph C. Grew, the main speaker, called Freedom Crusade a "mobilization of American citizens to defeat vicious propaganda, and get the truth behind the Iron Curtain. It answers the big lie with the big truth of freedom," he said.

He hit hard at recent Kremlin inspired peace petitions. "Let's get this straight," said Grew, "the only peace Stalin offers is the peace of the police state, the peace of the prison, the peace of the tomb."

The new Freedom bell will be dedicated on United Nations Day, October 24, in Berlin and will stand, said Grew, as a "permanent symbol of the free world's determination to resist Communist agression."

Enshrined in the base of the bell will be the names of all who signed the Freedom Scroll.

By last night Freedom scrolls were all over town. Oscar Cox, chairman of the District committee in the crusade, reported more than 400 individuals had volunteered to obtain 50 signatures each in door-to-door canvassing.

The Board of Education has ordered the scrolls distributed to District school children. And the business, veteran, labor and civic groups have also pitched in.

Assisting Cox on the local committee are Frank J. Luchs and Ellwood Davis.

Self-Service Gas Ordinance on Trial

H. C. Wills, operator of Alexandria's only self-service gasoline station, yesterday opened his court fight against the Alexandria City Council's antiself-service station ordinance.

Witnesses for him in Alexandria Circuit Court included the fire marshals of both Alexandria and the District of Columbia, who said they believe self-service stations are no more of a fire hazard than conventional filling stations.

The hearing on Wills' petition, seeking an injunction against the council's ordinance, was continued by Judge Arthur Sinclair until December 4 after about half the petitioner's case had been presented.

Armistead L. Boothe, associated with V. Floyd Williams, city attorney, as counsel for the city in the case, unsuccessfully saught to have the case dismissed after the opening arguments yesterday.

Attorney Robert C Lowe, who, with Attorney Glenn U. Richard, represented Wills, had declared that the ordinance violated the Fourteenth Amendment and the Virginia Bill of Rights, as well as Section 12 of the Constitution of Virginia.

Alexandria Fire Marshal John C. Posey said he believed Wills's station was as safe as any other filling station. On cross-examination, he admitted there was a difference of opinion on the safety of self-service stations among fire-prevention authorities.

District Fire Marshal Raymond Roberts said he knew of no accident occurring in a self-service station.

Mrs. Leftwich Dies Widow of Pastor

Mrs. Clark Walton Leftwich, widow of the Rev. Clark Walton Leftwich, died Sunday at her home, 5006 13th st. nw., of a heart attack.

Mrs. Leftwich

Mrs. Leftwich, the former Susan Elizabeth Sale, was born at Hibernia, the ancestral home of her grandfather, Dr. Richard Alexander Sale, at Bedford, Va. In 1898, she was married to the Reverened Leftwich, a pastor in Virginia parishes until his death in 1933. She then made her home with her daughters, Miss Frances Walton Leftwich and Miss Virginia Meriwether Leftwich, of the 13th st. address.

Until recent years she was active in the United Daughters of the Confederacy and various church and civic organizations.

She is also survived by a third daughter, Mrs. William Randolph Grymes of Orange, Va.; one son, Richard Sale Leftwich of Roanoke, Va.; a sister, Mrs. Emily ale Brawner of the 13th st. address; a brother, Dr. William Alexander Sale, of St. Louis, and three grandchildren.

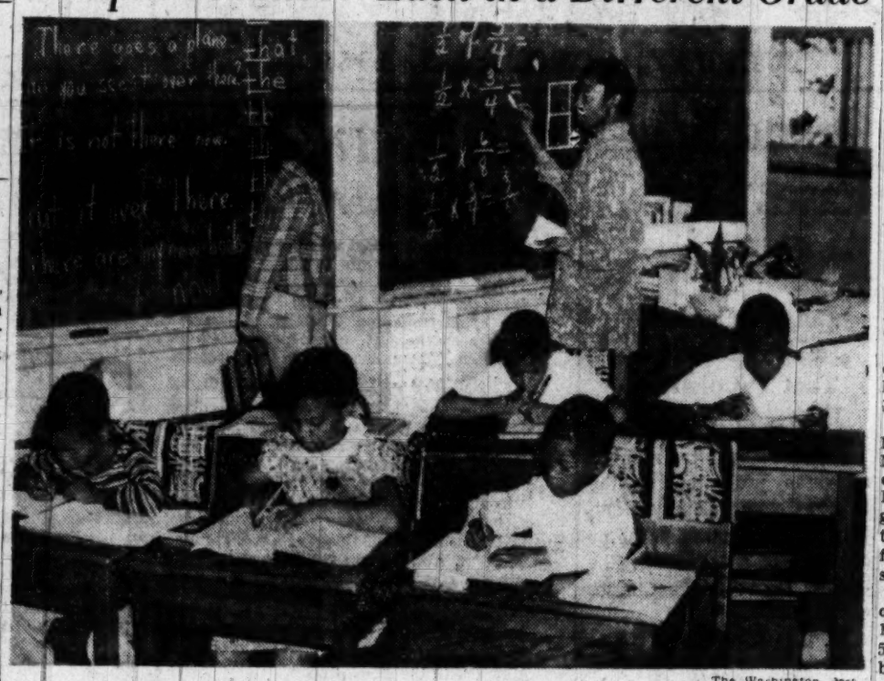
6 Pupils in School—Each in a Different Grade



The Washington Post

'ONE-ROOM SCHOOLHOUSE'—Mrs. Flora L. Hill teaches all six grades at the Reno Elementary School, and each of her six students is in a different grade. Here Mrs. Hill instructs sixth-grader Joseph Davis, 12, of 3826 Dennison pl. nw., at the blackboard. Other pupils (at desks, from left) are William Harrison, 8, of 4040 Ellicott st. nw., in the third grade; Marie Forman, 7, of 4831 41st st. nw., second grade; Ronald Harrison, 6, William's brother, first grade. In the back row are Eugene Allen, 10, of 3824 Dennison pl. nw., fifth grade, and Raymond Willis, 10, of 3832 Dennison pl. nw., a fourth-grade student

Reno School Closing Nears As Student Body Dips to Six

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

The school once described as "the strangest ever seen in a large city" probably will close its doors next week.

School officials who last year fought to keep the Reno Elementary School open now say it has reached the point of diminishing returns.

Reno—with four rooms and six students—serves a vanishing Negro population in the area of Fort dr. and Nebraska ave. nw.

School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning is scheduled to recommend closing of the school when the Board of Education meets Wednesday. If the board approves students attending Reno will be transferred to other Negro schools. The nearest is two miles away.

The long distances that the children ranging in age from six to twelve will have to travel kept the school open last year when the enrollment was nine.

Two years ago the Strayer Survey on District Schools recommended closing of the Reno. Dr. George D. Strayer, author of the report, described the "strangeness" of the school.

It operates like a one-room country school. The one teacher, Mrs. Flora L. Hill, instructs all grades in one room. Each child now enrolled is on a different grade level. This means that during the course of a day Mrs. Hill teaches seven different subjects seven different ways.

The absence of competition between students is one reason for shutting down the school. The youngsters grow complacent with their own progress.

Another is the expense of operating the school. There is Mrs. Hill's salary and the salaries of a full-time and a part-time engineer custodian. The old gray stucco building eats up two tons of coal a week during the winter.

It was filled to capacity until 1926 when enrollment was 146. The number of students has dropped steadily as the Negro families that came to live in the area at the end of the Civil War moved away.

The area now has two big white elementary schools, the Murch and the Janney, and the Alice Deal Junior and the Woodrow Wilson Senior High Schools.

S. S. Koones, Ex-Transit Receiver, Dies

Solemn requiem mass will be sung at 10 a. m. today at St. Matthew's Cathedral for Samuel Shively Koones, 76, retired senior receiver in the treasurer's office of Capital Transit Co. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Koones

Mr. Koones died Sunday at his home, 1731 19th st. nw.

A native of Lexington, Va., Mr. Koones came to Washington as an infant. His father was Charles Montgomery Koones, who in 1874 joined the old Capital Traction Co., a foreunner of Capital Transit, as secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Koones himself joined the old Capital Traction in January 1, 1895, and retired in 1945—after 50 years service. He was honored by the board of directors at his retirement.

Mr. Koones attended public and private schools in Washington and was a member of the Holy Name Society of the Cathedral and a member of the Washington Arts Club.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary O'Hara Koones; a daughter, Mrs. Andrew McLaughlin of Silver Spring, and three grandchildren.

Elizabeth Monahan To Be Buried Today

Funeral services for Elizabeth Coleman Monahan, 91, a Washington resident for 80 years, will be held today at 11 a. m. in Gawler's funeral home. Burial will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Monahan died Saturday at the home of her daughter, Helen F. Monahan, 25 W. Caton st., Alexandria. She was the widow of Thomas F. Monahan, a lawyer and labor economist, who died in 1924.

She was a public stenographer for many years with offices first in a corridor at the Capitol and later in the Colorado Building.

Alan Clarke, Former Newspaperman, Dies

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 2 (AP).—Alan Bhrton Clarke, 49, statistical director of the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, died unexpectedly in his office today.

A native of Richmond, Mr. Clarke joined the board as publicist and statistician when the board was organized 16 years ago. He was a former newspaperman.

W. A. Baker, Winchester Official, Dies

WINCHESTER, Va., Oct. 2 (AP).—William Alexander Baker, 69, veteran city official, died Sunday at his home here after a long illness.

Mr. Baker was elected to the City Council in 1916, and except for wartime service in the armed forces, remained a city official until his death. He was president of the council when he was elected city treasurer in 1929, a post to which he was elected for a sixth term last November.

Active in organizing the local American Legion post, Baker had served with the occupation army in Germany after World War I.

Mrs. Layton, Former Army Employe, Dies

Funeral services for Mrs. Julia Berg Layton, 55, who served in the War Department for 28 years, will be held today at 11 a. m. in the Lee funeral home, 4th st. and Massachusetts ave. ne. Burial will be private.

Mrs. Layton died Friday of a heart attack at her home, 1820 Clydesdale pl. nw.

Mrs. Layton was born in Sweden, but came to the United States as a child and lived almost her entire life in Washington. She retired about seven years ago from her job with the War Department.

She is survived by her mother, Mathilde Berg, 708 F st. ne.; a sister, Miss Anna Berg of the Clydesdale pl. address, and a brother, Henry D. Berg, 52 Bryant pl. nw.

John Musson Dies; U. S. Employe 31 Years

John W. Musson, 51, assistant to the chief of transportation division, General Accounting Office, died Sunday at Bethesda Naval Hospital. He lived at 5175 Branch ave. se.

Mr. Musson began work for the War Department in 1919 and had 31 years of continuous Federal service. He was a lifelong resident of the Washington area.

Survivors include his widow, the former Mary E. Anderson; two daughters, Mrs. Betty Zimmers of Oxnard, Calif., and Mrs. Evelyn Lorraine Crosthwait of Encino, Calif., a brother and a sister.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 1 p. m. at Chambers funeral home, 517 11th st. se. Interment will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Carpenters Remain Out

The carpenters were called out after work September 26 in a union protest against working alongside nonunion men.

The Army said two union contractors and one nonunion contractor are employed on the repair of barracks, mess halls and other buildings at Fort Belvoir. The work is in connection with the Army's expansion program.

Fashion Is So Much Velvet

By Evelyn Hayes

VELVET is elegant . . . velvet is flattering . . . and in this season of elegance the velvet look is good fashion. From head to toe velvet plays its part—lending lustrous appeal in a little hat, enriching the casual look of a tweed suit.

WEAR TOUCHES of velvet—or velveteen—or go all out for the most subtle flatterer of them all. Remember, velvet has always been the traditional choice of beauties sitting for their portrait. Its flattery is the reason.

WAISTCOAT OF VELVET has your initials on the collar tab to give it that "custom-made-for-you" look. For day, team it with a bright shirt. For 5 and after, wear it solo with matching skirt. At The Casual Corner on Connecticut ave.

Gen. MacArthur Steals Spotlight At Republican Luncheon

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, from a distance of approximately 10,000 miles, stole the show yesterday at the luncheon meeting of the D. C. League of Republican Women at the Mayflower Hotel.

Each time the general's name was mentioned at the luncheon program, the club women burst into spontaneous ovation. It all started when guest speaker Contantine Brown, foreign affairs columnist for the Evening Star credited the general with ending the United States foreign policy of appeasement.

The Administration led this country in a foreign policy of appeasement right up to the invasion of Southern Korea, Mr. Brown said. And it was General MacArthur's insistence that we defend South Korea which finally broke the policy, he added.

Mr. Brown then praised the general for his invasion of Inchon. The Inchon landing, he said, will go down in history as one of the most important strategic military maneuvers.

Following his address a club woman asked Mr. Brown where the Communists would strike next. "Very probably, Germany—a very tender spot," he said, "but quite possibly Indo China."

He also predicted that the United States might soon have to send arms to the Philippines to check Communist insurrections.

Here's Fall Fashion Refresher "Quickie"

Midway in the season seems like a good time to give you a quick fashion refresher that will guide you in shopping.

Silhouette—slim in general for daytime but broken in many ways for easier wearing. But fuller skirts are still smart, too, if you want them—and many women do.

Skirt lengths—Still the same—14 and 15 inches.

Waistlines—Tiny and normal.

Bust line—High and accented, but soft and rounded at the same time.

Shoulders—Still soft and rounded, but with more set-in sleeves.

Necklines—High cut and simple on one hand—low cut on the other. Also really bare with convertible tops to hide them.

Entertain After Christening

Dr. and Mrs. John W. T. Ridenour jr., entertained on September 24 in their apartment at Woodley Park Towers following the christening of their son, John William 3d, in St. Dominic's Church. The Rev. Andres M. Whelan officiated at the christening. Miss Olga Mizza was godmother for her nephew and Dr. Allan King was godfather.

CHOCOLATE MILK

Ingredients: 1 cup sugar, ½ cup cocoa, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 cup water, 2 teaspoons vanilla, milk.

Method: Mix sugar, cocoa and salt together well in saucepan. Add water and stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved; bring to a boil and boil gently for 5 minutes. Cool; stir in vanilla. Make about 1 cup chocolate syrup. Use 2 tablespoons of the syrup (or more if desired) for each cup of milk; shake or beat well before serving. Store any of the syrup not used in a covered jar in refrigerator.

Miss Franke, Lieut. Schelp To Be Married

Mrs. Benjamin F. Franke of La Crosse, Wis., has announced the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Miss Marian Nan Franke, of Washington, to Lieut. (j.g.) Eugene Rasche Schelp, USNR, also of Washington.

The bride-elect is a graduate of La Crosse College where she was a member of Lambda Sigma Chi Sorority. She has been employed by the Department of State as assistant publications planning officer.

Lieutenant Schelp attended the University of Illinois where he was a member of Theta Chi Fraternity. He is a graduate of the Foreign Service School of Georgetown University in Washington and was a Foreign Service staff officer until his Naval Air Reserve squadron was called to active duty on September 15.

The squadron has been ordered to Corpus Christi, Tex., for two months training duty and the couple plans to be married at the chapel of the Naval Air Station there in October.

Wileys to Live in Georgetown on Diplomatic Holiday

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

AMBASSADOR AND MRS. JOHN WILEY, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor, checked in last night as guests of Carmel Offie of the State Department. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor have leased their house to the Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Thomas Finletter.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiley, since returning from Iran in August have been looking for a temporary Washington home. They've found it—until January 1—George Baker's Georgetown house.

In between posts, a diplomat of ambassadorial rank gets three months leave. Mr. Wiley's holiday begins today; so after a few days here he and Mrs. Wiley will be off to New York and will move into the Baker home at 1324 30th st. when they return.

The Wileys were in Fort Leavenworth, Kans., last week where the Ambassador delivered a speech at the Army War College.

PARTY PARADE:

"WASHINGTON PARTY," fashion show luncheon held weekly in the Palladian Room of the Shoreham, made a successful debut yesterday. Celebrities seated at the guest table included Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General; Mrs. Howard McGrath, wife of the Attorney General; Burke Wilkinson, author of the new novel "Run, Mongoose"; and Richard Coe, who needs no introduction.

As guest of honor at a tea at St. John's Bookstall on Friday, October 6, Mr. Wilkinson will have the novel experience of hearing his book reviewed by none other than the Rev. C. Leslie Glenn. Dr. Glenn is quite famous for his delightful book reviews, and the tea promises to be well attended.

MRS. DORIS FLEESON entertained last evening at a dinner party at 1925 F Street Club for her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fleeson of Wichita, Kans.

MR. AND MRS. LOTHROP LUTTRELL entertained at luncheon on Sunday at Mulberry Hill, their home at Rockville, Md., for Dr. and Mrs. James Twyman of Charlottesville, Va.

Also in the group were Mr. and Mrs. H. Cabell Maddux, jr.; Dr. and Mrs. Henry Ecker; Comdr. William Hudgins; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Huff of Alexandria; and Joseph Kellar.

TRAVEL DEP'T.

MRS. EDWIN B. PARKER who spent the summer in Europe, has returned to Washington from Denver, Colo., where she visited her niece, Mrs. E. G. Constam, the former Miss Elsa Peterson.

DR. AND MRS. WILLIAM E. DUNN have left by motor for Dallas, Tex., where they will visit their daughter, Mrs. E. C. Fritz. From there they will fly to Lima, Peru, for an extended stay. They expect to be back in Washington early in the new year.

MRS. WILLIAM M. RUDDOCK has returned to her home in Indiana, Pa., after a short visit with Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie. Mrs. Ruddock was accompanied to Washington by her son, William Parker Ruddock, who has entered George Washington University Law School.

MISS MARILYN SWORZYN, who has been touring Europe since June, spending the past month in Portugal and Spain, is sailing for home on the Ile de France October 6. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rube Sworzyn of Washington.

REAR ADMIRAL AND MRS. HUGH H. GOODWIN's daughter, Sidney, is back from Radcliffe after finishing her graduate studies and is with her parents in their home in Bethesda.

Miss Goodwin specialized in organic chemistry and received her Bachelor's degree at the University of California, where she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. She took her Master's degree at Radcliffe in 1948 and has just completed all requirements for her Doctorate. For the past two years she has studied under a Research Fellowship awarded by the National Institute of Health.

CONGRATULATIONS TO:

MR. AND MRS. LEONARD H. BALENTINE on the birth of a daughter, Joy Patricia, on September 29 at Columbia Hospital. Mrs. Balentine is the former Miss Karla Hill, founder of Washington Town Hall.

Dr. and Mrs. J. T. de Bettancourt of Hancock Village, Chestnut Hill, Mass., are parents of a third child and first daughter, born September 18 at Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital. Mrs. de Bettancourt is the former Miss Mary Dolan, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Dolan of Dorchester, Mass. Mrs. Joseph de Bettancourt of Washington is the baby's paternal grandmother.

DATE-BOOK DATA:

MR. AND MRS. CLEMENT E. CONGER of Alexandria, have sent out invitations for a cocktail party from 4 to 7 p.m. on Saturday, October 7 in honor of the newly married Howard W. Smiths. Mrs. Smith is the former Miss Marion Norris, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leo Brison Norris. Guests have been asked to come to Broad View lodge in Virginia and have received detailed instructions how to get there, ending poetically with "through the meadow and into the woods."

INVITATIONS are in the mail from the trustees of the National Gallery of Art to the opening of an exhibition of European paintings from the Gulbenkian collection, on Sunday afternoon, October 8, at 3 o'clock. Born an Armenian, now a British subject, C. S. Gulbenkian has one of the most important private collections of art in the world. Some 40 of his paintings, which were shown on loan in the National Gallery in London, will be shown in exhibitions here.

Perle Stars on Liberte Crossing

ABOARD THE FRENCH LINER LIBERTE, Oct. 2 (by radio telephone).—Perle Mesta, American Minister to Luxemberg and Washington's famous party-giver, starred as a guest at a party Sunday night.

MRS. MESTA

The passengers, including a notable representation of the diplomatic, political and social elite of two continents, conceded that the American Minister proved that she could "take" as well as "give" parties amiably.

The charm with which the Capital long has been familiar enchanted those aboard the great French liner. Mrs. Mesta was easily the "personage" of the voyage. At her appearance Sunday night, she was beautifully gowned and wore becomingly and tastefully her much admired jewels.

THE NATIONAL SOCIETY OF ARTS AND LETTERS opens its fall activities today with a board meeting at 1 p.m. and a general meeting at 2 p.m., both at the home of Mrs. James H. Horgan in Potomac, Md. Mrs. Bredo Stabell, wife of Norway's U. N. delegate, will come down from New York to tell the group her impressions "Behind the Scenes at the U. N." Mrs. Jesse Frank Nicholson and Mrs. John Davis Lodge are the new program co-chairmen. Mrs. James Douglass, president, will cut a birthday cake celebrating the chapter's sixth year.

Mother of Three Girls Is Sleepless With Anxiety About the Youngest's Crippled Leg, a Congenital Defect; Wonders If Early Amputation Is Advisable

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have a problem on which I need help so badly that I am willing to tell the whole world about it if necessary. I have two lovely healthy girls, ages 11 and 9 years; and also I have a third daughter now three and a half years old. It is she I must tell you about.

Ruthie was born with a defective left leg. It is about four inches shorter than the other leg now; a bone is missing from kneecap to ankle, and there is no ankle action. In other words, her left foot just points downward, so that she has to stand on her toes instead of the sole of her foot. And with so many things wrong, it seems that nothing can be done for the leg.

Therefore the problem facing me is: Should I continue to let her wear a built-up shoe and a brace, as she has been doing? Or should I decided upon amputation now while she is young, so that she may learn to use an artificial limb while growing up? As it is her future that is concerned, and not mine alone, I spend sleepless nights trying to find the right solution.

I have never seen an artificial limb; I don't know how they work or what the drawbacks are, if any. And when important details aren't clear in your mind, it's just that much harder to decide. Ruthie has more zest and determination than all the rest of us put together. Do you think I should wait until she's old enough to decide what she'd rather do?—and in the meantime hope for a miracle that medical science might find in the future? Please answer soon. K. P.

DEAR K. P.: As I get the picture, you and Ruthie need firsthand specialist help with two problems, the one being her defective limb, and the other your neurotic chagrin about it. The physical handicap, such as it is, may be taken in stride without detriment to her personality, and without depriving her of average success in human relations, provided she doesn't absorb from you an anxiety neurosis about herself. However, at this writing it seems you are on the verge of doing such damage to her.

I have reviewed your letter with the learned head of a first-class diagnostic clinic for private patients.—the kind of medical set-up that "treats the whole man," to promote balanced health of mind and body. This fine doctor echoed my thought (as stated above), by saying immediately that your emotional attitude towards Ruthie's congenital defect is the major problem calling for treatment at this time.

"It is of first importance for the mother to get an unembarrassed attitude toward the situation," he said in effect. "The child will grow into a healthy, emotionally sound individual if her emotional surroundings are right. Then the defective leg won't matter. Let it go, and build up her shoe as necessary." On the hopeful side, he mentioned that the bone may still grow some, assuming the cartilege condition is favorable.

To be perfectly frank, I experienced a shock reaction to your idea of amputating the limb, as a supposed contribution to the child's well-being. The suggestion indicates that you are primarily and almost morbidly appearance-conscious about Ruth's body. Apparently you think an artificial limb, well maneuvered, might be more attractive than the stunted member. In my opinion, the inconvenience would be greater; and I think the major ordeal of amputation would be inexcusable, if vanity were the sole justification.

My consultant also opposes amputation, except as an emergency measure to protect life itself, when malignant infection threatens. And he is confident that you will abandon the idea when your anxious confusion has been relieved with the help of good psychological and orthopedic counsel. A fairly short drive away from you, along the bay shore motor route, you will find a first rate general clinic in (Palo Alto) the city just northwest of the town from which your letter comes. The clinic bears the same name as the city, and is well staffed to furnish reliable recommendations in cases like Ruthie's. M. H.

Video Show Starts Thursday

Junior League to Re-open 'Playtime'

IT'S "PLAYTIME" AGAIN for the Junior League of Washington, opening on Thursday at 5 p. m. in a new 13-week series of TV shows for the small fry.

Playtime will again feature Miss Agnes Birney as Popit, the delightful elf with her supersonic, electronic balloons and Miss Bliss Shumann as GG, the Guessing Girl, an intellectual dope.

The first show will open with a marionette play, "Sleeping Beauty," which will show how a puppet may be made of wallpaper cleaner and will take the audience on a trip to the zoo to meet their friends, Bungo, Jimbina and Taku.

WRITTEN AND PRODUCED by the Junior League, the Playtime series is under the general chairmanship of Mrs. Robert J. Wilson. It was the first TV show planned and produced by any Junior League. The show made its debut in October, 1947, and was so widely acclaimed after the first five performances that it was carried for the next 13 weeks.

Playtime is based on the idea that video entertainment for children must stem from a definite purpose, to carry a meaning that will contribute to the cultural welfare of the young.

So far this year there are 60 volunteer League members working on the production. All marionette and shadow plays are original or adaptations written by Mrs. Robert Wilson. Scripts are prepared by Mrs. Wilson; movie scripts by Miss Birney, Miss Schumann and Miss Betty Carroll. Program coordinator is Mrs. Alex P. Guyol.

MARIONETTES ARE A LARGE group of League volunteers who make, manipulate and costume puppets, build sets and scenery, as well as serve as recorded voices under the chairmanship of Mrs. Edmund H. Brooke and Miss Rhoda Armstrong.

"Busy Hands" demonstrations are prepared by Mrs. Warren L. Stephenson; shadow plays are produced by Miss Marian Wilson, Mrs. B. Hodges, Miss Julia Foraker and Mrs. Karl Kellerman.

Coffee and Punch for 200 Isn't Something You Can Whip Up in a Few Minutes

THE BIGGER THE CROWD, the bigger the problem! When you have 200 guests on your hands, it takes a bit of figuring to know how much food to buy (not to mention a bit of work to prepare it!) A local reader writes:

DEAR ANNE:

I have been appointed chairlady of hospitality in our school Parent-Teachers Association. I'd like to know how to make punch and coffee for 200 women. Also when I buy cookies, how many pounds do I need to serve 200?

Mrs. B. D. S., Washington.

COFFEE FOR 200

10 to 12 gallons boiling water
4 pounds coffee
4 cups cold water
4 eggs

Mix coffee with cold water and eggs and divide into cloth bags, one to each large vessel used to boil the coffee. Divide up water evenly, too. Bring to the boiling point (will take about 15 minutes.) This makes 10 to 12 gallons boiled coffee. (If mechanical equipment is used, follow accompanying directions.)

FRUIT PUNCH FOR 200

2 pints lemon juice
2 pints grapefruit juice
14 to 16 pounds sugar
Ice water

Mix fruit juices. Add sugar and stir until dissolved. Then add enough ice water to make a total of 10 gallons.

About buying the cookies: I'd say get around 12 pounds. I think you'll find medium-sized cookies run about 32 to the pound (count 'em and see, with the kind you want.) This would mean you'd have between 1½ and 2 cookies per person for your crowd of 200.

DEAR ANNE:

I hope you will be able to direct me to someone who gives instructions in binding books in leather. Or perhaps there is among your readers someone who makes this a hobby and would be willing to pass on to me the fine points of the art. I have exhausted all phone book listings of craft and leather shops. You are my last resource!

Dorothy C. Stafford, 5922 13th st. nw.

The telephone number of an experienced teacher of bookbinding—leather and otherwise—is Adams 0387. She teaches small classes in this craft so that her pupils get actual practice.

INSIDE AND OUTSIDE cleanliness are the main requirements of teen-age complexion care. Linda learns that an after-school-hours snack of lettuce and tomato salad, plus a glass of milk, will help her insure a smooth, glowing skin.

Experiment Linda

Even Teenagers Need Some Complexion Care

Third day of Linda's six-day beauty program.

By Ann Lawrence

"DO I NEED complexion care?" Linda asked.

The answer is a big, unequivocal "YES." Everybody needs it. Certainly, a 13-year-old does not need heavy creams and lotions and lubricants. Her complexion care must consist of plenty of soap and water, plenty of sleep (8 hours is maintenance standard; 9, 10, 11 hours is beauty insurance) and a good, balanced diet. That's the complexion care program for the normal teen-age skin.

Girls cannot learn too soon that absolute cleanliness . . . internally as well as externally . . . is the best way to ward off ugly pimples and blemishes. For outside cleanliness, soap and water and a rough wash cloth, used at least three times a day, are your best allies. For inside cleanliness, good health habits are a "must." And those habits include a sensible program of eating. One quart of milk a day, at least eight full glasses of water, two green vegetables, one serving of fresh fruit will do more to keep the teen-age skin in A-1 condition than all the beauty preparations the cosmetician can compound!

LINDA LOVES ICE CREAM. Is it bad for her skin, she wants to know. On the contrary, the ice cream helps to supply the milk she needs and is beneficial, if it does not replace the essentials listed above.

But if every dish of ice cream she eats is covered with a gooey, rich sauce, heaped with nuts and cherries and whipped cream, then it can be harmful.

Teen-agers must watch out for that dreaded skin disease, acne, which is caused by a rebellion of the sebaceous, or oil, glands. If these glands are overstimulated by too rich, oily food, if the pores of your face are not kept scrupulously clean so that there will be no clogging as they attempt to secrete oil, they'll scream their protest in those blotchy, red acne eruptions.

IF YOU DO HAVE acne, then consult your doctor at once. Don't try a home cure and never, ever squeeze the pimples. Never squeeze any pimple; you can bruise and scar the skin so that you'll carry its mark with you always.

Happily, Linda's skin seldom breaks out. When it does, she will use a special soap which contains sulphur plus a mild disinfectant. She'll cut down on sweets, increase the water she drinks, replace starchy vegetables with green or yellow ones for a day or two until the blemish clears up.

Cocteau's Charm Is Really Eye-Appeal

By Richard L. Coe

THOUGH HE ALWAYS does give you a razzle-dazzle yarn to gnaw on, the quality of a Jean Cocteau movie that invariably pleases the most is that it's such fun to look at.

The French poet-director is now represented on the Little screen by something he calls "The Storm Within" and which once was a play he called "Les Parents Terribles," the translation of which I leave to you.

His favorite stars, his favorite art designer and his favorite composer are on tap for this one, as they were for "Beauty and the Beast" and "The Eternal Return." The Cocteau drawback—and to many it has become an irresistable gimmick—is his pretentiousness; he always describes his pictures with inflated terms that seem to reflect his films as if from one of those crazy mirrors one finds in amusement parks.

In "The Storm Within" he's telling you about a young man whose mother doesn't want him to leave her for marriage. She's a snivelling, selfish type and her life isn't made simpler by having a husband who's been keeping the daughter-in-law elect and her own sister who frankly admits she'd wanted to marry the boy's father herself. The Tante Leo sets the situation which seems about to destroy the young man's happiness; she later relents and sees to it the young people have each other again without the boy ever knowing that his father was the girl's older gentleman caller. As for Mama, the sight of her happy family causes her to take a fatal dose of poison.

All this is framed by the poetic Cocteau "as a rediscovery of a childhood which is always the same whatever the country or mileau." He describes his characters as gypsies and their home their caravan.

Both the young people, blond and physically beautiful, have that dream-like quality which is Cocteau's principal cinema ingredient. Jean Marais and Josette Day surely are the personification of the Cocteau dream world. Their elders, too, photographed in their shoddy reality, capture the spirit of enmity between the generations which is the director's theme. Especially fine is Gabrielle Dorziat as the parched, observant aunt.

And Christian Berard's dusty settings give an atmosphere to the film which would be quite another thing without them; the clutter of the caravan (actually an average apartment) and the chaste quality of the young girl's studio further this eye-appeal which is the essence of Cocteau. And Georges Auric's thin, insinuating music completes the sensual charm that has given the Cocteau vogue its vitality.

"THE STORM WITHIN." Discina Films release produced by Alexandre Mnouchkine and Francis Cosne. Written and directed by Jean Cocteau from his play "Les Parents Terribles." Decor by Christian Berard. Music by Georges Auric. Photographed by Michel Kelber. At the Little.

SNEAK: The Palace slips in an anonymous preview between showings of "My Blue Heaven" tonight at 8:30.

Henry Oliver Scores at Arena Stage

'The Firebrand' Revival a Good Idea

ARENA STAGE is doing us a cheerful favor by reviving "The Firebrand," that ironic and blithely amoral comedy with which Edwin Justus Mayer started his curious playwrighting career.

To appreciate it the more, it is best to consider Mayer for a moment. This moody little fellow began as a reporter and publicity man; next he got himself a part in John Barrymore's celebrated "Hamlet." Then he wrote this entirely imaginative incident about Benvenuto Cellini, which was played to critical cheers by Joseph Schildkraut and Frank Morgan. Later it became the movies' "The Affairs of Cellini," a very neat, but not especially appreciated tidbit, wherein Fredric March took over the lead and Morgan recreated his role of the Duke.

Few plays came later from Mayer, one of them the similarly respected but ignored "Children of Darkness." For nearly 20 years he's done little that's seen a stage, though this season Miss Bankhead talks of doing his "I Am Laughing," which goes back 15 years, and ANTA plans to produce his "Sunrise in My Pocket."

Despite this meager output, Mayer's a highly regarded fellow; and though his tricks have been pulled before and since, "The Firebrand" remains a sharp and diverting comedy.

Literate Style

He gives you a tangle in which Cellini, who toys with any lady who comes into sight, has his neck saved by his lure for the Duchess of Florence. The Duke's a shrewd, sappy fellow who settles for his reward with the possession of Cellini's most recently cast-off mistress.

What makes this diverting is Mayer's highly literate style and his shrewd use of characters. Each is wise enough not to be gullible; each has, however, the moral fortitude not to sacrifice his selfish desires.

Such an approach, even after 26 years, has a refreshingly honest nature that makes the characters fun to watch. Politesse exists but only as a means to an end. The Renaissance setting is irrelevant; it is the playwright's point of view that matters.

The fattest part in the comedy, and I mean this not in the corporeal sense, is the screwy Duke, a role that Henry Oliver plays in high style. Oliver achieves the ease and aplomb very well and he got the deserved hand of last night's opening performance.

Gordon Sterne acquits the far more demanding title role with competence if not yet with elan. Pernell Roberts is effective as the pompous, conniving Medici cousin and Angela Nilles has the right feel for the wise duchess. Louis Teitel has been nicely directed as the giggling hangman.

A Good Revival

Zelda Fichandler's staging improves as the play progresses, though I would suggest the Arena try changing its props while the audience has spilled into the streets for the intervals. And Sam Munson has managed to be surprisingly efficient in his direction of the dueling scenes.

Jacqueline Dudley, Virginia Thurston, Evelyn Ernest, Harry Scully and Sterling Saul complete the cast, which should shortly be playing like the lively, loquacious seals Mayer's script suggests.

Yes, reviving "The Firebrand" was a good idea. R. L. C.

Manor Park Votes For Coolidge Stadium

The Manor Park Citizens Association last night asked that funds for a flood-lighted stadium at Coolidge High School be included in the District's 1952 budget.

At the same time the association asked that the District budget be trimmed by 10 million dollars. The resolution adopted at the meeting in the Whittier School, requested the following action on taxes:

Reduction of the real estate tax from $2.15 to $1.75; repeal of the personal property tax; increasing the sales tax exemption to $1, and reduction of the sales tax to a half cent per dollar; reduction of the gas tax to 2 cents per gallon and reduction of the cost of fees for driver permits and auto inspections.

Minnesota Center

Edward J. Stein of 175 35th st. ne., was elected president of the Minnesota Center Citizens Association last night at a meeting in the City Bank Building, 3839 Minnesota ave. ne.

Also elected: Charles Smith, first vice president; Alfred Marinshaw, second vice president; Otis Spitzer, treasurer; Harry Hall, financial secretary; Mrs. Edward J. Stein, recording secretary, and Mrs. Bertha Knott, corresponding secretary.

In two resolutions the group asked that taxi stands on Minnesota ave. ne., be placed behind shopping centers to relieve traffic congestion, and set up a committee to survey the condition of the community's roads.

Michigan Park

Charles S. Faller was unanimously reelected president of the Michigan Park Citizens Association last night at Bunker Hill School.

Other officers elected: Charles K. Murr, first vice president; Mrs. Martin Kelly, second vice president; Joseph L. Bridwell, corresponding and recording secretary; John F. Chester, financial secretary; Mrs. Karl Dickey, mailing secretary; Miss Katherine Ruppert, treasurer, and Chester V. Parker, sergeant-at-arms.

More than 100 members attended the meeting.

Citizens of Takoma

The Citizens Association of Takoma, D. C., last night appropriated $10 to the Federation of Citizens' Associations for their fight against the raise in gas rates.

Meeting in the Takoma Elementery School, the 72 members present also voted to support a movement for construction of a stadium at Calvin Coolidge High School.

National Gateway

Meeting at the Church of Christ, 28th and Douglas sts. ne., the group also indorsed the proposal to establish a Citizens' Advisory Council to the District Commissioners.

Dupont Circle

The Dupont Circle Citizens Association went on record yesterday as approving a Board of Tax Appeals decision that no settlement house recognized as such by the Community Chest should be taxed.

Meeting yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel, the group took the action after hearing a report by Elizabeth P. Reynolds, member of the health committee, that the Board of Commissioners have reversed a decision by the tax board and ordered Friendship House in Southeast Washington, to pay taxes. The Commissioners claim Friendship House is not a "public charity" because members of its staff are quartered there.

Succeeds McArdle

Miller Named Graphic Arts Group Head

Harry J. Miller, owner of Caslon Press, Inc., was elected president of the Graphic Arts Association of Washington last night at the association's annual dinner at the Mayflower Hotel.

Caffee

Miller, who lives at 10308 New Hampshire ave., Silver Spring, succeeds Walter F. McArdle, of the McArdle Printing Co.

Robert H. Caffee, president of the William G. Johnston Co., of Pittsburgh, and newly elected president of the Printing Industry of America, Inc., told the gathering that the graphic arts industry ought to give serious consideration to voluntary paper conservation proposals.

Others elected last night included T. G. Parkman, of Webb & Bocorselki, Inc., vice president; James W. Shields, of Judd & Detweiler, Inc., recording secretary; and Herbert G. Pillen, of Mercury Press, Inc., treasurer.

County Group Elects Slate Of Officers

James Buchanan was elected president of the West Montgomery County Citizens' Association in its annual meeting in the Potomac, Md., Elementary School last night.

Chosen directors were Val Hogan, Allan Elliot, Arnold Burr, Arthur Sylvester, and Weed.

Jacques Torfs, who with Dunham, constituted a special committee on civilian defense, described in a report the imagined effect on western Montgomery County of a hypothetical atom bombing of Washington.

Asserting that "this section of the county would be overrun by 10,000 to 20,000 people in a few hours," fleeing along MacArthur blvd., Bradley and River rd., Torfs urged that the association's executive committee be empowered to form a civilian defense corps for this area. The association voted this authority to the executive committee.

A feature of the meeting were speeches by Mrs. Stella B. Werner, powere dto form a civilian defense Democratic candidate in the Fourth District for the Montgomery County Council; DeWitt S. Hyde, candidate for State Senator on the Republican ticket, and Col. Norman Ames, chairman of the charter committee.

Ames, praising the work of the current county council, as "probably the most able the county will ever have," said, "next to the atom bomb the most grim thing would be for Brooke Lee and his people to take over the council."

Mrs. Werner, charging that "the Republican ticket is the charter ticket for the council," said "it is utterly ridiculous to brand the Democrats of Montgomery County with Brooke Lee's name. It shows little imagination."

Hyde, member of the House of Delegates, said "there is just one issue—the will of the people against William Preston Lane and E. Brooke Lee."

Hyde said: "They said Lee was out of politics in 1938, and in 1942 he ran for Congress. Lee is in and out of politics."

Finn Left Gains In Early Returns

HELSINKI, Tuesday, Oct. 3 (U.P.). Finland's leftist parties appeared to be gaining strength today, according to returns from nationwide municipal elections.

With more than half the estimated million ballots counted at 1 a.m. (8 p.m. EST), the leftist Social Democrats had 26.7 percent of the votes, as compared with 22.3 percent in the January presidential elections. The Communists had 24.2 percent, about 3 percent more than they had in January.

The right-wing parties, which won 56 percent in January, so far had picked up only 49 percent of the votes.

Champion Shooter, on Force, Hasn't Fired a Shot on Duty

Police Pvt. Roy D. Marshall, a world's champion pistol shot

A world's champion pistol shot and a beat-pounding policeman—that's Pvt. Roy D. Marshall. But he has never fired a shot in line of duty during the eight years he has been on the force.

Criminals in the northeast section, however, are hereby warned that Marshall counts on hitting a target 50 feet away 295 times out of 300.

At 60 feet criminals have a better chance. He hits only 289 out of 300 targets 60 feet away.

Marshall joined the force in 1942, "just an average shot," he says, and has spent all his time at No. 12 Precinct.

A "Distinguished Expert"

But No. 12 is the precinct for cops who want to be world pistol champions. The Twelfth Precinct Pistol Club is one of the city's finest. Open to civilians as well as police, the club has just purchased 28 acres of land in West Lanham, Md., for new headquarters.

Under the tutelage of Lieut. H. H. Heflin, manager of the club, and Lieut. Sheldon R. McKee, proprietor of the headquarters pistol range, Marshall came along fast as a shot.

In 1944 he became an "expert." In 1947 he became a "Distinguished Expert," and that's the last rung on the ladder.

But in 1950 Marshall rose even higher. In Pittsburgh, Pa., last April, shooting a .22-calibre pistol, the 32-year-old policeman shot 295 out of 300 over the 50-foot National Match Course. This score gave him the world record, and incidentally the Pennsylvania State championship.

Later in the year, at the New Jersey State championships, Marshall shot himself into another world's record, when he missed only 11 times in 300 tries over the 60-foot course. He holds this record jointly with a policeman from the Midwest.

En route to his world records, Marshall has gathered an imposing array of 500 medals, 66 plaques, 26 trophies and a life membership in the National Rifle Association.

Reared in Lorton, Va., Marshall never fired a pistol until he became a guard in the District Reformatory at the age of 21. He kept a rifle for squirrel huting as a young boy, but insists he was only an "average shot."

"Maybe I might have become an expert wit the rifle," he said yesterday, "but when I decided to become a policeman, I began shooting a pistol."

His wife, Courtney, is tolerant of her husband's ability to the point of being downright encouraging. She urges him to attend as many shooting matches as he can, and when her two children do not interfere, she accompanies him to many.

She has even been to Cuba on a "shoot" with him.

Their two children, Linda Carol, 8, and Roy D. Marshall, jr., 6, are also known around the neighborhood as good shots, with cap pistols and Buck Rogers ray guns.

The Marshalls live at 5105 Lackawanna st., Berwyn, Md.

Man Indicted In Shooting Of Ex-Wife

William J. Anderson, 59, of 915 11th st. ne., yesterday was indicted by the District grand jury for first degree murder in the shooting of his estranged wife, Mrs. Laura M. Anderson, 47.

She was found dead—a bullet wound in the back of her head—slumped over the steering wheel of her automobile, parked at 11th and C sts. ne. September 2.

The 38 indictments and charges handed down yesterday by the grand jury also included:

Leon Smith, 21, of 62 Seaton pl. ne., for manslaughter in the death of Harry Gray, 38, of 1617½ 11th st. nw. Gray died September 1, several days after Smith struck him with his fist during an argument near Gray's home, police said.

Ralph B. Mullis, 31, of 1523 I st. nw., for assault with a dangerous weapon (an auto), robbery and unauthorized use of a vehicle. Pvt. Romeo F. Garza, of the First Precinct, reported Mullis tried to run him down July 14, when he stopped Mullis to question him about his permit.

The auto Mullis was driving plus a wristwatch and two billfolds were stolen from Harold Dotterer, of 306 Elm st., Chevy Chase, Md., the previous day, police said.

William H. Boyd, 24, of 1438 Corcoran st. nw., for arson. Police said he set fire August 29, to a house at 607 W st. nw., occupied by Joseph Brown, sr. Brown's 15-year-old son was injured when he jumped from a second-floor window of the house, which was damaged to the extent of about $1800 by the fire, according to police.

Maryland 4-H Team Wins Iowa Contest

WATERLOO, Iowa, Oct. 2 (AP).—Champion intercollegiate and 4-H judging teams were chosen today in connection with the National Dairy Cattle Congress.

Maryland's 4-H team—for the fourth time in the last five years—won the national 4-H cattle judging competition. A team from Texas was second; Indiana was third; Ohio, fourth and Michigan, fifth.

Maryland's 4-H team of Barbara Riggs, aJnice Palmer, Robert Barton and Glenn McCready, earned the right to compete in England next summer. Maryland has won previously in 1946-47 and 1949.

City Manager Post Definitely Woodbury's

The Falls Church Council last night unanimously confirmed the appointment of W.. R. Woodbury as city manager at a yearly salary of $8000.

Woodbury replaces Roy S. Braden, temporary city manager. Braden held the post from August 15, 1950, following the resignation of Harry Wells. Braden has accepted a post with the Atomic Energy Commission, as a specialist in municipal management.

In the other council action, October 23 was set as the date for a public hearing on rezoning the Pierce, Fox & Jett tract of land, beyond the railroad on West Broad st., Falls Church, to a commercial rating.

Consumer Credit Hit Record Mark Before New Curb

The American public had an outstanding credit bill of $20,979,000,000 in August, highest in the Nation's history, the Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday.

Although this was before consumer installment credit curbs went into effect September 18, the figure is expected to be even higher for September.

Time-purchase debts alone stood at $13,015,000,000 in August, a new high.

Overall consumer credit rose 614 million dollars in August. While this brought a record high total, the gain was less than in July.

Reports indicate the initial curbs have had little effect throughout the country in slicing installment buying.

Child Finds Medicine, Gulps It; Now He's Ill

Three-year-old Leo Urlanske, jr., of 1110 S. 15th st., Arlington, was in fair condition at Arlington Hospital last night after he swallowed the contents of some medicine bottles discarded in the trash at his home. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Urlanske.

Defense Error Brings Anxiety To GI's Families

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 2 (AP).—The families of 10 West Virginia soldiers probably had some anxious moment today if they read an early edition of their newspapers or heard early broadcasts.

The families had been notified by the Defense Department that the 10 had been wounded in Korea. A casualty list prepared by the Defense Department for publication and broadcast today listed them as having "died of wounds."

A clerical error, the department said later. A check disclosed that only one soldier—not one of the 10—should have been listed as dead of wounds. The 10 should have been listed merely as being wounded.

News stories based on the erroneous information were corrected, but they had already been printed in some West Virginia newspapers and broadcast by radio stations.

Money-Order Modernizing Announced

Plans for the modernization of the postal money-order system, to go into effect July 1, were announced yesterday by Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson.

The new system will utilize the latest electrical sorting and tabulating machines and is expected to reduce the cost of handling money-order business while speeding up service.

The order forms will supersede the present paper form as well as the postal notes.

The money orders may be cashed at any postoffice or bank cleared through the Federal Reserve System and channeled for accounting purposes to 12 regional postal areas which will conform generally with the Federal Reserve Districts.

Popularity of the postal money-order system, established in 1864, is indicated by the fact that for the fiscal year 1949 more than 313 million money orders, aggregating almost five billion dollars in value, were issued. In addition, more than 90 million postal notes amounting to 470 million dollars were issued and paid, making 403 million transactions representing a total value of $5,345,000,000 — representing the handling or turnover of more than 10 billion dollars annually.

The new system, under study for five years, is expected to effect economies in the service which in 1949 cost $28,409,000 more than the revenues derived.

South America Claims High-Speed Air Stream

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—Discovery of a high-speed air stream over South America at 36,000 feet altitude and possibly girdling the southern half of the globe is claimed by officials of Panair do Brasil, affiliate of Pan-American World Airways.

The "jet stream," they said, travels from west to east at speeds from 90 to 180 miles an hour. It passes over Buenos Aires, the southern tip of Brazil and out into the Atlantic.

90 MILES TO WASHINGTON, 82 MILES TO RICHMOND, 30 MILES TO CHARLOTTESVILLE.

Excellent transportation C&O and Southern RR, airport, bus service. Route 15 with connecting highways.

Taxes $400 annually.

The residence, built by Gen. James S. Kemper is gracious in size and mien and is completely modern. The wide center hall and stairway and hall are impressive in their dignity. To the left is drawing room and year-round sun porch, spacious dining room and excellent kitchen; to the right a handsome paneled library, 2 guest rooms, 2 baths.

An ideal home designed for real living and entertaining.

An unusually well lying and productive farm ideally located, $225 per acre including the gracious manor house, the reproduction of which would exceed the cost of the entire property.

Call Mr. Smith for brochure and complete information. DE. 4101 office hours. Vienna 163-J-4 evenings and Sundays.

America's No. 1 Family

'Let All the Rest Be Called Smith . . .'

EDITOR'S NOTE: America's No. 1 humorist here tells the riotous story of America's No. 1 family—the Smiths. The author of "Low Man on a Totem Pole" and "We Went Thataway" has hit another high in this story. This is the second of six articles from the book, "People Named Smith," published this week by Doubleday & Co.

By H. Allen Smith

CHAPTER TWO

Every Smith has the usual story to tell of the smirking hotel clerk.

Another cliche involves the confusion attending the paging of a Mr. Smith in a public place. Far back in my youth I can remember seeing a two-panel cartoon on this subject. In the first panel a bellboy stands in the center of a hotel lobby and is crying, "Paging Mr. Smith!" In the second panel he has disappeared beneath a great pile of struggling men.

"Trade or Mark"

The cough drop gambit has been with us for many decades.

"Meet Mr. Smith," someone says, performing a routine introduction.

A Favorite Reply

The Smiths themselves have a favorite cliche when it comes to discussing the origin of their name. I never knew a Smith who didn't at one time or another, spring it on me; and I in turn spring it on others. Here, in 1950, it pops up on an advertising postal card addressed to a John J. Smith in the Bronx. Printed on the back of the card is this message:

DEAR MR. SMITH:

A long time ago everyone was named Smith. As each committed a sin, he was compelled to take another name. Today only a few of us Smiths are left. See Roy C. Smith for your new Chevrolet.

Descendants of Noah

Among other fables dealing with the origin of our name is the one which says we are lineal descendants of Noah, by way of his eldest son, Shem. The name went from Shem to Shemit to Shmit to Smith.

And a lady named Sara Payson Willis Parton, who called herself Fanny Fern, once wrote: "When Adam got tired of naming his numerous descendants, he said, 'Let all the rest be called Smith'."

The most readable single volume dealing with the origin of personal names which I have encountered was published early in 1950 under the title, "The Story of Our Names."

It is the work of a Chicago lawyer who has spent more than 25 years studying onomatology, the science of names. And what do you suppose his name is? Smith. Elsdon C. Smith.

Beginnings of Surnames

He explains that people did not begin acquiring surnames until about the year 1000 and that these names derived generally from four sources: Localities, occupations, fathers' names and descriptive or personal traits.

Smith is almost but not quite purely occupational in origin. There are a few Smiths whose ancestors had nothing whatever to do with working in metals; their name derives from the fact that in Old England they lived near a smooth field, which was called a "smeeth" field.

The famous Smithfield region of London, where knights of old slew one another in tournaments and where heretics were burned, got its name not from any member of our family, but from the fact that as a field it was smeeth. Meaning not bumpy.

Varieties of Smith

The occupational origin of the name Smith has always been obvious but there is a point which helps explain how the Smiths happened to become a multitude.

Most people assume that a smith is a shoer of horses, a blacksmith; or at most they broaden the definition only so far as to include all workers in metals.

Actually in the olden times a smith was any man who worked with a hammer, whether in metals, in wood, or in stone. Hence there were more smiths around than anything else.

The present-day lexicopraphy of "Smith" takes in a wide territory. First, a smith is "one who forges with the hammer; a worker in metals." But secondly a smith is "one who fabricates a thing; especially one who writes, paints, etc., as though forging." Under this latter definition I am at the moment, a Smith at work as a smith.

A Groskritz Explains Smiths

An interesting theory about ancient smiths comes to me from a George Groskritz who lives in Connecticut, and who chafes under the knowledge that there are so many Smiths and so few Groskritzes. He writes:

"While the Smiths shoed our horses, the members of the Groskritz (Greatcross) family rode off and fought the battles. All the Groskritzes fought and died except one and he was captured and tortured, but his winsome smile saved his life. But for him there would be no Groskritzes left at all. We did the fighting and you Smiths stayed at home and married our daughters and that is the reason why today so many Groskritzes bear the name Smith. The Browns were cooks, and did the same, so many Browns today are really Groskritzes."

Among some savage tribes of Africa the craft of the smith is sacred and only the chiefs may meddle with it. So in more civilized climes the smith was respected and honored.

In Wales he sat beside his master the King at table, and was entitled to take a drink of every wine that was brought into the hall, even before the most important guests were served.

He fashioned the iron collar which bound the serf (O evil smith!) and he wrought and installed the chastity belt which secured the charms of Queen and Lady (O enviable smith!).

The rest of the time he just smote whatever needed smiting—for the name of his trade derives from the Saxon word which means "to smite."

Wednesday: Smythes, Smyths and Hyphenate Smiths.

When It Came to Anonymity, The Name Was Walter Smith

They've called him Beedle. They've called him Bulldog.

But when the going got really rough, Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith relied on his own name to turn a famous trick and bring confusion to his Nation's enemies.

Gen. Smith

It was during the days of World War II, a war for which General Smith in the words of his boss, General Eisenhower, was serving as "general manager."

In 1943, when Allied blows were axing Italy out of the Axis, General Smith was assigned to be one of the Allied representatives in secret presurrender talks in Lisbon. The city swarmed with German agents. Into the city went General Smith, masquerading as plain Mr. Walter Smith. And out of the war went Italy.

Later the Germans learned his name very well. It appeared on the German surrender documents. And the Russians learned his name well. He was for three years America's postwar Ambassador to Moscow, and he started the assignment by mincing no introductions. When reporters asked what to call him, the general said:

"I sign my name W. B. Smith. Call me anything you want. I don't care if you just call me Smith."

Smith, between assignment to Moscow and assignment to Washington as head of the Central Intelligence Agency, served as commander of the First Army.

Avco Net and Sales Reach All-Time High

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP).—Avco Manufacturing Corp. is turning out the largest volume of peacetime production in its history and sales and earnings have reached an all-time high, the company reported today.

Consolidated net income for the nine months ended August 31 was $7,712,538, equal to $1.08 a share, Emanuel reported, compared with net of $2,711,540, on 35 cents a share, in the like period of 1949.

Net sales is the latest nine months totaled $160,330,491, against $97,908,767 a year earlier.

Radio City Crowd Sees Theft Suspect ShotDead

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—A large lunch-hour crowd in Radio City watched a policeman chase a suspected thief into a subway entrance today and shoot him dead. Two bystanders were injured, one by a bullet from the officer's gun, the other when he tried to stop the suspect and was pushed into a window.

The victim was tentatively identified as William Hunter of Philadelphia. A clothing store employe called police when she noticed Hunter trying to hide a suit in a box he had brought into the store with him.

Only 19 at Negro Jr. College; Finances, Transit Blamed

The Montgomery Junior College began classes in the renovated Bliss Electrical School at Takoma Park with an enrollment of approximately 510.

Also opened was the new Junior College for Negroes at Lincoln Park High School, near Rockville, the first junior college for Negroes in Maryland.

Dean Parlett L. Moore reported an enrollment of only 19 last night. Finances are holding back a number of prospective students who are working but have not accumulated sufficient funds to pay their tuition, he said.

Meanwhile, Dean Hugh G. Price of the Montgomery Junior College reported that nearly 400 of his students are full-time with more than 100 attending night classes. The electrical course has attracted students from 16 States, he said.

Gas Heater Victim Dies of Burns

Earle Trice, 23 of Newland, N. C., critically burned when a tourist camp heater exploded, died Sunday at Arlington Hospital.

The explosion occurred Friday at the Capitol Tourist Court on Route 211 two miles west of Camp Washington. Also burned in the blast was Trice's wife, Betty, 18, who was said to be improving at Arlington Hospital yesterday.

Parkside P-TA to Meet

The Parkside Parent-Teachers Association will hold its first meeting of the year in the Parkside School, Silver Spring, Md., at 8 p. m. tonight.

Strong Comeback

Radio Sets Outselling Video Two to One

By Wayne Oliver

NEW YORK—(AP)—Radio sets, far from being obsolete, are outselling television sets better than two to one in a strong comeback.

There has been no letup in the television set boom, but the renewed customer demand for radio sets has caught some manufacturers short—unable to fill all their orders.

In the first eight months of this year, the set makers turned out 8¼ million radios compared with about 5½ million radio sets in the corresponding period of last year.

Production for the full year is expected to run around 12½ million radios, or 2½ million more than last year. Production probably would run considerably higher if it were not for the competing demands of television sets for parts and small tubes.

One leading set manufacturer put it this way: He said he planned to make all the television sets he could, and then put what small tubes he had left in radio sets.

The upsurge of radio set buying is attributed to several factors, one of which is a realization that television never will replace radio entirely. Much of the buying is by families that have television sets, but still want a good radio for the living room or an extra set for another part of the house.

Some of the buying is due to normal replacement and part is by persons who had been holding off waiting for television to come to their community but have become tired of waiting. The Federal Communications Commission has kept permits for new video stations frozen since October 1, 1948. Stations that have come on the air since that time already had permits when the freeze was invoked. But the FCC order caught many communities with no television stations authorized.

THE EXTENSION of the television network to 14 more cities, plus two more to be connected by private hookups, means a week of premiers, plus the resumption of several shows after summer vacations.

ROSE

With the additions plus other top notch shows that already have made their debuts, televiewers will have a bill of fare of much higher quality and greater variety than a year ago.

Premiers and resumptions include these:

Tuesday—The Billy Rose Show, ABC-TV.

Wednesday—Ed Wynn in his new full-hour comedy show, Laughtime, NBC-TV. Wynn was seen in the East last season by film recording, but will give live performances on the network in his new series.

Thursday—Groucho Marx in video version of You Bet Your Life, NBC-TV (Radio version resumes Wednesday night); Kay Kyser's College of Musical Knowledge, NBC-TV, resuming after summer vacation.

Friday—Pulitzer Prize Playhouse, with Charles Coburn and Ella Raines starring in "You Can't Take It With You," ABC-TV.

Saturday—Sing It Again, giveaway musical quiz, CBS radio and television.

Paralyzed Vet Pleads Innocent To Slaying Other

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 2 (AP).—A 29-year-old gray-haired veteran, paralyzed from the waist down, pleaded innocent in Federal court here today to a charge of murder in the shooting of a legless buddy.

He is charged with firing six slugs from a .25-caliber automatic into 28-year-old Vance Clary during an argument August 5 at the McGuire Veterans Administration Hospital here.

Kennedy, a native of Burgettstown, Pa., had been indicted just a short while before by a Federal court grand jury in the death of Clary, who came from Randleman, N. C.

His trial was set for October 11.

Bob Wolff Only Expert To Pick First Five in American League

On the opening day of the baseball season, I published six sets of predictions for the two major leagues—mine and those of Arch McDonald, Bob Wolff, Dutch Bergman, Herb (Wondrous Nats) Heft and Jim Wessel of the Associated Press.

Now it's time for a review of how we did—and for most of us, it's an embarrassing moment. None of us picked the Phillies in the National League. Arch, Jim and I came closest, putting the Dodgers first and the Phils second.

In the American League, everybody picked the Bosox except Herb and Bob, who predicted a Yankee victory. As a matter of fact, Wolff was the only "expert" who covered himself with glory.

He picked the first five teams in the American League in exactly the order in which they finished—Yanks, Tigers, Bosox, Indians and Nats. Heft did almost as well, except that he reversed the Bosox and Tigers.

If the foregoing proves anything, it's that those of us who make the most noise about our baseball knowledge sometimes know the least. I'm so chagrined I won't even predict a Yankee victory in the World Series.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Seven healthy assorted mouse catchers; can of cat food with each kitten." (Otis 8777.)

"Male part-spaniel pup, 9 weeks old, all black." (Overlook 6797.)

"Four beautiful white kittens." (Columbia 7970.)

"Six-week-old male kittens." (Shepherd 1971.)

THE GENTLER SEX

For some obscure reason, newspaper editors have recently come to believe that their female subscribers need lessons in "How To Get a Husband," and "How To Be Glamorous Though Past 40."

I was mildly surprised when The Washington Post's series on husband trapping resulted in nothing more serious than a few screams of anguish from our local bachelor colony. The New Orleans Item was less fortunate.

One of its readers, a woman in her 50's, was afraid she was losing her husband to a blonde. The article suggested: "Invite the blonde to dinner, with a charming young man of her own age as her dinner partner."

So she did—and the charming young man later sent a bitter complaint to the newspaper that the husband, wife and blonde had all gotten to shouting and throwing things, and first thing he knew, he and the girl had been kicked out of the house.

What was even worse was that, when he drove the blonde home, a guy with a meat cleaver took out after him shouting: "So you're the so-and-so who's been chasing around with my wife."

"Fortunately," he reported to the newspaper, "I managed to outrun him. But I'm still afraid to go back for my car."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

We've heard about the selfish people who park their bundles and packages on the only vacant seat in a bus. This is about the same situation—in reverse.

After a hard afternoon of shopping, I start for home on an early bus. I find a double seat that's vacant and, with a sigh of relief for my aching arms, dump my bundles on the portion I'm not using.

Invariably, somebody will get on at the next stop and, passing up all the other available seats, will stand over me and glare at the packages.

As long as I can, I pretend that I don't care, but when I can't stand it any longer I meekly gather up the bundles in my tired arms. He sits down, and everybody is happy—except me.

Why do they do this? Why don't they give weary shoppers a break when other seats are available?

Fay Scarville
1963 Capitol ave.

Dear Fay:

Shucks, gal, ain't you willing to hold those bundles for a few blocks in exchange for the flattering inference that he's trying to sit next to the best looking female on the bus?

Bill

PENN, 21; VIRGINIA, 7

One of our reporters who was driving in the vicinity of Falls Church, Va., last Saturday passed scores of autos which displayed the Confederate flag.

"How come?" he asked when he stopped alongside one such car at a traffic light.

Marshall's Tenure May Be Brief

By Drew Pearson

General Marshall has given a hint that he may remain as Secretary of Defense only a short time. The hint is a request to continue as head of the American Red Cross—despite the fact that at the age of 70 he occupies one of the most back-breaking jobs in the Cabinet.

Marshall

The reason given is that General Marshall has been a strong advocate of civilian defense, and has committed the Red Cross to several civilian defense programs on which he would like to follow through. Behind this, however, it is believed that the general may want to step out of the Defense Department some time next year and go back to the Red Cross.

The Red Cross board of governors will meet on November 18 to decide whether they will retain Marshall.

In the interim Marshall rates next to the President as the highest-paid public servant in the United States. His salary is $45,000 plus $6000 for entertainment—total $51,000.

This is because Marshall now draws $22,500 as a Cabinet member, plus another $22,500 as head of the American Red Cross, plus $6000 for entertainment.

Even when head of the Red Cross alone and before he took the defense job, Marshall was one of the highest-paid public officials in the country, drawing $18,761 as a five-star general, plus $22,500 from the Red Cross, plus $6000 for entertainment or a total of $47,261.

Faithful Official

This column has sometimes been critical of the bureaucrats, but here is a tribute to a man whom the public probably has never heard of, William H. Kennedy, former assistant deputy commissioner of the alcohol tax unit.

Bill Kennedy retired the other day, after spending 30 faithful years with the Government, and just before he retired it looked as if some of the big liquor companies were trying to pay him off.

For mysterious telegrams went out to whisky distillers asking that they send a series of presents to Bill Kennedy. The telegrams even informed the distillers what they should give Kennedy, as follows:

1. A maple bedroom suite.
2. An oriental rug of an exact room size to fit Kennedy's new home.
3. A complete silver set.
4. A new radio-television set.
5. A set of chinaware.
6. A collie dog.

The telegrams were signed by "A. R. Reed" and sent from Philadelphia.

It happens to be against Federal rules for anyone having business with the Government to give presents to a Government official. Furthermore it is not considered ethical to give expensive presents when an official retires. Therefore, Kennedy immediately sent telegrams to the distillers saying he knew nothing about the proposal to shower him with gifts and that he would not accept them if offered.

Kennedy also conferred with his fair-minded chief, Carroll Mealey, who sent investigators to the Western Union office in Philadelphia from which the wires were sent, to see who had suggested this series of indirect bribes. No one by the name of "A. R. Reed" could be located in Philadelphia, though investigators found that a man by that name had registered at the Statler Hotel in New York, giving an address in Washington. When investigators checked on the Washington address, however, it turned out to be a vacant lot.

Wilson's Namesake

Former President Woodrow Wilson must have been present in spirit when a disabled veteran of the war he tried to prevent by a League of Nations called at the White House in a wheel chair.

The caller was former Army Corpl. Woodrow Wilson of Millville, N. J., who lost both legs and a hand in Germany after the Battle of the Bulge. He came to present President Truman with a forget-me-not, opening the annual fund-raising drive of the disabled American Veterans.

You have a distinguished name, the President told him.

"Yes, sir, I am related to the late President Wilson," said the veteran, "and was named after him."

Truman said his caller reminded him of another young fellow to whom he awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor. That veteran told him, said the President, that he regretted having only one life that he could give to his country.

Sen. McCarran's Seat

A big political upset, the defeat of white-thatched Senator Pat McCarran, tyrannical boss of the Senate Judiciary Committee, is hinted in confidential reports from Nevada.

Major factor behind the possible dumping of McCarran is the smash-up of what the Republican National Committee calls "the unholy alliance" between GOP politicians and the Democratic machine in Nevada. Under this back-room arrangement, Republican politicians supported McCarran in return for favors from the victorious Democrats.

But this summer, a rank-and-file revolt among Republicans elected Harold Stocker of Las Vegas as State chairman. And he genuinely wants to beat McCarran in November.

McCarran's GOP opponent is George E. Marshall, an up-and-at-'em campaigner, former judge and deputy district attorney.

Reports from Nevada reveal what few outside the State know—that Democratic strength in Nevada has been sloughing off since 1940 with an upswing of Republican votes. From 64 percent of the vote in the presidential year of 1940, Democrats dropped to 50 percent in 1948. The slump is worse in the off-years, with a low of 41 percent in 1946 when Republican Isolationist George Malone beat Democratic Representative Berkley Bunker.
